THE RESURRECTION.

CHAPTERS XIX. 38, &c. XX. XXI.

The body of Jesus given to Joseph of Arimathea ;—he and Nicodemus embalm it, and lay it in the sepulchre :—the sepulchre is found empty early on Sunday morning, first by Mary Magdalene, afterwards by Peter and John :—soon after Jesus appears to Mary Magdalene at the sepulchre, and sends her to acquaint his disciples of his resurrection, and that his ascension would soon follow ;—in the evening he appears to the Apostles in a house, and gives them commission to teach :—Thomas, who had been absent, owns, to his fellow-disciples, his disbelief of their testimony :—Jesus appears again to the Apostles, Thomas being present, whose incredulity is overcome by the evidence he had wanted :—again he appears to the disciples at the sea of Tiberias, discovering himself by means of an extraordinary draught of fishes ;—eats with them ;—draws from Peter thrice, in presence of the rest, a declaration of his love to him :—Jesus gives him charge of his flock,—and foretells his martyrdom ;—rebukes his curiosity about the fate of a fellow-disciple. It was that disciple who wrote this Gospel, and was witness of most of the things recorded in it. Page 406

PREFACE

TO

MATTHEW'S GOSPEL.

THE time when this Gospel was composed, has not been precisely ascertained by the learned. Some have thought that it was written no more than eight years after our Lord's ascension; others have reckoned it no fewer than fifteen. All antiquity seems agreed in the opinion, that it was of all the Gospels the first published; and, in a case of this kind, I should not think it prudent, unless for very strong reasons, to dissent from their verdict. Of the few Christian writers of the first century, whose works yet remain, there are in Barnabas, the companion of Paul, (if what is called the Epistle of Barnabas, which is certainly very ancient, be truly his) in Clement of Rome, and Hermas, clear references to some passages of this history. For though the Evangelist is not named, and his words are not formally quoted, the attentive reader must be sensible that the author had read the Gospel which has uniformly been ascribed to Matthew, and that, on some occasions, he plainly alludes to it. Very early in the second century, Ignatius, in those Epistles which are generally acknowledged to be genuine, and Polycarp, of whom we have no more but a single letter remaining, have manifest allusions to different parts of this Gospel. The writers above named are those who are denominated apostolic fathers, because they were contemporary to the Apostles, and had been their disciples. Their testimony, therefore, serves to show not only their knowledge of this book, but the great and general estimation wherein it was held from the beginning.

§ 2. THE first, indeed, upon record, who has named Matthew as the writer of this Gospel, is Papias bishop of Hierapolis in Cesarea, who is said to have been a companion of Polycarp, and hearer of John. Though Irenæus seems to think it was the Apostle John he meant, Eusebius, with greater probability, supposes it was a John who was commonly distinguished from the Apostle by the appellation of the elder, or the presbyter. Papias, in his preface, does not say that he had heard or seen any of the Apostles, but only that he had received every thing concerning the faith from those who were well acquainted with them. Besides, after naming the Apostle John, he mentions Aristion and John the elder, not as apostles, but as disciples, of the Lord. Concerning Matthew, this venerable ancient affirms that he wrote his Gospel in the Hebrew tongue, which *every one interpreted as he was able*¹. Here we have his testimony, first, that Matthew, (who is also called Levi²) was the writer of this Gospel, for no other was ever ascribed to him, and this was never ascribed to another; and, secondly, that it was written in Hebrew.

§ 3. THE first of these testimonies has never, as far as I know, been controverted. On the contrary, it has been confirmed, and still supported by all subsequent Christian authors who have touched the subject. The second of these testimonies, that this Evangelist wrote his Gospel in Hebrew, had a concurrence equally uniform of all succeeding writers in the church for about fourteen hundred years. In the last two centuries, however, this point has been hotly disputed. Erasmus, who, though an eminent scholar, knew little or nothing of Hebrew, was among the first who called in question a tradition which had so long, and so universally, obtained in the Church. "The faults of Erasmus," says Simon³, "were blindly followed by cardinal Cajetan, "who, not knowing either Greek or Hebrew, was "incapable of correcting them." The cardinal has since been almost deserted by the Catholics; and the principal defenders of this new opinion have been Protestants. It is very unlucky for the discovery of truth, when party-spirit, in any degree, influences our inquiries. Yet, it is but too evident that there has been an infusion of this spirit, in the discussion of the present question. ‘If we give up,’ says the staunch polemic, ‘the originality of the Greek text, we have no Gospel by Matthew which can be called authentic; for, to admit that the translation of one book of Scripture may be so denominated, is equally absurd as to admit it of them all; and, if we admit this point, what becomes of our controversy with the Romanists about the decree of the council of Trent, asserting the authenticity of the Vulgate?’ Whitby, who enters warmly into this dispute, urges⁴, amongst other things, the improbability that Providence, which has preserved all the other canonical books in their original languages, should have suffered the original of this Gospel to be so soon lost, and nothing of it to remain in the church but a translation. That all the books are extant which have been written by divine inspiration, is not so clear a case as that author seems to imagine. It will hardly be pretended that it is self-evident, and I have yet seen no attempt to prove it. The book of the wars of the Lord⁵, the book of Jasher⁶, the book of Nathan the Prophet, the book of Gad the Seer⁷, and several others, are referred to in the Old Testament, manifestly as of equal authority with the book which refers to them, and as fuller in point of information. Yet these are, to all appearance, irrecoverably lost. Other Epistles, beside those we have, there is reason to think the Apostles wrote by the same Spirit. Paul, in what is called his first Epistle to the Corinthians⁸, plainly refers to what he had written to them, in a former epistle now not extant. The artificial methods which have been adopted, for eluding the manifest sense of his words, serve only to demonstrate, how unfriendly the spirit of the controvertist is to the discernment of the critic. And, if we regard the authority of Polycarp, who was a disciple of the Apostle John, Paul wrote more epistles than one to the Philippians, as this venerable father expressly tells us, in his letter to that church⁹. Further, is not what is spoken, equally valuable with what is written, by inspiration? Yet how small a portion of the words of Him who spake as never man spake, has it pleased Providence to cause to be committed to writing? How little, comparatively, is recorded of the discourses of these poor fishermen of Galilee, whose eloquence, in spite of all its disadvantages, baffled the wisdom of the learned, the power of the mighty, and the influence of the rich, converting infidels and idolaters, by thousands, to a doctrine to which all their education, prejudices, and passions, rendered them most reluctant, the doctrine of the crucified Messiah? God bestows his favours, both spiritual and temporal, in various measures, to different individuals, nations, and ages, of the world, as he thinks fit. Those of former times enjoyed many advantages which we have not, and we enjoy some which they had not. It is enough for us, that this only is required as our duty, that we make the proper use of the Scriptures, and of all the other advantages which, through the goodness of God, we enjoy: for every man is *accepted according to what he hath, and not according to what he hath not*¹⁰.

But, indeed, this mode of arguing with regard to Providence, appears to me quite unsatisfactory, as proceeding on the notion that we are judges in matters which, in my opinion, are utterly beyond the reach of our faculties. Men imagining themselves to know perfectly what it is proper for the Ruler of the universe, in any supposed circumstance, to do, conclude boldly, that he has done this or that, after such a particular manner, or such another: a method which, in a creature like man, can hardly be accounted either modest, or pious. From the motives by which men are commonly influenced, we may judge, with some likelihood, what, in particular circumstances, their conduct will be. This is level to our capacity, and within the sphere of our experience. But let us not presume to measure the acts of Omnipotence, and of Infinite Wisdom, by our contracted span. Were we, from our notions of convenience, to determine what God, in possible cases, real or hypothetical, has done, or would do, we should, without hesitation, pronounce that the autographies, the identical writings of the sacred penmen (which are, in strictness, the only originals or perfect standards), would have been preserved from accidents, that they might serve for correcting all the corruptions which should, in process of time, through the mistakes, the carelessness, or the bad intention, of transcribers, be introduced. For who can deny that the sense of a writing may be as much injured by the blunders of a copyist, as by those of a translator? But if those have not the Gospel, who cannot have recourse to some copy in the original language, not the ten thousandth part of those called Christians, have yet partaken in that inestimable blessing. For how small, comparatively, is the number of those who can read the sacred writers in their own languages? If, therefore, it is truth we desire, and not the confirmation of our prejudices, let us renounce all such delusive reasonings a priori from supposed fitnesses, of which we are far, very far indeed, from being competent judges; and let us satisfy ourselves with examining, impartially, the evidences of the fact.

§ 4. THE proper evidence of ancient facts is written testimony. And for this fact, as was observed before, we have the testimony of Papias, as Eusebius, who quotes his words, assures us. For a fact of this kind, a more proper witness than Papias could hardly be desired: if not a contemporary of the Apostles, or rather, if not known to them, a contemporary of their disciples, and who had been a hearer of two men, Aristion, and John the elder, whom he calls disciples of the Lord. He was one, therefore, who had it in his power to be certified of any fact relating to the ministry of the Apostles, and that by persons who had been intimately acquainted with them. Now, by the character transmitted to us of Papias, he was particularly inquisitive about the sayings and actions of our Lord; and, for this purpose, cultivated an acquaintance with those who had seen and heard him, and could give him the fullest information of all that he did and taught. "I took no delight," says he, "as most people do, in those who talk much, but in those who teach the truth; nor in those who relate strange precepts, but in those who relate the precepts which the Lord hath entrusted us with, and which proceed from the truth itself." It would not be easy for me to imagine what could be objected to so clear an evidence, in so plain a case, a matter of fact which falls within the reach, even of the lowest understanding; for this is one of those points, on which, if the simplest man alive should deviate from truth, every man of sense would impute his deviation to a defect of a very different kind from that of understanding. Yet this is the only resource to which those who controvert the testimony of Papias, have betaken themselves.

§ 5. EUSEBIUS had said of Papias¹¹, that “ he “ was a man of slender parts, as may be discovered “ from his writings.” This the historian mentions, in order to account for the sentiments of that ancient writer concerning the millennium, who, in the opinion of Eusebius, interpreted too literally and grossly, what the Apostles had seen meet to veil under figurative language. But, not to enter here into the nature of Christ’s reign for a thousand years on the earth, before the general resurrection (a question foreign to the present purpose; and on which, if Papias erred, he erred along with many not deficient in understanding,) a man may be very unfit for judging rightly of a theological or critical question, who would be allowed, by every person of common sense, a competent witness in questions of plain fact, which had fallen under his observation; as whether Matthew had been accounted, from the beginning, the writer of such a Gospel, and whether he wrote it in Hebrew or in Greek.

§ 6. IT seems to be another objection to the testimony of Papias, that he adds, “ which every one interpreted as he was able:” as if he could be understood to mean, that every one was able to interpret Hebrew. This clause is an elliptical idiom of that sort, to which something similar, in familiar conversation, will be found to occur in most languages. Nobody is at a loss to perceive the meaning to be, 'For some time there was no interpretation in common use, but every one who attempted interpreting, did it the best way he could.' The manner in which this addition is made is, to me, on the contrary, a confirmation of the testimony; as it leads me to think (but in this I may be deceived,) that Papias had not from testimony this part of the information he gives; but that it was what he himself remembered, when there was no version of Matthew's Gospel generally received, but every one who could read it in its own language, Hebrew, and either in writing, or in speaking, had recourse to it, translated it as well as he could. Thus, our Scottish Highlanders may say, at this moment, that, till very lately, they had no translation of the Bible into their mother-tongue, that they had only the English Bible, which every one interpreted to them as he was able. Could a reasonable person, on hearing such a declaration, imagine that any thing had been advanced, which could be called either absurd or unintelligible?

§ 7. THE next authority I shall recur to is that of Irenæus bishop of Lyons in Gaul, who in his youth had been a disciple of Polycarp. He says¹², in the only book of his extant, that “Matthew, among the “Hebrews, wrote a Gospel in their own language, “whilst Peter and Paul were preaching the Gospel “at Rome, and founding the church there.” And in a fragment of the same author, which Grabe and others have published, it is said, “The Gospel ac“cording to Matthew was written to the Jews; for “they earnestly desired a Messiah of the posterity of “David. Matthew, in order to satisfy them on this “point, began his Gospel with the genealogy of “Jesus.”

§ 8. THE third witness to be adduced is Origen, who flourished in the former part of the third century. He is quoted by Eusebius, in a chapter¹³ wherein he specially treats of Origen's account of the sacred canon. “As I have learnt,” says Origen, “by “tradition, concerning the four Gospels, which alone “are received, without dispute, by the whole church “of God under heaven; the first was written by “Matthew, once a publican, afterwards an Apostle “of Jesus Christ, who delivered it to the Jewish be“lievers, composed in the Hebrew language. Εκδε-“ cording to tradition, wrote first, publishing his Gos“ pel to the Hebrews, or the believers who were of the “ circumcision.” Again ¹⁵, “ Matthew, writing for “ the Hebrews, who expected him who was to de“ scend from Abraham and David, says, The line“ age of Jesus Christ, son of David, son of Abra“ ham.” Let it here be observed, by the way, that the word παραδοσις, as used by ancient writers, and sometimes by the sacred penmen, does not entirely coincide in meaning with our word tradition.

 I have here, however, employed this word with the common run of interpreters, that I might not be thought desirous of saying more in the version than the original warrants. The word tradition, with us, imports, as the English lexicographer rightly explains it, “ any thing delivered orally from age to “ age :” whereas παραδοσις properly implies, “ any “ thing handed down from former ages, in whatever “ way it has been transmitted, whether by oral or “ by written testimony ; or even any instruction “ conveyed to others, either by word or by writ“ ing.” In this last acceptance we find it used in Scripture ¹⁶ : Hold the traditions, τας παραδοσεις, which ye have been taught, whether by word, or our-Epistle. It is only when the epithet αγραφος, un- written, is added to παραδοσις, that it answers exactly to the English word ; whereas all historical evidence comes under the denomination παραδοσις. In this acceptation of the term, therefore, to say we have such a thing by tradition, is the same as to say, in English, "we have this account transmitted "from former ages." In Papias and Ireneus there is no mention of tradition. They spoke of what they knew, as they had immediate and most credible attestations from those who were acquainted with the writers of the Gospels, and with every circumstance relating to the publication. Their manner of expressing themselves on this head, is that of men who had the certain knowledge of what they affirm, and therefore consider it as indisputable.

§ 9. It would be endless to bring authorities, Jerom, Augustin, Epiphanius, Chrysostom, Eusebius, and many others, all attest the same thing, and attest it in such a manner as shows that they knew it to be uncontroverted, and judged it to be incontrovertible. 'But,' say some modern disputants, 'all the witnesses you can produce in support 'of this fact may, for aught we know, be reducible 'to one. Ireneus, perhaps, has had his informa- 'tion only from Papias; and Origen from Papias 'and Ireneus; and so of all the rest downwards, 'how numerous soever; so that the whole evidence 'may be, at bottom, no more than the testimony of 'Papias.' But, is the positive evidence of witnesses, delivered as of a well-known fact, to be overturned by a mere supposition, a perhaps? for that the case was really as they suppose, no shadow of evidence is pretended. Papias is not quoted on this article by Ireneus, nor is his name mentioned, or his testimony referred to. Nor is the testimony of either urged by Origen. As to Ireneus, from the early period in which he lived, he had advantages for information little inferior to those of Papias, having been, in his younger years, well acquainted with Polycarp, the disciple of the Apostle John. Had there then subsisted any account or opinion, contradictory to the account given by Papias, Ireneus must certainly have known it, and would probably have mentioned it, either to confirm, or to confute, it. As the matter stands, we have here a perfect unanimity of the witnesses, not a single contradictory voice : no mention is there, either from those fathers, or from any other ancient writer, that ever another account of this matter had been heard of in the church. Shall we then admit a mere modern hypothesis, to overturn the foundations of all historic evidence ?

§ 10. LET it be observed that Papias, in the words quoted from him, attested two things ; that Matthew wrote the Gospel ascribed to him, and that he wrote it in Hebrew. These two points rest on the same bottom, and are equally, as matter of fact, the subjects of testimony. As to both, the authority of Papias has been equally supported by succeeding authors, and by the concurrent voice of antiquity. Now there has not any thing been advanced to invalidate his testimony, in regard to the latter of these, that may not, with equal justice, be urged, to invalidate his testimony, in regard to the former. This may be extended also to other points; for, that Mark was the writer of the Gospel commonly ascribed to him, rests ultimately on the same authority. How arbitrary then is it, where the evidence is the same, and exposed to the same objections, to admit the one without hesitation, and to reject the other? Wetstein, for removing this difficulty, has suggested a distinction, insinuating, that the former may be the testimony of Papias, the latter only his conjecture. But if the words of Papias himself be attended to, no conjecture was ever worse founded than this of Wetstein. Papias speaks of both in the same affirmative tone, as of matters of public notoriety.

I shall conclude the argument with observing, that the truth of the report, that Matthew wrote in Hebrew, is the only plausible account that can be given of the rise of that report. Certain it is, that all the prejudices of the times, particularly among the Greek Christians, were unfavourable to such an opinion. Soon after the destruction of the temple of Jerusalem, the Hebrew church, distinguished by the name Nazarene, visibly declined every day; the attachment which many of them still retained to the ceremonies of the law, in like manner the errors of the Ebionites, and other divisions which arose among them, made them soon be looked upon, by the Gentile churches, as but half-christian, at the most. That an advantage of this kind would have been so readily conceded to them by the Greeks, in opposition to all their own prejudices, can be attributed only to their full conviction of the fact.

§ 11. DR. LARDNER'S doubts (for I can discover none in Origen) are easily accounted for. Averse, on one hand, to admit that there is any book of Scripture whereof we have only a translation, and sensible of the danger of acquiescing in an argument which would unsettle the whole foundations of his system of credibility, he is inclinable to compromise the matter, by acknowledging both the Hebrew and the Greek to be originals, an opinion every way improbable, and so manifestly calculated to serve a turn, as cannot recommend it to a judicious and impartial critic. In this way of compounding matters, Whitby also, and some other disputants on the same side, seem willing to terminate the difference. Nay, even Beausobre and Lenfant, who have treated the question at more length, and with greater warmth, than most others, conclude, somewhat queerly, in this manner. "As there is no dispute affecting the foundation, that is, the authority of St. Matthew's Gospel, such as we have it, the question about the language ought to be regarded with much indifference¹⁷."

§ 12. HAVING said so much on the external evidence, I shall add but a few words, to show, that the account of this matter, given by the earliest ecclesiastical writers, is not so destitute, as some may think, of internal probability. In every thing that concerned the introduction of the new dispensation, a particular attention was for some time shown, and the preference, before every other nation, given to the Jews. Our Lord's ministry upon the earth was among them only. In the mission of the Apostles, during his own life, they were expressly prohibited from going to the Gentiles, or so much as entering any city of the Samaritans¹⁸; and when, after our Lord's resurrection, the apostolical commission was greatly enlarged, being extended to all nations throughout the world, still a sort of precedency was reserved for God's ancient people. It behoved the Messiah, said Jesus¹⁹, in his last instructions to the Apostles, to suffer, and to rise from the dead on the third day, and that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name among all nations, BEGINNING AT JERUSALEM. The orders then given were punctually executed. The Apostles remained some time in Jerusalem, preaching, and performing miracles in the name of the Lord Jesus, with wonderful success. Peter, in the conclusion of one of his discourses, without flattering his countrymen, that this dispensation of grace would, like the law, be confined to their nation, takes notice of their prerogative, in having it first offered to their acceptance. To YOU FIRST, says he²⁰, God, having raised up his Son Jesus, sent him to bless you, in turning away every one of you from his iniquities. And when the disciples began to spread their Master's doctrine through the neighbouring regions, we know that, till the illumination they received in the affair of Cornelius, which was several years after, they confined their teaching to their countrymen, the Jews. And, even after that memorable event, wherever the Apostles came, they appear first to have repaired to the synagogue, if there was a synagogue in the place, and to have addressed themselves to those of the circumcision, and afterwards to the Gentiles. What Paul and Barnabas said, to their Jewish brethren at Antioch²¹, sets this matter in the strongest light. It was NECESSARY that the word of God should FIRST HAVE BEEN SPOKEN TO YOU: but seeing ye put it from you, and judge yourselves unworthy of everlasting life, lo, we turn to the Gentiles. Have we not then reason to conclude, from the express order, as well as from the example, of our Lord, and from the uniform practice of his disciples, that it was suitable to the will of Providence, in this dispensation of grace, that every advantage should be first offered to the Jews, especially the inhabitants of Jerusalem; and that the Gospel, which had been first delivered to them by word, both by our Lord himself, and by his Aposbles, should be also first presented to them in writing, in that very dialect in which many of the readers, at the time of the publication, might remember to have heard the same sacred truths, as they came from the mouth of Him who spake as never man spake, the great oracle of the Father, the interpreter of God ?

§ 13. IF the merciful dispensation was, in effect, soon frustrated by their defection ; this is but of a piece with what happened in regard to all the other advantages they enjoyed. The sacred deposit was first corrupted among them, and afterwards it disappeared : for that the Gospel according to the Hebrews, used by the Nazarenes (to which, as' the original, Jerom sometimes had recourse²², and which, he tells us, he had translated into Greek and Latin,) and that the Gospel also used by the Ebionites, were, though greatly vitiated and interpolated, the remains of Matthew's original, will, notwithstanding the objections of Mill and others, hardly bear a reasonable doubt. Their loss of this Gospel proved the prelude to the extinction of that church. But we have reason to be thankful, that what was most valuable in the work, is not lost to the Christian community. The version we have in Greek is written with much evangelical simplicity, entirely in the idiom and manner of the Apostles. And I freely acknowledge, that if the Hebrew Gospel were still extant, such as it was in the days of Jerom, or even of Origen, we should have much more reason to confide in the authenticity of the common Greek translation than in that of an original wherewith such unbounded freedoms had been taken. The passages quoted by the ancients from the Gospel according to the Hebrews, which are not to be found in the Gospel according to Matthew, bear intrinsic marks, the most unequivocal, of the baseness of their origin.

§ 14. IT may be proper here to inquire a little more particularly what language it was that the ancient ecclesiastical writers meant by Hebrew, when they spoke of the original of this Gospel. I should have scarcely thought this inquiry necessary, had I not observed that this matter has been more misunderstood, even by authors of some eminence, than I could have imagined. Beausobre and Lenfant in particular, go so far as to argue against the probability of the fact, because, what we commonly call Hebrew, the language of the Old Testament, was not then spoken either in Palestine, or any where else, being understood only by the learned. And that the common language of the country was not meant, they conclude, from the use which Eusebius, who calls the original of Matthew's Gospel Hebrew, makes of the word Syriac, when he says of Bardasenes, that he was eloquent in the Syrian language. 'Thus,' say they, 'he knew how to distinguish between Hebrew and the language of the country, which he calls Syriac.' But in this these critics themselves have unluckily fallen into a mistake, in supposing that Syriac was, in the time of our Lord and his Apostles, or, during the subsistence of the Jewish polity, the language of Palestine. That their language, at that time, had a mixture of the Syrian language, is acknowledged; but not that it was the same. It was what Jerom very aptly calls Syro-chaldaic, having an affinity to both languages, but much more to the Chaldean than to the Syrian. It was, in short, the language which the Jews brought with them from Babylon after the captivity, blended with that of the people whom they found, at their return, in the land, and in the neighbouring regions. It is this which is invariably called Hebrew in the New Testament; I might have said, in Scripture, no language whatever being so named in the Old Testament. It is denominated Hebrew, as Lightfoot has, from some rabbinical writings, with great probability, suggested²³, because the language of the persons who returned from captivity, would readily be called, by those who possessed the land, lingua transfuviana, or transeuphratensis, the language of the people beyond the Euphrates, the river which they had passed in returning to their own country; and the name, as often happens, would be retained, when the language was much altered. We are surprised, indeed, to find this learned author, in another place²⁴, in contradiction to this, maintaining that the Syriac was the mother-tongue of the

²⁴ Hor. Heb. Matth. i. 23

Jews, after the captivity ; and still more, to observe, that he advances some things, on the subject, which will be found, if attended to, totally to subvert his argument.

§ 15. ABRAM was in Canaan called *the Hebrew*²⁵, for this reason, probably, because he was from the farther side of the great river, not because he was descended from Heber, one indeed in the line of his progenitors, but one of whom nothing remarkable is mentioned to distinguish him from the rest. Heber was neither the first after the sons of Noah, nor the immediate father of the Patriarch. Accordingly, the word is, in that passage where Abram is so named, which is the first time it occurs, rendered by the Seventy ὁ περατής transitor. The Canaanites, amongst whom he sojourned, appear to have used the name Hebrew in a manner similar to that wherein the Italians use the word Tramontani for all who live north of the Alps. The peculiarity, in respect both of religion and of customs, which continued in Abram's posterity, in the line of Jacob, and prevented them from mingling with other nations, or adopting their manners, must have been the reason why this appellation was given to the descendants in continuance, which, in strictness, was applicable to the first comers only. But, let it be observed, that, though this term was very early used of the nation, it was not applied to the language brought by Abram and his family from Ur of the Chaldees, a language which they soon lost, acquiring, in its stead, that of the Canaanites, amongst whom they lived. Abram's tongue was, doubtless, Chaldee, that of the country whence he came. But we learn from the sacred historian, that Jacob his grandson (though he could not fail to understand that language, having lived so long with Laban) spoke at home a different tongue. Laban called the heap which they had raised Jegar-sahadutha: but Jacob called it *Galeed*²⁶. Both names signify the same thing, the heap of testimony, the former being Chaldee, the latter what is now always called Hebrew, but then, the language of Canaan.

I have observed already, that the language of the Old Testament, which we now always call Hebrew, is never so called in Scripture, neither in the Old Testament, nor in the New. This is a strong presumption that it was not anciently so named by any body, and that if any language had been in the Old Testament named Hebrew, it would have been the Chaldee, agreeably to the etymology of the word Hebrew, the language of those who lived beyond the Euphrates. This, however, might be accounted no more than a presumption, perhaps but a plausible conjecture, if the language of the Israelites were not repeatedly mentioned in the Old Testament by other names. It is commonly called there *the Jews language*²⁷, and in one place, the language of Ca- *naan*²⁸. That in after-times the ancient Jewish tongue, which was often named the holy language, was also called Hebrew, is not denied. Josephus, in particular, names it so²⁹, in relating the message of Rabshakeh from the king of Assyria to king Hezekiah above referred to, as he uses the word Ἑβραϊστὶ, in Hebrew, where the sacred historian has said יהודית Jehudith, and the Seventy Ἰσθαῖστὶ, in the Jews language. But this is long posterior to the finishing of the canon of the Old Testament; for Josephus did not write till after the destruction of Jerusalem, towards the end of the first Christian century. In the prologue to the Book of Ecclesiasticus, the term Ἑβραϊστὶ is likewise used, but it is not certain in what acceptation. By the account given there, that book was translated into Greek in the time of Ptolemy Evergetes king of Egypt, by Jesus, who was the son of Sirach, and the grandson of Jesus the author. As the original, therefore, must have been written long after the captivity, it is much more probable that it was composed in the dialect spoken in Palestine at the time, than that it was written in a dead language, understood only by the learned, and consequently that the word occurs, in that prologue, in the same acceptation wherein it is always used in the New Testament. It has, in my judgment, been proved beyond contradiction by the learned, particularly Bochart³⁰, Walton³¹, and Le Clerc³², that the language of the Old Testament is no other than the native tongue of the Canaanites, which, in Greek writers, is called Phenician, and did not materially differ from the dialect of the Tyrians, Sidonians, and Carthaginians. Canaan is rendered by the Seventy³³ φοινικη Phenicia. A Canaanitish woman *φοινισση*³⁴, a Phenician woman, and the land of Canaan is called *ἡ χώρα των φοινικων*³⁵, the country of the Phenicians. And even in the New Testament we have a plain proof that the names were used promiscuously, inasmuch as the person who is called by one Evangelist a woman of Canaan³⁶, is denominated by another Evangelist a Syrophenician³⁷.

§ 16. AT the same time it ought to be remarked that the language of Chaldea, which, before the captivity, seems never to have been denominated Hebrew, was always, by the Jews, distinguished by some other name. The most common was that which, in the English translation, after the Septuagint and the Vulgate, is rendered Syrian, but is in the original ארמית Aramith. It is so called in some of the places above quoted, and in like manner by Ezra³⁸. The Oriental name Aram, though commonly rendered Syria, does not exactly correspond in meaning to this word, at least in the use made of it in latter times. The boundary of Syria on the east, when the name came to be used in a more confined manner, was the river Euphrates; whereas Aram comprehended large tracts of country beyond the river, as Mesopotamia, Chaldea, Assyria. Syria was included, but it made only a part. Now the Jewish language was so different from this, that it is manifest the common people anciently in Judea understood nothing of Aramic or Chaldee. For a proof of this we need recur only to some of the places above referred to³⁹. Further, it is of the same people, the Chaldeans, that the Prophet speaks in this prediction⁴⁰: Lo, I will bring a nation upon you from afar, O house of Israel, saith the Lord; it is a mighty nation, it is an ancient nation, a nation whose language thou knowest not, neither understandest what they say.

§ 17. BUT, it may be said, since the name Aram included the country commonly called Syria, and was equally applicable to it as to any other part, and since the word Aramith was employed to denote the language of the whole; the Syrian and the Chaldean must have been one and the same language. That they were so originally, I am fully convinced. In process of time, however, from the different fates to which the eastern parts, and the western, of that once great empire were subjected, there gradually sprang up a considerable difference between them, insomuch that, in latter times, they may, not unfitly, be denominated different languages ; though still they have more affinity to each other than any other two of the Oriental tongues. The same language is called also very properly ⁴¹, the tongue of the Chaldeans. Now as the Jews, when they returned from captivity, brought a dialect of this language with them into their own country, it suited their national pride to adopt such a general name as Hebrew, which, though it may signify, when explained from etymology, the language spoken beyond the river, would be generally understood to denote the language of the people called Hebrews, a name by which their nation had been distinguished from the beginning. This appellation, therefore, must appear more eligible to them, than any name which would serve more directly to remind themselves and others, that they had lived so long in subjection to another people ; a disagreeable effect, which could not fail to result from their calling the language they had adopted Chaldee, Babylonian, or even the language of Aram. Besides, to have called it so, would have confounded it with a language considerably different.

§ 18. WE have no reason to consider the dialect which the Jews introduced into Judea, on their return from the Babylonish captivity, as entirely pure. But in whatever state it might have been at first, it cannot be imagined that its purity could have been preserved five hundred years, especially considering the great variety of calamities, as well as the different species of tyranny which the nation experienced in that interval. The language of the neighbours, and of those who, from the circumjacent countries, had, during the people's absence, possessed the land, which was chiefly Syriac, would have a considerable share in the ordinary speech. With these we might expect to find a mixture of Persic, Greek, and Latin, words, as Judea had been successively subjected to the Macedonians, the Persians, and the Romans. Exactly such it is found to have been in the time of our Saviour. What, therefore, is called Hebrew, in the New Testament, and by the earliest fathers, is not the language of the Scriptures of the Old Testament, spoken by the Jews in Palestine before the captivity; it is not the Chaldee spoken in Babylon; neither is it the Syriac spoken in the neighbouring country of Syria; but it is a dialect formed of all the three languages, chiefly the two last blended together, and which is therefore properly denominated Syro-Chaldaic, as having a great affinity to both, and, at the same time, retaining much of the old Hebrew idiom.—After the destruction of Jerusalem, the extinction of the Jewish polity, and the dispersion of the people by the Romans, their particular dialect fell quickly into disuse; and Syriac, the language of the province (for to Syria Palestine had before now been annexed), became soon the prevailing language of the whole country. This will perhaps, in part, account for the undoubted fact, that a correct copy of Matthew's original was in a short time nowhere to be found. The very dialect shared in the fate of the people, and did not long survive their city and temple.

§ 19. FURTHER, that the language of the Syriac version of the New Testament (though justly accounted much nearer to the language used by our Lord and his Apostles than that of any other version now extant) is not properly the same language, may be proved from that very translation itself; where we sometimes, not always, find a difference between the words which the sacred writers have retained in their original form, and those employed by the Syriac interpreter. In some cases, I admit, they are the same. Thus, the Evangelist Mark has given, in his Gospel⁴², the original expression, Talitha cumi, used by our Lord, adding the interpretation into Greek. The Syriac translator employs also the original expression, but adds no interpretation, finding that it suits equally the Syrian language, as that which in the New Testament is called Hebrew. Nay, the same expression is used, in another Gospel in the Syriac⁴³, where the Evangelist had not, as Mark, introduced the original words. Also many words, as rabbi and abba, are the same in both. This may likewise be said of the word *Ephphatha*⁴⁴ (though spelt a little differently)

⁴² ch. v. 41.

⁴⁴ Mark, vii. 34.

to which no interpretation is added in the Syriac version. The small difference in spelling ought to be ascribed solely to the Greek original, and not to any variation in the Syriac from the Hebrew. It was customary, in writing Greek, to make such alterations on foreign words introduced, as suited the Grecian orthography. Hence the many changes in the Septuagint, on the names of the Old Testament. As to some proper names, which have the signification of appellatives, Cephas being of the same import in both languages, needed not an interpretation in Syriac as in Greek⁴⁵. On the name Thomas there was an inconsiderable difference. What was Thaoma in the dialect of Jerusalem, was, in proper Syrian Thama. This interpretation is thrice given in the Syriac version of John's Gospel⁴⁶, as answering to the Greek Διδυμος, twin. Boanerges⁴⁷, Acladama⁴⁸, and Golgotha⁴⁹, are all translated by that interpreter, who would not have made this distinction, with regard to them, if he had thought them equally intelligible to Syrian readers, with the terms whereof he has given no explanation. As to the change made by that interpreter on the cry, Eli, eli, uttered by our Lord on the cross, I must refer the reader to the notes on the passages⁵⁰ where it is mentioned. On the name *Siloam*⁵¹, a small alteration is made; and no interpretation is added, as in the Greek, because the word, so altered, conveys the same meaning in Syriac, which Siloam did in the dialect of Jerusalem, and consequently needs no interpretation. All these observations serve to show both the affinity of the two languages, and their difference. The difference, in my judgment, was enough to render one of them unintelligible to those who were accustomed only to the other; and the affinity was so great, as to render a very little practice sufficient to qualify those who spoke the one, for understanding the other. Whether the same may not be said of some northern European tongues, as German, Dutch, Danish, and Swedish, or even of those of the southern regions, as French, Italian, Portugueze, and Spanish, I leave to those, who are best acquainted with these languages, to determine.

§ 20. I SHALL add only one remark more for evincing the difference between the language called Hebrew in the New Testament, and the Syriac: it is this, that the name always given to Syria, in the Syriac version, is not Aram, as in the Old Testament, but סוריא Suria; whence, according to analogy, the name appropriated to the language is סוריית *Suriaith*⁵²; whereas Ἑβραϊσι, in the Greek New Testament, or τη Ἑβραϊδι διαλεκτω, is never rendered Suriaith, but Ghibraith. See the passages quoted in the margin ⁵³; in some of which, we have both the name itself, in what is called Hebrew, the language of the place, and, for the sake of the Syriac reader, an interpretation of the name into that tongue. This shows evidently, that the Hebrew word had no currency with them, as it needed an explanation. Nay more, in the postscript subjoined to the Syriac version of this Gospel, the language in which Matthew wrote and preached, is not termed Suriaith, but Ghibraith ⁵⁴. Let it be observed, that I urge this, not as a testimony of the fact, (as a testimony it is not needed, and would be of very little consequence,) but solely, to mark the distinction observed in the application of the words Syriac and Hebrew. But, enough for showing that the language called Hebrew by the writers of the New Testament, is not the same with the language of the Old Testament, which is never in Scripture called Hebrew; that it is neither pure Syriac nor Chaldee, but that it approaches nearest the last of these, though with a considerable mixture of the other two. An attention to these things will serve to show, how ill-founded many things are, which have been advanced on this subject, by Basnage, Beausobre, and others ⁵⁵.

⁵⁵ In a late celebrated work, an hypothesis is hinted which

differs from all the preceding. "Did Christ," says Mr. Gibbon, Vol. 4. p. 381. N. 131, "speak the rabbinical or "Syriac tongue?" The latter part of this question is answered already: to the former the answer is plain. No such tongue was known then as the rabbinical. This dialect, which owes its origin to the dispersion of the Jews, after the destruction of Jerusalem, by the Romans, was never the language of the people anywhere: its use was solely among the Jewish doctors or rabbies, whence it has its name. The language of the people would, after they were scattered through Europe, Asia, and Africa, soon be supplanted by the languages of the different regions into which they were dispersed. As to those Jews who were qualified for study, they had the strongest inducements to make the language of the Old Testament the principal object of their attention. The constant use of it in their synagogues served both as a spur to the study, and as an help in the acquisition. When use had rendered it familiar to them, nothing could be more natural than to employ it as the medium of correspondence with their learned countrymen in distant lands. They had no other common language; and this had one advantage (of great moment to them, considering the unchristian treatment they commonly met with from christian nations) that nobody understood it but themselves. From using it, at first, in conveying their remarks on the sacred text, they came gradually to extend it to the discussion of other topics, historical, philosophical, &c. It will easily be conceived that, having no standard but the O. T. they would be often at a loss for words; for however rich that language may, originally, have been, it is but a small part of its treasure which can be contained in so narrow a compass. How much would one of us find himself embarrassed in composing in Eng-ment from the authority of such opinions ; and even when their testimony favours their prejudices, there is still ground for abatement, though in a less de-lish, if limited to the words employed in the common translation of the Old Testament. The rabbies, to rid themselves of this difficulty, had recourse to two expedients. One was, to form, analogically, from biblical roots, derivatives, to the meaning of which, the analogy of the formation would prove a sufficient guide. Thus from verbs occurring only in the conjugation kal, they form regularly the niphal, hiphil, hophal, and hitpael; also verbal nouns, participles, &c. From abstracts they form concretes, and conversely. There is reason to believe that many of those words are genuine Hebrew, though in the few ancient books extant they do not occur. But whether genuine or not, was of little consequence, as the regular formation rendered them intelligible. Their other expedient was (what, in some degree, is used by writers in every tongue, when in a strait) to adopt words from other languages. The chief resources of the rabbies have been Chaldaic, Arabic, Greek, and Latin: they do not reject entirely the aid of modern tongues. The Grammar of the rabbinical, is that of the ancient Hebrew. The Lexicon of the former contains that of the latter, and a good deal more. To illustrate the difference by a comparison, I hardly think that the rabbinical differs so much from the Hebrew of the Old Testament as the Latin of the 7th and 8th centuries differs from that of the Augustine age. Though the question as proposed by Mr. Gibbon, has no relation to the language of Matthew's Gospel: yet, as it is natural to conclude, (and I am persuaded, is the fact,) that the language spoken by our Lord was that in which Matthew wrote, I have thought it reasonable to take this notice of it, knowing that the slightest suggestions of a writer of eminence, rarely fail to make an impression on some readers.

gree ; men not being so easily misled in matters of testimony, as in matters of opinion. The contrary holds, when either the opinion, or the testimony given, is unfavourable to the prejudices of the person who gives it. Such, doubtless, was the case of the ancient Gentile Christians, when they gave a testimony which, in any respect, favoured the pretensions of the Nazarenes. Their testimony is itself, at least, a strong presumption of their impartiality, and of the justice of a rival claim. The reverse is the natural presumption in regard to the opinion of a modern disputant, when that opinion serves manifestly to support a favourite tenet, controverted by an adverse sect. This consideration will be found greatly to diminish the weight, if it can be said to have any weight, of what has been advanced on this head, in latter ages, against the uniform suffrage of antiquity.

§ 22. THAT this Gospel was composed by one born a Jew, familiarly acquainted with the opinions, ceremonies, and customs, of his countrymen ; that it was composed by one conversant in the sacred writings, and habituated to their idiom ; a man of plain sense, but of little or no learning, except what he derived from the Scriptures of the Old Testament ; and, finally, that it was the production of a man who wrote seriously, and from conviction ; who as, on most occasions, he had been present, had attended closely to the facts and speeches which he related ; but who, in writing, entertained not the most distant view of setting off himself by the relation ; we have as strong internal evidence as the nature of the thing will admit ; and much stronger than that wherein the mind, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, acquiesces. Now, exactly such a man the Apostle and Evangelist Matthew must have been ; of whom, as we have seen, we have an historical proof, quite unexceptionable, that he was the author.

§ 23. THAT this history was primarily intended for the use of his countrymen the Jews, we have, in aid of historical evidence, very strong presumptions, from the tenor of the book itself. Every circumstance is carefully pointed out, which might conciliate the faith of that nation ; every unnecessary expression is avoided, which might, in any way, serve to obstruct it. To come to particulars : there was no sentiment relating to the Messiah, with which the Jews were more strongly possessed, than that he must be of the race of Abram, and of the family of David ; Matthew, therefore, with great propriety, begins his narrative with the genealogy of Jesus. That he should be born at Bethlehem, in Judea, is another circumstance, in which the learned among the Jews of those times were universally agreed. His birth in that city, with some very memorable circumstances that attended it, this historian has also taken the first opportunity to mention. Those passages in the Prophets, or other sacred books, which either foretell any thing that should happen to him, or admit an allusive application, or were, in that age, generally understood to be applicable to events which concern the Messiah, are never passed over in silence, by this Evangelist. The fulfilment of prophecy was always to the Jews, convinced of the inspiration of their sacred writings, a principal topic of argument. Accordingly, none of the Evangelists has been more careful than Matthew, that nothing of this kind should be overlooked. And, though the quality I am going to mention, is not always to be discovered in modern translations, none of the sacred penmen has more properly avoided the unnecessary introduction of any term offensive to his countrymen ⁵⁶.

§ 24. THAT we find so much of this kind in the Greek, has been urged by some, as an argument, that it is the original of this Gospel, though, in fact, it proves no more, than that it is either the original, or a close translation; for other acknowledged versions can be produced, in which this circumstance is equally observable. In regard to this, I frankly own that the Greek, in my judgment, has not many of those peculiarities which may be called marks of translation. That which might chiefly appear such to a critic, is no other than what might naturally be expected in a Jewish original, on the subject of religion, written in that age and country. The quality I allude to, is the frequent recurrence of the Oriental idiom, in which Matthew, I believe, will not be found to abound more than the other Evangelists, Mark, Luke, and John, who, by the acknowledgment of all parties, wrote in Greek. Some other arguments of this kind, as, that the quotations from the Old Testament are generally in the words of the Septuagint, that the words used on certain occasions, by our Lord, are retained and explained, are fully answered by Simon⁵⁷, to whom, that I may not prove tedious, I must refer the reader.

§ 25. THERE is, however, one argument from the language, and but one, that has occurred to my observation, which forms, at least, a presumption that the Greek is a version. Though the sacred writers, in that language, sometimes retain in their narratives, without adding an explanation, a memorable Oriental word, in frequent use among the people, are known to all connected with them, such as Hosanna, Hallelujah; we never find, in the moral or didactic part, any thing introduced, from a different tongue, which renders the import of a precept unintelligible to those unacquainted with the tongue. Indeed, in the history, the very words spoken (to impress those more strongly who happen to understand them) are, though seldom, sometimes mentioned, but they are always accompanied with an interpretation, that no reader may be at a loss for the meaning. Such are Ephphatha, Tali- tha cumi, and the exclamation on the cross. But the prohibition of what is criminal, and that under a severe sanction, where the crime itself is expressed in an unknown tongue, and left unexplained, is totally without a parallel in holy writ. Of this we have an example in the words thus rendered in the common version⁵⁸: Whosoever shall say to his brother, RACA, shall be in danger of the council: but whosoever shall say, THOU FOOL, shall be in danger of hell fire. I think, with Dr. Sykes, that ραχα, in this place, ought to be understood as an Oriental, and not a Greek word, as well as ραχα; for מרה moreh, is actually such a word, and could not be represented otherwise in the Greek character. The English translators, therefore, had the same reason for rendering the latter clause, Whosoever shall say Moreh, that they had for rendering the former clause, Whosoever shall say Raca. It is, at least, presumable, that the same caution which led the writer to preserve the original term in one member of this sentence, would lead him also to preserve it in the other, more especially as this is the clause which contains the severest threatening.

Besides, our finding that this word is a term of reproach in the dialect of Palestine, as well as the other, adds greatly to the probability, that it was so understood by the writer. Moreover, if this be interpreted as a Greek word, and rendered thou fool, it will coincide with raca, stultus, fatuus, which can hardly be rendered otherwise; whereas, there is evidently intended here, a gradation in the crimes, as there is a gradation in the punishments. Now, let it be observed, that this manner, in such a case as the present, suits more the excessive scrupulosity of a translator, than the simplicity and plainness of an inspired writer, who means to instruct his readers in every duty, and to warn them against every danger. Did the sacred penmen find it necessary to employ Oriental terms, because those reproachful names had nothing equivalent to them in the Greek language, and consequently, because those who spoke Greek, not being susceptible of the guilt, implied in using those words, were in no danger of incurring the punishment? This is too absurd to be believed by any body. There is no language, ancient or modern, in which abuse may not be uttered; and indignation, contempt, and abhorrence, signified, in the highest degree. In such a case, therefore, it would be unaccountable and unparalleled in an inspired author to adopt terms unintelligible to the people whose language he writes, and leave them unexplained; but this manner is not at all to be wondered at in a translator, especially when we consider how apt the early translators among the Jews were to carry their scruples this way to excess. I had occasion to observe before⁵⁹, that one of the greatest difficulties in translating, is to find words in one language, that perfectly correspond to those of another, which relate to manners and sentiments. In most other matters there is, comparatively, but little difficulty. The word moreh, here used by the Evangelist, differs only in number from morim, the compellation with which Moses and Aaron addressed the people of Israel, when they said ⁶⁰, with manifest and indecent passion, as rendered in the English Bible, Hear, now, YE REBELS, and were, for their punishment, not permitted to enter the land of Canaan. The word, however, as it is oftner used to imply rebellion against God than against any earthly sovereign; and as it includes disbelief of his word, as well as disobedience to his command, I think better rendered in this place miscreant, which is also, like the original term, expressive of the greatest abhorrence and detestation. In this way translated, the gradation of crimes, as well as of punishments, is preserved, and the impropriety avoided, of delivering a moral precept, of consequence to men of all denominations, in words intelligible only to the learned.

Dr. Owen remarks that the Syriac interpreter did not take the word in this sense; for, though he retains raca untranslated, he renders moreh by a word that signifies fool. But this difficulty vanishes on reflecting that the language of Palestine, as has been shown, was not then Syriac; though it contained a considerable mixture of Syrian words. Now, as that interpreter translated from the Greek, he must have been sensible that ραξα was not Greek but Syriac, and that its meaning suited the scope of the passage. It, therefore, needed no translation in a Syriac book. On the contrary, he must have perceived that μωρε is a Greek word, a term of reproach, and consequently, in some measure, suiting the scope of the passage. But, if faith is due to our best lexicons, (the Heptaglotton of Castellus, in particular) it is not, in this acceptation, Syriac, though it is both Hebrew and Chaldean. That the Syriac interpreter should, in translating a Greek book, consider μωρε as Greek, which he knew not to be Syriac, and should translate it accordingly, is not more surprising than that the Latin, or any other interpreter, should do so. But this is no reason why those who know that the connection which the dialect of Judea had with the ancient Hebrew and Chaldaic, was, at least, not inferior to that which it had with Syriac, should not recur to those tongues, as well as to the latter, for light in doubtful cases. So much for Matthew's language.

§ 26. As the sacred writers, especially the Evangelists, have many qualities in common, so there is something in every one of them, which, if attended to, will be found to distinguish him from the rest. That which principally distinguishes Matthew, is the distinctness and particularity with which he has related many of our Lord's discourses and moral instructions. Of these his sermon on the mount, his charge to the Apostles, his illustrations of the nature of his kingdom, and his prophecy on mount Olivet, are examples. He has also wonderfully united simplicity and energy in relating the replies of his Master to the cavils of his adversaries. He has, at the same time, his peculiarities in point of diction. Of these I know none more remarkable than the phrase ἡ Βασιλεια των υρανω, the kingdom, or reign of heaven, which is used by him about thirty times, and by no other sacred writer. The other Evangelists, in parallel passages, always say ἡ Βασιλεια του Θεου, the kingdom, or reign of God, an expression which occurs only five times in Matthew. Being early called to the apostleship, he was an eye and ear witness of most of the things which he relates. And, though I do not think it was the scope of any of these historians, to adjust their narratives by the precise order of time wherein the events happened; there are some circumstances which incline me to think, that Matthew has approached at least as near that order as any of them. They do not call their works histories; and as to the import of the title ευαγγελιον commonly given, it is, in this application, well explained by Justin Martyr, a writer of the second century, who makes it equivalent to απομνημονευματα, memorable things, or memoirs, according to the explanation of this word given by Johnson, which he defines, An account of transactions familiarly written.

§ 27. IT has been shown, that we have reason to consider Matthew's Greek Gospel, which we at present possess, as a version from the original, written in the language spoken in Palestine in our Lord's time, and during the subsistence of the Jewish commonwealth. But as to the translator, nothing but conjecture has ever been advanced by the learned. The obscurity in which the question about the translator lies, can nowise affect the credibility of the fact, that it is a translation. Who ever doubted that the Syriac New Testament, and the old Italic, are translations? Yet the translators are equally unknown with the Greek interpreter of Matthew's Hebrew Gospel. This is oftenest the case with ancient versions; and we have reason to believe that the present is very ancient, it having been made before those freedoms were taken with the original, which have justly brought dishonour on the Nazarene and the Ebionite copies.

§ 28. THAT Matthew's Gospel was the first published, is another opinion, as was hinted already, which rests on the concurrent voice of antiquity, the same foundation with that on which our belief is built that Matthew was the author, and that the language in which he wrote his Gospel, was that kind of Hebrew which was spoken at that time in Judea. Notice was taken of Matthew's Gospel, and of Mark's, very early in the church, and before we find any direct mention of Luke's and of John's. The first who expressly mentions all the four Evangelists, is Ireneus, who mentions them as having written in the same order wherein they appear to have been arranged in the Bible in his time, and wherein they have continued ever since. Some transcribers have, indeed, affected to arrange them differently, putting the two Apostles before the other two, who were only Evangelists. But they seem to have done this, from an opinion of the comparative rank of the writers, without controverting the order in which the Gospels were written. In the Cambridge manuscript, which is followed by some other manuscripts less considerable, the order is Matthew, John, Luke, Mark. But Matthew's title to the first place does not appear, in any view of the matter, ever to have been questioned among the ancients. Some, of late, have thought themselves warranted to assign the priority in point of time to the Evangelist Luke. Their reasons for this opinion I shall consider in the preface to that Gospel.

VI. TAKE heed that ye perform not your religious duties before men, in order to be observed by them ; otherwise ye will obtain no reward from your Father who is in heaven.

2 When, therefore, thou givest alms, do not proclaim it by sound of trumpet, as the hypocrites do, in the assemblies and in the streets ; that they may be extolled by men. Verily, I say unto you they

3 have received their reward. But thou, when thou givest alms, let not thy left hand know what thy 4 right hand doth ; that thine alms may be in secret ; and thy Father, to whom nothing is secret, will himself recompense thee.

5 And when thou prayest, be not like the hypocr crites, who affect to pray standing in the assemblies, and at the corners of the streets, that men may observe them. Verily I say unto you, they have 6 received their reward. But thou, when thou wouldst pray, retire to thy closet; and, having shut the door, pray to thy Father; and thy Father, to whom, though he is unseen himself, nothing is 7 secret, will recompense thee. And in prayer, talk

10 fore, pray ye: 'Our Father, who art in heaven, 11 'thy name be hallowed; thy reign come; thy will

'us to-day our daily bread; forgive us our debts 13 'as we forgive our debtors; and abandon us not 'to temptation, but preserve us from evil. [For ' thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the others their trespasses, your heavenly Father will 15 also forgive you: but if ye forgive not others their

Mar. 11; 25. 16 trespasses.
Ja. 2; 13. 16 Moreover, when ye fast, look not dismal, as the hypocrites, who disfigure their faces, that men may observe that they fast. Verily I say unto you, they
fastest, anoint thy head, and wash thy face; that thy fasting may not appear to men, but to thy 18 Father; and thy Father, to whom, though he is unseen himself, nothing is secret, will recompense thee.

- 19 AMASS not for yourselves treasure upon the earth, where moths or rust may consume it, or 20 thieves breaking in may steal it. But provide for yourselves treasure in heaven, where are neither moths nor rust to consume it, nor thieves to break 21 in and steal it. For where your treasure is, your 22 heart will also be. The lamp of the body is the eye. If, therefore, thine eye be sound, thy whole 23 body will be enlightened: but if thine eye be distempered, thy whole body will be dark. And if even the light which is in thee be darkness;
 how great will the darkness be?
- 24 A man cannot serve two masters; for either he will hate one, and love the other; or at least will attend one, and neglect the other. Ye cannot serve 25 God and ¹² Mammon. Therefore I charge you; be not anxious about your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink; nor about your body, what ye shall wear. Is not life a greater gift than food; 26 and the body than raiment? Observe the fowls of heaven. They neither sow nor reap. They have no storehouse: but your heavenly Father feedeth 27 them. Are not ye much more valuable than they?
 Besides; which of you can by his anxiety prolong his life one hour? And why are ye anxious about raiment? Mark the lilies of the field. How do they ¹² Riches.

29 grow ? They toil not : they spin not. Yet I affirm that even Solomon, in all his glory, was not equal-30 ly adorned with one of these. If then God so array the herbage which to-day is in the field, and to-morrow will be cast into the oven ; will he not 31 much more array you, O ye distrustful ! Therefore say not anxiously, as the heathens do, What shall we eat ; or what shall we drink ; or wherewith shall we be clothed ? For your heavenly Fa-33 ther knoweth that ye need all these things. But seek first the kingdom of God and the righteousness required by him ; and all these things shall 34 be superadded to you. Be not then anxious about the morrow : the morrow will be anxious about itself. Sufficient for every day is its own trouble.

 judge, ye shall be judged ; and with the measure 3 wherewith ye give, ye shall receive. And why observest thou the mote in thy brother's eye, but 4 art insensible of the thorn in thine own eye ? Or how darest thou say to thy brother, ' Let me take the mote out of thine eye ; ' thou who hast a thorn 5 in thine own ? Hypocrite, first take the thorn out of thine own eye ; then thou wilt see to take the mote out of thy brother's eye.

SECTION VI.

THE CHARACTER OF THE TIMES.

- Lu. 7; 18. 2 NOW John having heard in prison of the works of the Messiah, sent two of his disciples, who asked him, Art thou he that cometh, or must we expect another? Jesus answering, said unto them, Go and relate to John what ye have heard and seen. The blind are made to see, the lame to walk, the deaf to hear; lepers are cleansed; the dead are raised, and good news is brought to the poor: and happy is he, to whom I shall not prove a stumbling block.

Yea, I tell you, and something superior to a prophet: For this is he concerning whom it is written, "Behold I send mine angel before thee, who shall prepare thy way."* Verily I say unto you, among those that are born of women, there hath not

- arisen a greater than John the Baptist. Yet the least in the reign of heaven shall be greater than he. Lu. 16; 16.
- 12 From the first appearing of John the Baptist until now, the kingdom of heaven is invaded, and invaders take possession by force. For till John appeared, all the Prophets and the law were your instructors; and if ye will bear to be told it, this is the Elijah that was to come. Whoever hath ears Mal. 4; 5. to hear, let him hear.
- 16 But to what shall I liken this generation? It is Lu. 7; 31 like boys in the market-place, to whom their play-fellows complain, saying, 'We have played to you upon the pipe, but ye have not danced; we have sung mournful songs to you, but ye have not lamented.' For John came abstaining from meat and drink, and they say, 'He hath a demon;' the Son of Man came using meat and drink, and they say, 'He is a lover of banquets and wine, a companion of publicans and sinners.' But wisdom is justified by her children.
- 20 Then he began to reproach the cities wherein most of his miracles had been performed, because Lu. 10; 13
- 21 they repented not. Wo unto thee Chorazin, wo unto thee Bethsaida; for if the miracles which have been performed in you, had been performed in Tyre and Sidon, they had repented long ago in sackcloth and ashes. Know, therefore, that the condition of Tyre and Sidon, on the day of judgment, shall be more tolerable than yours. And thou Capernaum, which hast been exalted to heaven, shalt be brought down to hades; for if the miracles which have been performed in thee, had been performed in Sodom, it had remained until 24 now. Know, therefore, that the condition of Sodom, on the day of judgment, shall be more tolerable than thine.

PARABLES.

flocked about him, that he went into a bark, and sat down there, while all the people stood on the in parables.

4 THE sower, said he, went out to sow; and in Mar. 4; 3. sowing, some seeds fell by the way-side, and the Lu. 8; 4.
 5 birds came and picked them up: some fell on rocky ground where they had little earth: these sprang up the sooner, because the soil had no 6 depth: but after the sun had beaten upon them, they were scorched, and having no root, withered 7 away. Some fell among thorns, and the thorns 8 grew up and choked them. Others fell into good ground, and yielded increase, some a hundred, 9 some sixty, some thirty fold. Whoever hath ears to hear, let him hear.

23 fruitful. But that which fell into good soil, and bore fruit, some a hundred, some sixty, some thirty fold, denoteth him who not only heareth and mindeth, but obeyeth the word.

24 Another parable he proposed to them, saying,
The kingdom of heaven may be compared to a field in which the proprietor had sown good grain :
25 but while people were asleep, his enemy came, and sowed darnel among the wheat, and went off.
26 When the blade was up, and putting forth the ear, 27 then appeared also the darnel. And the servants came and said to their master, ‘ Sir, thou sowedst ‘ good grain in thy field ; whence, then, hath it 28 ‘ darnel ? ’ He answered, ‘ An enemy hath done this. ’ They said, ‘ Wilt thou, then, that we weed 29 them out ? ’ He replied, ‘ No ; lest in weeding out 30 ‘ the darnel, ye tear up also the wheat. Let both ‘ grow together until the harvest ; and in the time ‘ of harvest, I will say to the reapers, First gather ‘ the darnel, and make them into bundles for burn‘ ing ; then carry the wheat into my barn. ’

31 Another similitude he proposed to them, saying, Mar. 4; 31.
Lu. 13; 19.
The kingdom of heaven is like a grain of mustard-32 seed, which a man set in his field ; for though it is the smallest of all seeds, it is, when grown, larger than any herb, and becometh a tree, so that the birds of the air take shelter in its branches.

33 Another similitude he gave them : Lu. 13; 21.
The kingdom of heaven is like leaven which a woman mingled in three measures of meal until the whole was leavened.

44 Again, the kingdom of heaven is like treasure hid in a field, which, when a man hath discovered, he concealeth the discovery, and for joy thereof, selleth all that he hath, and buyeth that field.

45 Again, the kingdom of heaven is like a pearl extremely precious, which a merchant, who was in quest of fine pearls, having met with, sold all that he had and purchased it.

47 Again, the kingdom of heaven is like a sweep-net cast into the sea, which incloseth fishes of and gather the good into vessels, but throw the 49 useless away. So shall it be at the conclusion of this state. The angels will come and sever the wicked from among the righteous, and throw them 50 into the burning furnace. Weeping and gnashing of teeth shall be there.

7 For nation will arise against nation ; and kingdom against kingdom ; and there shall be famines and pestilences, and earthquakes in sundry places. Mar. 13 ; 8. Lu. 21 ; 10. ch. 10 ; 17. Jo. 16 ; 2.

8 Yet these are but the prelude of woes. For they will consign you to torments and to death, and ye shall be hated by all nations on my account. Then many will be ensnared, and will betray their fellows, and hate them. And many false prophets will arise, who will seduce many. And because vice will abound, the love of the greater number will cool. But the man who persevereth to the end shall be saved. And this good tidings of the reign shall be published through all the world, for the information of all nations. And then shall come the end.

15 When, therefore, ye shall see, on holy ground, the desolating abomination foretold by the Prophet Daniel, (Reader attend !) then let those in Judea flee to the mountains ; let not him who shall be upon the house-top, come down to carry things out of his house ; and let not him who shall be in the field, return to take his mantle. But woe unto the women with child, and unto them that give suck in those days. Pray therefore that your flight happen not in the winter, nor on the Sabbath ; because there shall be then so great tribulation, as hath not been since the beginning of the world

 hour knoweth none but my Father, no not the 37 Now that which happened in Noah's time, will Lu. 17 ; 26.

 38 also happen at the coming of the Son of Man. For as in the days before the flood, even to that day that Noah entered the ark, they were eating and 39 drinking and marrying, and suspected nothing, until the flood came and swept them all away : so shall it also be at the coming of the Son of Man.

48 But as to the vicious servant, who shall say within 51 at an hour he is not apprized of, and having discarded him, will assign him his portion with the perfidious. Weeping and gnashing of teeth shall be there.

XXV. Then may the kingdom of heaven be compared to ten virgins, who went out with their lamps to 2 meet the bridegroom. Of these five were prudent, 3 and five foolish. The foolish took their lamps, but 4 carried no oil with them. But the prudent, beside 5 their lamps, carried oil in their vessels. While the bridegroom tarried, they all became drowsy and fell 6 asleep. And at midnight a cry was raised : ‘ The ‘ bridegroom is coming, go out and meet him.’
 7 Then all the virgins arose and trimmed their lamps.
 8 And the foolish said to the prudent, ‘ Give us of 9 ‘ your oil ; for our lamps are going out.’ But the prudent answered, saying, ‘ Lest there be not ‘ enough for us and you ; go rather to them who 10 ‘ sell, and buy for yourselves.’ While they went to buy, the bridegroom came, and those who were ready, went in with him to the marriage, and the 11 door was shut. Afterwards came also the other virgins, saying, ‘ Master, master, open unto us.’

14 For the Son of Man is like one who, intending to travel, called his servants, and committed to 15 them his stock; to one he gave five talents⁴¹, to another two, and to another one; to each according to his respective ability, and immediately 16 set out. Then he who had received the five talents, went and traded with them, and gained other 17 five. Likewise he who had received two, gained 18 other two. Whereas he who had received but one, digged a hole in the ground, and hid his 19 master's money. After a long time, their master 20 returned and reckoned with them. Then he who had received the five talents, came and presented other five, saying, 'Sir, thou deliverdst to me ' five talents: here they are, and other five which 21 ' I have gained.' His master answered, ' Well ' done, good and faithful servant, thou hast been ' faithful in a small matter, I will give thee a 42 indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak. A second time he withdrew, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if there be no exemption for me; if I must 43 drink this cup, thy will be done. Upon his return, he again found them sleeping, for their eyes were 44 overpowered. Again, leaving them, he went and 45 prayed the third time, using the same words. Then he came back to his disciples, and said to them, Sleep on now, and take your rest: behold the hour approacheth, when the Son of Man must be 46 delivered into the hands of sinners. Arise, let us be going; lo! he who betrayeth me is at hand.

47 Before he had done speaking, Judas, one of the twelve, appeared with a great multitude, armed with swords and clubs, and sent by the chief priests 48 and elders of the people. Now the betrayer had 49 given them a sign, saying, The man whom I shall kiss is he, secure him. And coming directly to 50 Jesus, he said, Hail Rabbi, and kissed him. Jesus answered, Friend, for what purpose comest thou?
Then they advanced, and laying hands on Jesus 51 seized him. Upon this one of Jesus' company lay- ing his hand upon his sword, drew it; and striking the servant of the high priest, cut off his ear.

52 Jesus said to him, Sheathe thy sword; for who- invoke my Father, who would send to my relief 54 more than twelve legions of angels⁴³? But in that case how should the Scriptures be accomplished, which declare that these things must be?

 55 Then turning to the multitude, he said, Do ye come with swords and clubs to apprehend me, like people in pursuit of a robber? I sat daily amongst you, teaching in the temple, and ye did 56 not arrest me. But all this hath happened, that the writings of the Prophets might be fulfilled.
Then all the disciples forsook him and fled.

MARK'S GOSPEL.

THAT the Gospel was written by Mark which is commonly ascribed to him, and that it was the second in the order of time, are points for which the unanimous voice of antiquity can evidently be pleaded. The first authority to be produced, in support of both these articles, is Papias, to whom, as the oldest witness, and, consequently, in a case of this nature, the most important, we are chiefly indebted for what has been advanced in relation to the Evangelist Matthew. What he says concerning Mark may be thus rendered from the words of Eusebius ¹ who quotes him : “ This is what was related by the elder (that is, John, not the Apostle, but a disciple of Jesus); “ Mark being Peter’s interpreter, wrote exactly what- “ ever he remembered, not indeed in the order where-

“ in things were spoken and done by the Lord ; “ for he was not himself a hearer or follower of our “ Lord, but he afterwards, as I said, followed Peter, “ who gave instructions as suited the occasions, but “ not as a regular history of our Lord’s teaching.
 “ Mark, however, committed no mistake in writing “ such things as occurred to his memory : for of “ this one thing he was careful, to omit nothing “ which he had heard, and to insert no falsehood “ into his narrative.” Such is the testimony of Papias, which is the more to be regarded, as he assigns his authority. He spoke not from hearsay, but from the information he had received from a most credible witness, John the elder or presbyter, a disciple of Jesus, and companion of the Apostles, by whom he had been intrusted with a ministry in the church.

§ 2. IT would be superfluous here to add other testimonies. Suffice it to say, that what is above advanced by Papias, on the authority of John, is contradicted by no person. It is, on the contrary, confirmed by all who take occasion to mention the subject. I shall only subjoin the account given by Irenæus, because it serves to ascertain another circumstance, namely, that the publication of Mark’s Gospel, the second in the order of time, soon followed that of Matthew’s. After telling us that Matthew published his Gospel, while Peter and Paul were preaching at Rome, he adds²: “ After their departure

² Adv. Hær. l. iii. c. 1.

“ [ἐξοδον], Mark also, the disciple and interpreter “ of Peter, delivered to us, in writing, the things “ which had been preached by Peter.” The Greek ἐξοδος, like the English word departure, and the word used in the old Latin edition, excessus, is equivocal ;
it may either denote death, which is a departure out of this world, or mean a departure out of the city.
It is probably in the former of these senses that the word is here used. Yet by the accounts given by some others, Mark's Gospel was published in Peter's lifetime, and had his approbation. But not to insist on matters which cannot now be ascertained, it sufficeth us, that we know by whom this Gospel was written, and whence the writer drew his information.
Indeed this latter point has, from the earliest times, been considered as so well authenticated, that some have not scrupled to denominate this the Gospel according to Peter. They did not intend thereby to dispute Mark's title to be esteemed the writer, but to express, in a stronger manner, that every thing here advanced, had the sanction of that Apostle's testimony, than whom no disciple more closely attended our Lord's ministry, from its commencement to its consummation. The Gospel of Mark is said, by some, to be but two years posterior in date to that of Matthew. About this, however, it is in vain to think to arrive at any certainty.

§ 3. BUT as to the person here named Mark, authors are not equally agreed. Some have thought that it was he of whom mention is several times made in the Acts, and some of Paul's Epistles, who is called John, whose surname is Mark, whose mother's name was *Mary*³, and of whom we are likewise told, that he was sister's son to *Barnabas*⁴. From the little we are able to collect out of the apostolical writings, it appears to me rather improbable, that this is he. Of John, surnamed Mark, one of the first things we learn is, that he attended Paul and Barnabas in their apostolical journeys, when these two travelled together⁵. And when, afterwards, there arose a dispute between them concerning him, insomuch that they separated, Mark accompanied his uncle Barnabas, and Silas attended Paul. When Paul was reconciled to Mark, which was probably soon after (for though, among good men, there may arise differences, as these differences are not embittered by any malignity of disposition, a reconciliation is easily effected,) we find Paul again employing Mark's assistance, recommending him, and giving him a very honourable testimony⁶. But we hear not a syllable of his attending Peter, as his minister, or assisting him in any capacity. This is so different from the accounts which the most ancient writers give of the Evangelist Mark that, though they cannot be said to contradict each other, they can hardly be supposed as spoken of the same individual. The Evangelist is not said to have derived any part of his information from our Lord himself, or even from any of his Apostles, except the Apostle Peter, (for no other is ever named), whose disciple he is always represented as having been; and who, doubtless, speaks of him when he says ⁷, Marcus my son saluteth you. The denomination son was, in those times, commonly given, by the minister, to every one who, by his means, had been converted to the Christian faith. But, as to the nephew of Barnabas, we have seen how differently he is represented in the Acts, as well as in Paul's Epistles. And if we recur to tradition (for historical evidence cannot be pretended), it represents him as having been a disciple of our Lord, and one of the Seventy, whom Jesus in his lifetime sent out to preach the Gospel. Besides, no ancient author, in speaking of this Evangelist, ever calls him John, but always Mark. In brief, the accounts given of Paul's attendant, and those of Peter's interpreter, concur in nothing but the name, Mark, or Marcus; too slight a circumstance to evince the sameness of the person, especially when we consider how common the name was at Rome, and how customary it was for the Jews, in that age, to assume some Roman name when they went thither.

§ 4. FURTHER, that Mark wrote his Gospel in Greek, is as evidently conformable to the testimony of antiquity, as that Matthew wrote his in Hebrew

⁷ 1 Pet. v. 13.

Cardinal Baronius is the only person who has strenuously maintained the contrary, affirming that this Evangelist published his work in Latin. I know no argument, worthy the name of argument, but one, that he produces in support of his opinion. The external evidence of testimony is clear against him; but something like internal probability may be urged in favour of his sentiment. ‘This Gospel,’ says the Cardinal, ‘was published at Rome, for the benefit of the Romans. Can we then suppose it would be written in any other than the language of the place?’ I shall admit that this Gospel was published at Rome; though that is not universally believed, some rather supposing it to have been at Alexandria, after Mark had been entrusted with the superintendence of that church; but, though the design of the publication had been the benefit of those residing at Rome, it would not have been exclusively intended for the natives. Let it be observed, that the ministry of Peter, to whom Paul tells us ⁸, the Gospel of the circumcision was committed, was chiefly employed in converting and instructing his countrymen the Jews, who abounded at that time in the imperial city. Now it was customary with such of the Jews as went abroad (I may say generally with travellers of all nations, especially from the East), to make themselves masters of the Greek tongue, which was become a kind of universal language, and was more used by strangers at Rome, than the language of the place. It was with such that the first Christian missionaries were principally concerned. The Apostle Paul accordingly wrote to them in Greek, and not in Latin, which would not have been done, if the former language had not been then better understood in the Christian congregation than the latter. Now, if there was no impropriety in Paul's writing them a very long Epistle in Greek, neither was there any in Mark's giving them his Gospel in that language. The only thing I know which looks like an ancient testimony in favour of the opinion of Baronius, is the inscription subjoined to this Gospel in Syriac, and in some other Oriental versions. But it ought to be remembered, that these postscripts are not the testimonies of the translators. They proceed merely from the conjecture of some transcriber, but when written, or by whom, is equally unknown. But enough, perhaps too much, for setting aside a mere hypothesis, not only unsupported by positive evidence, but in direct contradiction to it.

§ 5. FROM this Gospel, as well as from the former, we should readily conclude that the author was by birth and education a Jew. The Hebraisms in the style (or examples of what has been called the idiom of the synagogue) are very evident throughout the whole. At the same time, as some critics have observed, there are several expressions here used, which clearly indicate that the writer had been accustomed, for some time, to live among the Latins. Not only does he use the Latin words, which are to be found in other Gospels, and seem to have been then current in Judea, as λεγεων a legion, κηνσος tribute, πραιτωριον prætorium, and δηναριον a denarius; but he employs some which are peculiar to himself, as κεντυριων centurion, σπεκπλατωρ sentinel, and ξεστης from sextarius, a pot; for such transpositions of letters are not uncommon in order to avoid a collision which the language does not admit. These have been pleaded as evidences that the original was Latin; but, in fact, they are much stronger marks of a Greek writer who had lived some years among the Latins, and had been accustomed to use, and hear used by others, such names of offices as were familiarly known in the place. Nothing is more common with travellers, than to interlard their conversation with such foreign words as those now described. This is not always, as people are apt to suspect, the effect of affectation: for it is manifest from experience, that such words, in consequence of the recent habit, do most readily suggest themselves to the memory of the speaker or writer, even though using a different tongue. There are some other internal evidences which have not escaped the notice of the inquisitive, that this Gospel was written in a country of strangers, or at least beyond the confines of Judea, where the names of places, and the peculiar phrases relating to religious ceremonies, could not be so familiar to the people, not even to the Jews, as they would be in any part of Palestine. The first time the Jordan is mentioned⁹, ποταμος

is added to the name for explanation : for though no person in Judea needed to be informed that Jordan is a river, the case was different in distant countries. The word γεεννα which, on account of its figurative application in the New Testament, is, in English, always rendered hell, is, strictly and originally, the name of a place near Jerusalem, the valley of Hinnom, where infants had been sacrificed by fire to Moloch, a place well known to the inhabitants of the country, though perfectly unknown to those of Italy or Egypt. This Evangelist, therefore, when he mentions it¹⁰, very properly adds for explanation, το πυρ το ασβεζον, the unquenchable fire. Words and phrases not used out of Palestine and the neighbouring regions, are either not named by him at all, or attended, as the above example, with some circumstance which may serve to explain them. Thus he avoids altogether the word Mammon used by Matthew and Luke, which, though familiar in Judea, and perhaps through all Syria, might not have been understood even by the Hellenist Jews at Rome. He therefore makes the common term χρηματα riches, which could not be mistaken any where, supply its place ; and though he finds it convenient, on one occasion¹¹, to employ the Oriental word Corban, he immediately subjoins the interpretation ὁ εστι δωρον, that is, a gift. In another place¹², he adopts the terms κοιναις χερσι, which, though not Oriental words, make a sort of Oriental phraseology, that would be unintelligible to the far greater part of Greek readers. For this reason he immediatly explains himself by adding, τὸν εἶναι ἀνιπτοῖς; that is, unwashen. Add to this, that the rite there alluded to is, in the following verses, explained in a manner which, to one in Matthew's circumstances, who wrote for the immediate use of the natives of Judea, familiarized to such observances, must have appeared entirely superfluous. The woman from the confines of Tyre and Sidon, who applied to our Lord, in behalf of her daughter, is, by Matthew who wrote in Hebrew, for the use of the Hebrews, very properly, in the style of their ancient scripture, called Canaanitish, and is, not less suitably, by Mark who wrote in Greek, for the benefit of all who spoke that language, denominated Syrophenician. When the two Gospels, Matthew's and Mark's are, on these points, compared together, though the particulars in the comparison, taken severally, appear inconsiderable, they bear such strong internal characters as serve greatly to corroborate the historical proof we have relating to their respective authors and languages, to the circumstances of time, and place of publication, as well as to the people for whose use they were respectively written. Such little points, which have nothing of the ostentation of evidence, will be admitted, by the judicious, to have the more weight, on that very account. And, let it be observed that, though the church of Rome, in that early period, and the same may be affirmed of the church of Alexandria, consisted mostly of Hellenist Jews, it was not confined to these. The sacred writers, therefore, who wrote in Greek, chose very properly, so far to adapt their expressions as to be at least intelligible to other readers of that language.

§ 6. THERE are some peculiarities of style which have been observed in this writer, such as the more frequent use of the adverbs ευδως and ευδεως, than is found in any other writer in the New Testament, his beginning sentences oftner with και, and και ελεγεν αυτοις, idioms not unfrequent with the rest. Augustin considers this Evangelist as the abridger of Matthew. Marcus Matthæum subsecutus tanquam pedisequus et breviator ejus videtur. It is indeed true that Mark sometimes copies the very expressions used by Matthew. That he is not, however, to be considered as an abridger, may be evinced by the following reasons: First, he omits altogether several things related by Matthew, our Lord's pedigree, his birth, the visit of the Magians, Joseph's flight into Egypt, the cruelty of Herod. As his intention appears to have been to give in brief the history of our Lord's ministry, he begins very properly with the preaching of the Baptist. Again, there are some other things in Matthew, whereof, though they fall within the time to which Mark had confined himself, he has taken no notice; and some things are mentioned by Mark which had been overlooked by Matthew. Further, he has not always followed the same arrangement with his predecessor: and his relation of some facts, so far from being an abridgement of Matthew's, is the more circumstantial of the two. His style in general, instead of being more concise, is more diffuse. That he had read Matthew's Gospel cannot be doubted. For their exact conformity in expression in several places, Grotius has an ingenious manner of accounting. He supposes that Mark had carefully read Matthew's Gospel in the original Hebrew, before it was translated into Greek ; and that he had the particulars fresh in his memory, when he was occupied in writing his Gospel. Again, he supposes that the translator of Matthew into Greek has thought it safest to adopt the expressions of Mark, wherever they would suit the Hebrew, from which he was translating. But this, it must be confessed, though not implausible, is mere conjecture. It is generally our Lord's discourses which are abridged by Mark. As to his miracles, he has rather more fully related them. The additional circumstances and incidents recorded in this Gospel, appear to rest upon the authority of the Apostles, but principally on that of Peter.

THE ENTRANCE ON THE MINISTRY.

country of Judea, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem resorted to him, and were baptized by him in the 6 river Jordan, confessing their sins. Now John's clothing was of camel's hair, tied round his waist with a leathern girdle: and he lived upon locusts 7 and wild honey. And he proclaimed, saying, One mightier than I cometh after me, whose shoe-latchet I am unworthy to stoop down and untie.
 8 I indeed have baptized you in water; but he will baptize you in the Holy Spirit.

9 At that time Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee, and was baptized by John in Jordan. As soon as he arose out of the water, he saw the sky part asunder, and the Spirit descend upon him like a 10 dove. And a voice was heard from heaven, which said, Thou art my beloved Son in whom I delight.

Mat. 4; 1.
 Lu. 4; 1.

12 Immediately after this the Spirit conveyed him into the wilderness: and he continued there in the wilderness forty days tempted by Satan¹⁴; and was among the wild beasts; and the angels ministered to him.

14 But after John's imprisonment, Jesus went into Galilee, proclaiming the good tidings of the reign of God. The time, said he, is accomplished, the reign of God approacheth; reform, and believe the good tidings.

32 In the evening, after sun-set, they brought to persons affected with various diseases, and expelled many demons, whom he permitted not to speak, because they knew him.

35 On the morrow, having risen before the dawn, he went out and retired to a solitary place, and 36 prayed there. And Simon and his company went 37 in quest of him, and having found him, said to him, 38 Every body seeketh thee. Jesus said, Let us go to the neighbouring boroughs to proclaim [the reign] there also ; for I came out with this design.
 39 Accordingly he proclaimed it in their synagogues throughout all Galilee, and expelled demons.

was gone, began to blaze this story, talking openly every where, insomuch that Jesus could no longer

II. AFTER many days he returned to Capernaum; and when it was known that he was in the 9 ye reason thus within yourselves? Which is easier, to say to the paralytic, 'Thy sins are for- the multitude repaired to him, and he taught them.

14 Passing along, he saw Levi, son of Alpheus, sitting at the toll-office, and said to him, Follow me.

15 And he arose and followed him. Now when Jesus was eating in this man's house, several publicans and sinners placed themselves at table with him and his disciples: for many of these people followed him.

16 The Scribes and the Pharisees, seeing him eat with publicans and sinners, said to his disciples, Where-

18 The disciples of John, and those of the Pharisees, accustomed to fasting, came to him and said, John's disciples, and those of the Pharisees, fast; why do 19 not thy disciples fast? Jesus answered, Do the bridemen fast while the bridegroom is with them?

While the bridegroom is with them they do not 20 fast. But the days will come when the bridegroom shall be taken from them; and in those 21 days they will fast. Nobody seweth a piece of undressed cloth on an old garment; otherwise the new patch teareth the old cloth, and maketh 22 a worse rent. Nobody putteth new wine into old leathern bottles; else the new wine bursteth the bottles; and thus both the wine is spilt, and the bottles are rendered useless; but new wine must be put into new bottles.

 Why do they that which, on the Sabbath, it is unwhen they were hungry, how he entered the tabernacle of God, in the days of Abiathar the high priest, and ate the loaves of the presence, which none but the priests could lawfully eat, and gave 27 thereof also to his attendants? He added, The Sabbath was made for man, not man for the Sab-28 bath. Therefore the Son of Man is master even of the Sabbath.

III. Another time he entered the synagogue, when a ^{Mat. 12; 9;}

they, with a design to accuse Jesus, watched him, to see whether he would heal the man on the Sab-4 hand, Stand up in the midst. Then he said to them, Whether is it lawful to do good on the Sabbath, or to do evil; to save, or to kill? But 5 they were silent. And looking round on them with anger, being grieved for the blindness of their minds, he said to the man, Stretch out thy hand:

and as he stretched out his hand, it became sound 6 like the other. And the Pharisees went out immediately, and conspired with the Herodians against him, to destroy him.

7 But Jesus withdrew with his disciples towards the 8 sea, whither a great multitude followed him from Galilee, from Judea, from Jerusalem, from Idu*mea*¹⁵, and from the banks of the Jordan. They also of the territories of Tyre and Sidon, having heard what wonders he had performed, flocked to 9 him in crowds. Then he ordered his disciples to get a boat to attend him, because of the multitude, 10 lest they should throng him: for he had healed many, which made all who had maladies press upon him to 11 touch him. And the unclean spirits, when they beheld him, prostrated themselves before him, crying, 12 Thou art the Son of God. But he strictly charged them not to make him known.

13 AFTERWARDS Jesus went up a mountain, and called to him whom he would, and they went to him.
 14 And he selected twelve, that they might attend him, and that he might commission them to proclaim 15 [the reign], empowering them to cure diseases, and 16 to expel demons. These were Simon, whom he sur-17 named Peter, and James, son of Zebedee, and John the brother of James. These he surnamed Boaner-

25 subsist. And if a family be torn by factions, that family cannot subsist. Thus, if Satan fight against 26 himself, and be divided, he cannot subsist, but is near his end. No one who entereth the strong

27 one's house, can plunder his goods, unless he first overpower the strong one; then, indeed, he may 6 But after the sun had beaten upon it, it was scorched, 7 and having no root, it withered away. Part fell amidst thorns; and the thorns grew up and parable? How then will ye understand all [my] parables?

- 14• The sower is he who disperseth the word. The wayside on which some of the grain fell, denoteth those who have no sooner heard the word, than Satan cometh and taketh away that which was sown in their hearts. The rocky ground denoteth those who hearing the word, receive it at first with pleasure; yet not having it rooted in their minds, retain it but a while; for when trouble or persecution cometh because of the word, they instantly relapse.
- 16 The ground over-run with thorns, denoteth those hearers in whom worldly cares, and delusive riches, and the inordinate desires of other things, stifle the word and render it unfruitful. The good soil on which some grains yielded thirty, some sixty, and some a hundred, denoteth those who hear the word and retain it, and produce the fruits thereof.
- 21 He said further, Is a lamp brought to be put under a corn-measure, or under a bed; and not to be set on a stand? For there is no secret that is not to be discovered; nor hath aught been concealed which was not to be divulged. If any man have ears to hear let him hear.
- 22 He said moreover, Consider what ye hear: with the measure wherewith ye give, ye shall receive; and to you who are attentive, more shall be added. For to him who hath, more shall be given; but from him who hath not, even that which he hath shall be taken.

Mat. 13; 31· 30 He said also, Whereunto shall we compare the kingdom of God, or by what similitude shall we 31 represent it? It is like a grain of mustard-seed, which, when it is sown in the earth, is the small-32 est of all the seeds that are there. But after it is sown, it springeth up, and becometh greater than any herb, and shooteth out branches so large, that under their shades the birds of the air may find shelter.

33 And in many such similitudes he conveyed in- number about two thousand, rushed down a precipice into the sea, and were choked. And the swineherds fled, and told it in the city and villages. And the people flocked out to see what had happened. When they came to Jesus, and saw him who had been possessed by the legion, sitting and clothed, and in his right mind, they were afraid. And those who had seen the whole, having related to them what had happened to the demoniac, and to the swine; they entreated him to leave their territories. As he entered the bark, the man who had been possessed, begged permission to attend him. Jesus, however, did not permit him, but said, Go home to thy relations, and tell them what great things the Lord in pity hath done for thee. Accordingly he departed, publishing in Decapolis¹⁷, what great things Jesus had done for him. And all were amazed.

daughter of Herodias came in and danced before that the king said to the damsel, Ask whatever every thing to Jesus, both what they had done, and 31 what they had taught. And he said to them, Come ye apart into a desert place, and rest a while; for there were so many coming and going, that they had 32 not leisure so much as to eat. And they retired Jo. 6; 1. by ship to a desert place to be by themselves. But many who saw them depart, and knew whither they were sailing, ran out of all the cities, and got thither by land before them, and came together to 34 him. Jesus being landed saw a great multitude, Mat. 9; 36 and had compassion on them; because they were as a flock which hath no shepherd; and he taught them many things.

 unto them, Supply them yourselves. They replied, Shall we go and give two hundred denarii ¹⁸ for

 How many loaves have ye? go and see. Upon 39 inquiry they answered, Five, and two fishes. And he commanded them to make all the people lie down upon the green grass in separate companies.
 40 And they formed themselves into squares, by hunloaves and the two fishes, and looking up to heaven,

THE ERRORS OF THE PHARISEES.

VII. NOW the Pharisees, and some Scribes who came Mat. 15; 1-2 from Jerusalem, resorted to Jesus. When these observed some of his disciples eating with impure 3 (that is, unwashen) hands, they found fault. For the Pharisees, and indeed all the Jews who observe the tradition of the elders, eat not until they have washed their hands, by pouring a little water upon 4 them; and if they be come from the market, by dipping them; and many other usages there are which they have adopted, as baptisms of cups and 5 pots, and brazen vessels and beds. Then the Pharisees and the Scribes asked him, Whence cometh it, that thy disciples observe not the tradition 6 of the elders, but eat with unwashen hands? He answering, said unto them, O hypocrites, well do ye suit the character which Isaiah gave of you, Is. 29; 13

when he said, "This people honoureth me with 7 "their lips; but their heart is estranged from me.

"In vain, however, they worship me, while they 8 "teach institutions merely human." For laying aside the commandment of God, ye retain the traditions of men, baptisms of pots and cups, and 9 many other the like practices. Ye judge well, continued he, in annulling the commandment of 10 God, to make room for your tradition. For Moses hath said, "Honour thy Father and thy mo"ther," and, "Whosoever revileth father or mo-11 "ther, shall be punished with death." But ye maintain, If a man say to father or mother, 'Be it

'corban (that is, 'devoted') whatever of mine shall

12 'profit thee;' he must not thenceforth do aught

13 for his father or his mother; thus invalidating the word of God by the tradition which ye have established. And in many other instances ye act thus.

Mat. 15; 10

14 Then having called the whole multitude, he said to them, Harken to me all of you, and be in-15 structed. There is nothing from without which, entering into the man, can pollute him; but the things which proceed from within the man, are 16 the things that pollute him. If any man have ears to hear, let him hear.

17 When he had withdrawn from the people into a house, his disciples asked him the meaning of that 18 sentence. He answered, Are ye also void of understanding? Do ye not conceive, that whatsoever

from without entereth into the man, cannot pollute

19 him; because it entereth not into his heart, but into his belly, whence all impurities in the victuals 20 pass into the sink. But, added he, that which proceedeth out of the man, is what polluteth the 21 man : for from within the human heart proceed vicious machinations, adulteries, fornications, mur-22 ders, thefts, insatiable desires, malevolence, fraud, 23 immodesty, envy, calumny, arrogance, levity. All these evils issue from within, and pollute the man.

24 Then he arose and went to the frontiers of Tyre Mat. 15; 21.
and Sidon ; and having entered a house, he desired that none might know of him ; but he could not be 25 concealed. For a woman, whose little daughter had an unclean spirit, hearing of him, came and threw 26 herself at his feet (the woman was a Greek, a na- tive of Syrophenicia), and entreated him, that he 27 would cast the demon out of her daughter. Jesus answered, Let the children first be satisfied ; for it is not seemly to take the children's bread, and 28 throw it to the dogs. She replied, True, Sir, yet even the dogs under the table eat of the children's 29 crumbs. He said to her, For this answer go 30 home ; the demon is gone out of thy daughter. Im- mediately she went home, and found her daughter lying upon the bed, and freed from the demon.

31 Then leaving the borders of Tyre and Sidon, he returned to the sea of Galilee, through the precincts 32 of Decapolis. And they brought to him a deaf man, who had also an impediment in his speech, and en-33 treated him to lay his hand upon him. Jesus hav- ing taken him aside from the crowd, spat upon his own fingers, and put them into the man's ears, and 34 touched his tongue. Then looking up to heaven, and sighing, he said, Ephphatha, that is, Be open-35 ed. Immediately his ears were opened, and his 36 tongue loosed, and he spoke distinctly. Jesus charg- ed them to tell nobody: but the more he charged 37 them, the more they published it, saying, with in- expressible amazement, He doth every thing well:

he maketh both the deaf to hear, and the dumb to speak.

Mat. 15; 32. VIII. At that time the crowd being very numerous, 2 and having no food, Jesus called his disciples, and said to them, I have compassion on the multitude ; for they have attended me now three days, and 3 have nothing to eat ; and if I send them home fasting, their strength will fail by the way ; for 4 some of them are come from afar. His disciples answered, Whence can we supply these people 5 with bread here in the desert ? He asked them, How many loaves have ye ? They said, Seven.
 6 Then commanding the multitude to place themselves upon the ground, he took the seven loaves, and having given thanks, broke them, and gave them to his disciples, that they might distribute them to the peo-7 ple, and they distributed them. They had also a few small fishes, which, after the blessing, he like-8 wise ordered to be presented. So they ate, and were satisfied ; and the fragments which remained 9 were carried off in seven maunds. Now they who had eaten were about four thousand.

- 19 or of your ears? or do ye not remember? When I distributed the five loaves among the five thousand, how many baskets full of fragments did ye
- 20 carry off? They answered, Twelve. And when the seven among the four thousand, how many 11 could mean. Then they asked him, saying, Why do the Scribes affirm, that Elijah must come first?

12 He answered, Elijah, to consummate the whole, must come first, and, (as it is written of the Son of Man) must likewise suffer many things, and be contemned.

But he said to them, Be not frightened; ye seek Jesus the Nazarene, who was crucified. He is risen: he is not here: behold the 7 place where they laid him. But go, say to his disciples, and to Peter, 'He is gone before you to 'Galilee; where ye shall see him, as he told you.' 8 The women then getting out, fled from the monument, seized with trembling and consternation; but said nothing to any one, they were so terrified.

LUKE'S GOSPEL.

LUKE, to whom this Gospel, the third in order, has been, from the earliest ecclesiastical antiquity, uniformly attributed, was, for a long time, a constant companion of the Apostle Paul, and assistant in preaching the Gospel, as Mark is said to have been of the Apostle Peter. Of Luke, we find honourable mention made once and again in Paul's Epistles¹. But the most of what we can know of his history, must be collected from the Acts of the Apostles, a book also written by him in continuation of the history contained in the Gospel. Though the Author, like the other Evangelists, has not named himself as the author, he has signified plainly in the introduction of his work, that he is not an apostle, nor was himself a witness of what he attests, but that he had his intelligence from apostles and others who attended our Lord's ministry upon the earth.

§ 2. IT has been made a question whether he was originally a Jew or a Pagan. The latter opinion has been inferred from an expression of the Apostle Paul to the Colossians², where, after naming some with this addition, who are of the circumcision, he mentions others, and among them Luke, without any addition. These are, therefore, supposed to have been Gentiles. But this, though a plausible inference, is not a necessary consequence from the Apostle's words. He might have added the clause, who are of the circumcision, not to distinguish the persons from those after mentioned as not of the circumcision, but to give the Colossians particular information concerning those with whom perhaps they had not previously been acquainted. If they knew what Luke, and Epaphras, and Demas, whether Jews or Gentiles, originally were, the information was quite unnecessary with regard to them. It will perhaps add a little to the weight of this consideration to observe that, in those days, in introducing to any church such Christian brethren as were unknown to them before, it was a point of some importance to inform them, whether they were of the circumcision, or not; inasmuch as there were certain ceremonies and observances wherein the Jewish converts were indulged, which, if found in one converted from Gentilism, might render it suspected, that his conversion was rather to Judaism than to Christianity.

§ 3. SOME ancients, on the contrary, have imagined that he was not only a Jew, but one of the Seventy, commissioned by our Lord to preach the Gospel³. This, I think, may be confuted from what is advanced by Luke himself, who does not pretend to have been a witness of our Lord's miracles and teaching; but to have received his information from witnesses. This would not have been done by one who had attended our Lord's ministry, and was, though not an apostle, of the number of his disciples. I am not ignorant that Whitby⁴, after others, has attempted so to explain the words, as to make what is said concerning the information received from witnesses, to relate only to those who had published their narratives before that time, and that the phrase παρηκολοθησθησιν ανωθεν πασιν ακριβως, is intended for marking the distinction between their source of intelligence and his. In my opinion, he has totally mistaken the import of this clause, as I shall show in explaining the place⁵. But that our Evangelist was, with all the other writers of the New Testament, a convert to Christianity from Judaism, not from Gentilism, is, upon the whole, sufficiently evident from his style, in which, notwithstanding its greater copiousness and variety, there are as many Hebraisms as are found in the other Evangelists, and such as, I imagine, could not be exemplified in any writer, originally Gentile, unless his conversion to Judaism had been very early in life.

§ 4. FURTHER, Luke seems to have had more learning than any of the other Evangelists. And if he be the person mentioned in the above cited passage of the Epistle to the Colossians ⁶, of which I see no reason to doubt; he was by profession a physician. Grotius has hence inferred several particulars which, as they are not supported by any positive proofs, can be ranked only among conjectures. The reason which Luke himself assigned for his writing was, it would appear, to prevent people's giving, without examination or inquiry, too easy credit to the narratives of the life of Jesus, which, at that time, seem to have abounded. I acknowledge that the word επεχειρησαν, have undertaken, used here by Luke, does not necessarily imply any blame laid on the execution; but the scope of the place seems to imply it, if not on all, at least on some of these undertakings: for if all, or even most, were well executed, the number was an argument rather against a new attempt, than for it. The very circumstance of the number of such narratives, at so early a period, is itself an evidence that there was something in the first publication of the Christian doctrine, which, notwithstanding the many unfavourable circumstances wherewith it was attended, excited the curiosity, and awakened the attention, of persons of all ranks and denominations; insomuch that every narrative which pretended to furnish men with any additional information concerning so extraordinary a personage as Jesus, seems to have been read with avidity.

§ 5. WHO they were to whom the Evangelist alludes, who had, from vague reports, rashly published narratives not entirely to be depended on, it is impossible for us now to discover. Grotius justly observes, that the spurious Gospels mentioned by ancient writers, are forgeries, manifestly, of a later date. He seems to except the Gospel according to the Egyptians, which, though much earlier than the rest, can scarcely claim an antiquity higher than that according to Luke. That there were, however, some such performances at the time Luke began to write, the words of this Evangelist are sufficient evidence; for, to consider this book merely "on the footing of a human composition, what writer of common sense would introduce himself to the public by observing the numerous attempts that had been made by former writers, some of whom at least had not been at due pains to be properly informed, if he himself were actually the first, or even the second, or the third, who had written on the subject; and if one of the two who preceded him, had better opportunities of knowing than he, and the other fully as good? But the total disappearance of those spurious writings, probably no better than hasty collections of flying rumours, containing a mixture of truth and falsehood, may, after the genuine Gospels were generally known and read, be easily accounted for. At midnight the glimmering of a taper is not without its use; but it can make no conceivable addition to the light of the meridian sun. And it deserves to be remarked, by the way, that, whatever may be thought to be insinuated here by the Evangelist, concerning the imperfect information of former historians, there is no hint given of their bad design.

§ 6. SOME have inferred from Luke's introduction, that his must have been the first genuine Gospel that was committed to writing. In my opinion this would need to be much more clearly implied in the words than it can be said to be, to induce a reasonable critic to adopt an opinion so repugnant to the uniform voice of antiquity. The remark of Grotius, on this head, appears to have more weight than is commonly allowed it. Luke, he observes, wrote in Greek, Matthew's Gospel had been written in the Hebrew of the times, and probably was not then translated into Greek. The expression of Papias implies, in my opinion, as was hinted already⁷, that that Gospel remained a considerable time without any translation into Greek. If so, the only authentic ⁷ Preface to Matthew's Gospel, § 6.

Gospel which had preceded Luke's in Greek, was the Gospel by Mark, which comparatively was but a compend.

The arguments (if we can call them arguments) in Basnage's exertions, employed to prove that the Gospel by Luke was the first written, will be found, on examination, to rest on nothing but conjectures supported by reasonings which, to a superficial view, may appear ingenious, but are merely hypothetical, and can never overturn the only adequate evidence of a point of fact, the testimony of those who had best occasion to know, in a matter which they were under no conceivable temptation to misrepresent.

§ 7. LUKE, in composing this Gospel, is supposed by some to have drawn his information chiefly from the Apostle Paul, whom he faithfully attended, as Mark did from the Apostle Peter. They even proceed so far as to suppose that when Paul, in his Epistles, uses the expression *my Gospel*⁸, he means the Gospel according to Luke: but nothing can be more unnatural than this interpretation. That Paul, who was divinely enlightened in all that concerned the life and doctrine of his Master, must have been of very great use to the Evangelist, cannot be reasonably doubted; yet, from Luke's own words, we are led to conclude, that the chief source of his intelligence, as to the facts related in his Gospel, was from those who had been eye and ear-witnesses of what our Lord both did and taught. Now of this number Paul evidently was not. But, though Luke appears to have been an early and assiduous attendant on the ministry of that Apostle, and to have accompanied him regularly in his apostolical journeys, from his voyage to Maccdonia, till he was carried prisoner to Rome, whither also the Evangelist went along with him, he could not fail to have many opportunities, both before and after joining him, of conversing with those Apostles and other disciples who had heard the discourses, and seen the miracles, of our Lord.

§ 8. As to the time when this Gospel was written, hardly any thing beyond conjecture has yet been produced. The same may be said of the place of publication. Jerom thinks it was published in Achaia, when Paul was in that country, attended by Luke; and by the computation of Euthymius, it was fifteen years after our Lord's ascension; but Paul's journey into Achaia could not have been so early. Grotius supposes that both the Gospel and the Acts were written soon after Paul left Rome, to travel into Spain. His principal reason seems to have been, because the latter of these histories ends nearly about that time, to wit, when Paul was first a prisoner at Rome. But though this may be admitted to be a very strong presumption, that the Acts of the Apostles were composed then, it affords no sort of evidence that the Gospel may not have been composed and published long before. That it actually was some time before the other, appears to me the more probable supposition of the two. By the introduction to the Gospel, where the author particularly addresses himself to his friend Theophilus, his whole intention at that time appears to have been to give a history of our Lord's life, teaching, and miracles. And even in concluding the Gospel, no hint is given of any continuation or further history then in view. Again, in the beginning of the Acts, when he addresses the same friend, he speaks of the Gospel as of a treatise which he had composed on a former occasion, and which was then well known. And as to the place of publication, though nothing certain can be affirmed concerning it. I am inclined to think it more probable that it was Antioch, or at least some part of Syria, if not Palestine. Every thing here seems addressed to those who were well acquainted with Jewish customs and places. No hints are inserted, by way of explanation, as we find in the Gospels of Mark and John.

§ 9. BUT, though no certainty can be had about the precise time and place of publication, we have, in regard to the Author, the same plea of the uniform testimony of Christian antiquity, which was pleaded in favour of the preceding Evangelists, Matthew and Mark. Some indeed have thought that, as an Evangelist, Luke has the testimony of Paul himself, being, as they suppose, the brother whose praise is in the Gospel, mentioned in one of his Epistles⁹. But admitting that Luke is the person there intended, another meaning may, with greater plausibility, be put on the expression in the Gospel, which rather denotes in preaching the Gospel, than in writing the history of its Author. The name Evangelist was first applied to those extraordinary ministers, such as Philip and Timothy, both expressly called so¹⁰, who attended the Apostles, and assisted them in their work. Luke was doubtless an Evangelist in this sense, as well as in the current, but later, acceptance of the term. It may, indeed, be justly affirmed, that Paul appears to have been the first who has quoted this gospel, though he does not name Luke, and quoted it as of authority. In writing to Timothy¹¹, he has these words, For the Scripture saith, “Thou shalt not muzzle the ox “that treadeth out the corn.” and “The labourer is “worthy of his reward.” The former of these sayings is a quotation from the pentateuch¹². The latter is found no where else in these terms, but in Luke¹³, whose very words the Apostle has adopted. Αξιός ὁ εργατῆς τῆς μισθῶν αὐτοῦ. Lardner has taken notice of allusions to some passages in this Gospel to be found in some of the apostolic fathers; and there are evident quotations from it, though without naming the author, in Justin Martyr, and the Epistle of the churches of Vienne and Lyons. Tatian, a little after the middle of the second century, composed a Harmony of the Gospels, the first of the kind that had been attempted, which he called DIATES-SARON (δια τεσσαρων) of the four, and which demonstrates that, at that time, there were four Gospels, and no more, of established authority in the church. Irenæus, not long after, mentions all the Evangelists by name, arranging them according to the order wherein they wrote, which is the same with that universally given them, throughout the Christian world, to this day. When he speaks of Luke, he recites many particulars which are peculiar to that Gospel. And, though the reasons assigned by that ancient author, why the Gospels can be neither fewer, nor more, than four, we should justly consider as very whimsical; the attempt, though unsuccessful, to account for it, shows at least the certainty of the fact, that the four Gospels were then received by Christians of all denominations, and that beside them there was no gospel or history of Jesus, of any estimation in the church. From that time downwards, the four Evangelists are often mentioned; and whatever spurious narratives have, from time to time, appeared, they have not been able to bear a comparison with those, in respect either of antiquity or of intrinsic excellence. Early in the third century, Ammonius also wrote a Harmony of the four Gospels. As these were at that time, and had been from their first publication, so they continue to this day to be, regarded as the great foundations of the Christian faith. If Monsieur Freret had been so lucky as to meet with Lardner's Credibility of the Gospel-history, and had taken the trouble to read it attentively before he wrote his Examen Critique, his natural penetration must have made him sensible, notwithstanding the artless simplicity of the English writer, how little his own much-laboured remarks can bear a comparison with the naked truth.

§ 10. THE Gospel by Luke has supplied us with many interesting particulars, which had been omitted by both his predecessors, Matthew and Mark. From him we learn whatever relates to the birth of John the Baptist; the annunciation; and other important circumstances concerning the nativity of the Messiah; the occasion of Joseph's being then in Bethlehem; the vision granted to the shepherds; the early testimonies of Simeon and Anna; the wonderful manifestation of our Lord's proficiency in knowledge, when only twelve years old; his age at the commencement of his ministry, connected with the year of the reigning emperor. He has given us also an account of several memorable incidents and cures which had been overlooked by the rest; the conversion of Zaccheus the publican; the cure of the woman who had been bowed down for eighteen years; and of the dropsical man; the cleansing of the ten lepers; the repulse he met with when about to enter a Samaritan city; and the instructive rebuke he gave, on that occasion, to two apostles, for their intemperate zeal: also the affecting interview he had, after his resurrection, with two of his disciples, in the way to Emmaus, and at that village. Luke has likewise added many edifying parables to those which had been recorded by the other Evangelists. Of this number are the parable of the creditor who had two debtors; of the rich fool who hoarded up his increase, and, when he had not one day to live, vainly exulted in the prospect of many happy years; of the rich man and Lazarus; of the reclaimed profligate; of the Pharisee and the publican praying in the temple; of the judge who was prevailed on by a widow's importunity, though he feared not God, nor regarded man; of the barren fig-tree; of the compassionate Samaritan; and several others; most of which, so early a writer as Irenæus has specified as peculiarly belonging to this Gospel; and has thereby shown to all after-ages, without intending it, that it is, in every thing material, the same book, which had ever been distinguished by the name of this Evangelist till his day, and remains so distinguished to ours.

§ 11. IN regard to Luke's character as a writer, it is evident, that though the same general quality of style, an unaffected simplicity, predominates in all the Evangelists; they are, nevertheless, distinguishable from one another. Luke abounds in Hebraisms as much as any of them; yet it must be acknowledged, that there are also more Grecisms in his language than in that of any of the rest. The truth is, there is greater variety in his style, which is probably to be ascribed to this circumstance, his having been more, and for a longer time, conversant among the Gentiles than any other Evangelist. His ordinary place of abode, if not the place of his birth, appears to have been Antioch, the capital of Syria, the seat of government, where people of the first distinction in the province had their residence, and to which there was great resort of strangers. Here the Greek language had long prevailed. Besides, Luke's occupation, as a physician, may very probably have occasioned his having greater intercourse with those of higher rank. Not that the profession itself was then in great esteem in that country; for it has been justly observed, that in Rome, as well as in Syria, slaves who gave early signs of quickness of parts and manual dexterity, were often instructed in physic, who, if they proved successful, were commonly rewarded with their freedom. That Luke himself, whatever may have been his early condition in life, was, when a Christian minister, a freeman and master of his time, is evident from his attendance on the Apostle Paul in his peregrinations for the advancement of the Gospel. But the profession of medicine and surgery (for these two were then commonly united) not only proved the occasion of a more general intercourse with society, but served as a strong inducement to employ some time in reading. This may sufficiently account for any superiority this Evangelist may be thought to possess above the rest, in point of language.

§ 12. His name, Λουκας, Luke, rendered in one place ¹⁴, in the common translation, Lukas, is supposed to have been a contraction of the Roman name, Lucilius, or of Lucanus, in like manner as Demas is contracted from Demetrius, and Epaphras from Epaphroditus. Names thus contracted from the master's name were commonly given to slaves, but not peculiarly to such. That a considerable portion of Luke's time had been spent in Rome, or at least in Italy, has been argued from some Latinisms discovered in his style; such as ¹⁵, δος εργασιαν, da operam, endeavour; and καλως ποιειτε τοις μισουσιν υμας ¹⁶, Benefacite his qui oderunt vos, with the dative case, Do good to them who hate you; whereas, in the parallel place in Matthew ¹⁷, the verb is construed more in the Greek manner with the accusative, καλως ποιειτε τες μισοντας υμας. But I see no reason why, in the Evangelist Luke, by birth a Syrian, this should be accounted a Latinism rather than a Syriasm, as in Syriac the ܠ prefixed (which is necessary in the expression of this precept) is always considered as corresponding to the dative in Greek and Latin. That he has also a greater variety in his words and phrases than any of the other Evangelists, will be quickly discovered by an attentive reader of the original. I mention one evidence of this, from a circumstance I have had particular occasion to attend to, which is this: Each of the Evangelists has

¹⁵ Ch. xii. 58.

¹⁶ Ch. vi. 27.

¹⁷ Matth. v. 44.

a considerable number of words which are used by none of the rest ; but in Luke's Gospel, the number of such peculiarities, or words used in none of the other Gospels, is greater than that of the peculiar words found in all the three other Gospels put together. Again, some expressions which are frequent in the other Gospels, in Luke occur but rarely. The Hebrew word Amen, as an affirmative adverb joined with λεγω ὑμιν, and used for ushering in solemnly the instructions given by our Lord, is employed by Luke much seldomer than by any of the other Evangelists. Instead of it he sometimes says αληθως, sometimes ναι, and once επ' αληθειας λεγω ὑμιν, phrases never used by the rest. On the other hand, he oftner than they, employs the neuter article το, in reference not to a noun, but to a sentence, or part of a sentence. Of this there are at least seven instances in his Gospel¹⁸. I recollect but two in the rest, one in Matthew¹⁹, and one in Mark²⁰. As to these two, they are not parallel places to any of the passages wherein this mode of construction has been adopted by Luke. It may be observed, in passing, that the terms peculiar to Luke are for the most part long and compound words. The first word of his Gospel, επειδηπερ, is of the number. So much for what regards his words and idioms.

²⁰ Mark, ix. 23.

§ 13. As to the other qualities of his style, we may remark, that there is more of composition in the sentences than is found in the other three. Of this the very first sentence is an example, which occupies no fewer than four verses. In the passages, however, wherein those incidents are related, or those instructions given, which had been anticipated by Matthew or by Mark, there is sometimes, not always, a perfect coincidence with these Evangelists in the expression, as well as in the sense; sometimes, however, the coincidence in translations is more complete than in the original. I have observed that there are degrees, even in the simplicity of the sacred writers; for though all the Evangelists are eminent for this quality, there are some characteristic differences between one and another, which will not escape the notice of a reader of discernment. Matthew and John have more simplicity than Mark; and Luke has, perhaps, the least of all. What has been observed of the greater variety of his style, and of his more frequent use of complex sentences, may serve as evidence of this. And even as to the third species of simplicity formerly mentioned²¹, simplicity of design, he seems to approach nearer the manner of other historians, in giving what may be called his own verdict, in the narrative part of his work. I remember at least one instance of this. In speaking of the Pharisees, he calls them *φιλαργυροι*²², lovers of money. The distinction with regard to Judas, which it was proper in them all to observe, as there were two of the name among the apostles, is expressed by Luke with more animation²³, ὅς και εγενετο προδοτης, who proved a traitor, than by Matthew²⁴, who says ὁ και παραδς αυτον; or by Mark²⁵, whose expression is, ὅς και παρεδωκεν αυτον; both which phrases, strictly interpreted, imply no more than who delivered him up. The attempt made by the Pharisees, to extort from our Lord what might prove matter of accusation against him, is expressed by Luke in language more animated than any of the rest, ηρξαντο δεινωσ ενεχειν, και αποσοματιζειν αυτον περι πλειονων²⁶, began vehemently to press him with questions on many points. On another occasion, speaking of the same people, he says, Αυτοι δε επλησθησαν ανοιας²⁷, But they were filled with madness. In the moral instructions given by our Lord, and recorded by this Evangelist, especially in the parables, none can be happier in uniting an affecting sweetness of manner with genuine simplicity. Of this union better instances cannot be imagined, than those of the humane Samaritan, and of the penitent prodigal!

²¹ Diss. III. § 18, &c.

²² Ch. xvi. 14.

§ 14. To conclude, though we have no reason to consider Luke as, upon the whole, more observant of the order of time than the other Evangelists, he has been at more pains than any of them, to ascertain the dates of some of the most memorable events on which, in a great measure, depend the dates of all the rest. In some places, however, without regard to order, he gives a number of detached precepts and instructive lessons, one after another, which probably have not been spoken on the same occasion, but are introduced as they occurred to the writer's memory, that nothing of moment might be omitted. In regard to the latter part of the life, and to the death of this Evangelist, antiquity has not furnished us with any accounts which can be relied on.

GOSPEL BY LUKE.

INTRODUCTION.

1. FORASMUCH as many have undertaken to 2 compose a narrative of those things which have 3 been accomplished amongst us, as they who were, 4 from the beginning, eye witnesses, and afterwards 5 ministers of the word, delivered them to us; I have 6 also determined, having exactly traced every thing 7 from the first, to write a particular account to 8 thee, most excellent Theophilus; that thou mayest 9 know the certainty of those matters wherein thou 10 hast been instructed.

THE ANNUNCIATION.

5 *IN the days of Herod, king of Judea, there was a priest named Zacharias, of the course of Abijah;
and his wife, named Elizabeth, was of the daugh-6 ters of Aaron. They were both righteous before God, blameless observers of all the Lord's com-7 mandments and ordinances. And they had no child, because Elizabeth was barren, and they were both advanced in years.*

1 Chr. 24;
10.

8 *Now when he came to officiate as priest in the 9 order of his course, it fell to him by lot, according to the custom of the priesthood, to offer incense in 10 the sanctuary. And while the incense was burning, 11 the whole congregation were praying without.
Then there appeared to him a messenger of the Lord, standing on the right side of the altar of incense.
12 And Zacharias was discomposed at the sight, and 13 in great terror. But the angel said to him, Fear not, Zacharias; for thy prayer is heard, and Elizabeth thy wife shall bear thee a son, whom thou 14 shalt name John²⁸. He shall be to thee matter of joy and transport; and many shall rejoice be-*

- 16 Holy Spirit, even from his mother's womb. And many of the sons of Israel he shall bring back to
- 17 the Lord their God. Moreover, he shall go before them in the spirit and power of Elijah, to reconcile fathers to their children, and, by the wisdom of the righteous, to render the disobedient a
- 18 people well disposed for the Lord. And Zacharias said to the angel, Whereby shall I know this : for I am an old man, and my wife is advanced in
- 19 *years ? The angel answering, said unto him, I am Gabriel*²⁹*, who attend in the presence of God, and am sent to tell thee this joyful news. But know that thou shalt be dumb, and shalt not recover thy speech, until the day when these things happen ; because thou hast not believed my words, which shall be fulfilled in due time.*
- 21 Meantime the people waited for Zacharias, and wondered that he staid so long in the sanctuary.
- 22 But when he came out, he could not speak to them ; and they perceived that he had seen a vision in the sanctuary ; for he made them understand
- 23 by signs, and remained speechless. And when his days of officiating were expired, he returned home.
- 24 Soon after, Elizabeth his wife conceived, and lived
- 25 in retirement five months, and said, The Lord hath done this for me, purposing now to deliver me from the reproach I lay under among men.

CH. I.

26 NOW in the sixth month God sent Gabriel his 27 messenger, to Nazareth, a city of Galilee; to a virgin betrothed to a man called Joseph, of the house of David; and the virgin's name was Mary.
 28 When the angel entered, he said to her, Hail, favourite of heaven! the Lord be with thee, thou 29 happiest of women! At his appearance and words she was perplexed, and revolved in her mind what 30 this salutation could mean. And the angel said to her, Fear not, Mary, for thou hast found favour 31 with God. And behold, thou shalt conceive and 32 bear a son, whom thou shalt name Jesus³¹. He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest. And the Lord God will give him the 33 throne of David his father. And he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever: his reign shall 34 never end. Then said Mary to the angel, How shall this be, since I have no intercourse with man?
 35 The angel answering, said unto her, The Holy Spirit will descend upon thee, and the power of the Highest will overshadow thee; therefore the Holy progeny shall be called the Son of God.
 36 And lo, thy cousin Elizabeth also hath conceived 37 a son in her old age; and she who is called bar-ren, is now in her sixth month: for nothing is im-38 possible with God. And Mary said, Behold the handmaid of the Lord. Be it unto me according to thy word. Then the angel departed.
 39 In those days Mary set out and travelled expedias the sound of thy salutation reached mine ears,

THE NATIVITY.

57 WHEN the time for Elizabeth's delivery was 58 come, she brought forth a son: and her neighbours and relations who heard that the Lord had shown 59 her great kindness, congratulated with her. And on the eighth day, when they came to the child's circumcision, they would have him called by his 60 father's name, Zacharias. And his mother, interposed, saying, No; but he shall be called John.
61 They said unto her, There is none of thy kindred 62 of that name. They therefore asked his father by 63 signs, how he would have him called. He having demanded a table-book, wrote thereon, "His name 64 "is John," which surprised them all. And his mouth was opened directly, and his tongue [loosed.] 65 And he spake, praising God. Now all in the neighbourhood were struck with awe; and the fame of these things spread throughout all the 66 hill-country of Judea. And all who heard these things, pondering them in their hearts, said, What will this child prove hereafter? And the hand of the Lord was with him.

 79 from on high to visit us, to enlighten those who abide in darkness and in the shades of death, to direct our feet into the way of peace.

80 Now the child grew, and acquired strength of mind, and continued in the deserts, until the time when he made himself known to Israel.

II. *ABOUT that time Cesar Augustus issued an edict that all the inhabitants of the empire should 8 that she should be delivered. And she brought forth her first-born son, and swathed him, and laid 9 him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the house allotted to strangers.

- 10 Now there were shepherds in the fields in that country, who tended their flock by turns through 11 the night-watches. On a sudden a messenger of the Lord stood by them, and a divine glory encompassed them with light, and they were frightened 12 exceedingly. But the angel said to them, Fear not; for lo I bring you good tidings, which shall prove matter of great joy to all the people; because to day is born unto you, in the city of David, a Saviour, who is the Lord Messiah. And by this ye shall know him; ye shall find a babe in swaddling bands, lying in the manger. Instantly the angel was attended by a multitude of the heavenly host, who praised God, saying, Glory to God in the highest heaven, and peace upon the earth, and good will towards men.
- 13 And when the angels returned to heaven, having left the shepherds, these said one to another, Let us go to Bethlehem, and see this which hath happened, whereof the Lord hath informed us. And hastening thither, they found Mary and Joseph

25 Now there was at Jerusalem a man named Simeon, a just and a religious man, who expected the consolation of Israel; and the Holy Spirit was 26 upon him, and had revealed unto him, that he should not die until he had seen the Lord's Mes-

 29 Now, Lord, thou dost in peace dismiss thy ser-30 vant, according to thy word; for mine eyes have 31 seen the Saviour, whom thou hast provided in the 32 sight of all the world; a luminary to enlighten the nations, and be the glory of Israel thy people.
 33 And Joseph, and the mother of Jesus, heard with 34 admiration the things spoken concerning him. And Simeon blessed them, and said to Mary his mother, This child is destined for the fall and the rise of 35 many in Israel, and to serve as a mark for contradiction (yea, thine own soul shall be pierced as with a javelin); that the thoughts of many hearts may be disclosed.
- 36 There was also a prophetess, Anna, daughter of Phanuel, of the tribe of Asher, in an advanced age, who had lived seven years with a husband, whom 37 she married when a virgin; and being now a widow of about eighty-four years, departed not from the temple, but served God in prayer and fasting 38 night and day; she also coming in at that instant, gave thanks to the Lord, and spake concerning Jesus to all those in Jerusalem who expected deliverance.
- 39 After they had performed every thing required by the law of the Lord, they returned to Galilee, 40 to their own city Nazareth. And the child grew and acquired strength of mind, being filled with wisdom, and adorned with a divine gracefulness.

THE BAPTISM.

41 NOW the parents of Jesus went yearly to Jerusa-42 lem at the feast of the passover. And when he Ex. 23; 14; Deut. 16; 1
 was twelve years old, they having gone thither, according to the usage of the festival, and remained 43 the customary time; being on their return, the child Jesus staid behind in Jerusalem, and neither Joseph 44 nor his mother knew it. They supposing him to be in the company, went a day's journey, and then 45 sought him among their relations and acquaintance; but not finding him, they returned to Je-46 rusalem, seeking him. And after three days, they found him in the temple, sitting among the doctors, 47 both hearing them, and asking them questions.
 48 And all who heard him were astonished; but they who saw him were amazed at his understanding and answers. And his mother said to him, Son, why hast thou treated us thus? Behold, thy fa-49 ther and I have sought thee with sorrow. He answered, Why did ye seek me? Knew ye not 50 that I must be at my Father's? But they did not comprehend his answer.

III. NOIV in the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius, Pontius Pilate being procurator of Judea, Herod tetrarch of Galilee, Philip his brother tetrarch of Iturea, and the province of Trachonitis, and Lysanias tetrarch of Abilene, in the high priesthood of Annas³¹ and Caiaphas, the word of God came, in the wilderness, to John the son of Zacharias. And he went through all the country along the Jordan, publishing the baptism of reformation for the remission of sins. As it is written in the book of the Prophet Isaiah, "The voice of one proclaiming in the wilderness, prepare a way for the Lord³², make for him a straight passage. Let every valley be filled, every mountain and hill be levelled; let the crooked roads be made straight, and the rough ways smooth, that all flesh may see the Saviour [sent] of God." Then said he to the multitudes who flocked out to be baptised by him, Offspring of vipers, who hath prompted you to flee from the impending vengeance? Produce then the proper fruits of reformation; and not say within yourselves, 'We have Abraham for our father;' for I assure you,

CH. 5.

V. ONE time, as he stood by the lake of *Genezareth*³⁸, the multitude pressing upon him to hear 2 the word of God, he saw two barks aground near the edge, but the fishermen were on shore washing 3 their nets. Having gone aboard one of them, which was Simon's, he desired him to put off a little from the land. Then he sat down, and taught the people out of the bark.

4 When he had done speaking, he said to Simon, Launch out into deep water, and let down your 5 nets for a draught. Simon answered, Master, we have toiled all night, and have caught nothing ; 6 nevertheless, at thy word, I will let down the net.

Having done this, they inclosed such a multitude of 7 fishes, that the net began to break. And they beckoned to their companions in the other bark to come and help them. And they came and laded both the 8 barks, so that they were near sinking. When Si- mon Peter saw this, he threw himself at Jesus' knees, crying, Depart from me, Lord, for I am a 4 sinful man. For the draught of fishes which they had taken had filled him and all his companions 10 with terror, particularly James and John, sons of Zebedee, who were Simon's partners. And Jesus said to Simon, Fear not, henceforth thou shalt 11 catch men. And having brought their barks to land, they forsook all and followed him.

THE NOMINATION OF APOSTLES.

 14 them he chose twelve, whom he named Apostles.

his brother, James and John, Philip and Bartho-of James, and Judas Iscariot, who proved a traitor.

ped in a plain, whither a company of his disciples, with a vast multitude from all parts of Judea, Jerusalem, and the maritime country of Tyre and 18 Sidon, were come to hear him, and to be healed of 19 unclean spirits, came and were cured. And every one strove to touch him, because a virtue came from him, which healed them all.

- 39 He used also this comparison: Can the blind

SIGNAL MIRACLES AND INSTRUCTIONS.

36 NOW one of the Pharisees asked Jesus to eat with him : and he went into the Pharisee’s house, Jo. 11; 2.
& 12; 3.
 37 and placed himself at table. And behold a woman in the city who was a sinner, knowing that he ate 38 at the house of the Pharisee, brought an alabaster box of balsam, and standing behind at his feet weeping, bathed them with tears, and wiped them with the hairs of her head, and kissed his feet, see who had invited him, observing this, said within himself, 'If this man were a prophet, he would ' have known who this woman is that toucheth him,

' and of what character; for she is a sinner.'

 sprung up, withered away for want of moisture; 7 part also fell among thorns, and the thorns grew up 8 and choked it; and part fell into good soil, and sprang up, and yielded increase a hundred fold.
Having said this, he cried, Whoso hath ears to hear, let him hear.

Mar. 4; 14.

11 Now this is the meaning of the parable. The 12 seed is the word of God. By the wayside are meant those hearers out of whose hearts the devil coming taketh away the word, lest they should be-13 lieve and be saved. By the rock are meant those who, when they hear, receive the word with joy, yet not having it rooted in them, are but temporary believers ; for in the time of trial they fall off.
14 By the ground encumbered with thorns, are meant those hearers who are entangled in the business, and pursuits, and pleasures of life, which stifle the word, so that it bringeth no fruit to ma-15 turity. But by the good soil are meant those, who, having heard the word, retain it in a good and honest heart, and persevere in bringing forth fruit.

He answered, Legion, because many demons had as there was a numerous herd of swine feeding on the mountain, that he would permit them to enter the demons, having quitted the man, entered into 34 into the lake, and were drowned. The herdsmen seeing this, fled, and spread the news through the to see what had happened. Being come to Jesus, and finding the man, of whom the demons were were overpowered with sleep ; but when they awoke, they saw his glory, and the two men who 33 stood with him. As these were removing from Jesus, Peter said to him, not knowing what he said, Master, it is good for us to stay here : let us, then, make three booths, one for thee, one for Moses, and 34 one for Elijah. While he was speaking, a cloud came and covered them, and the disciples feared 35 when those men entered the cloud : from the cloud a voice came, which said, This is my beloved Son, 36 hear him. While the voice was uttered, Jesus was found alone. And this they kept secret, telling nobody, in those days, aught of what they had seen.

37 The next day, when they were come down from Mat. 17; 14: 38 the mountain, a great multitude met him. And Mar. 9; 14:
 one of the crowd cried out, saying, Rabbi, I beseech thee, take pity on my son ; for he is my only 39 child. And lo a spirit seizeth him, making him instantly cry out, and fall into convulsions, so that he foameth ; and after he is much bruised, hardly 40 leaveth him. And I besought thy disciples to ex-41 pel the demon ; but they were not able. Then Jesus answering said, O incredulous and perverse generation ; how long shall I be with you, and suffer 42 you ? Bring thy son hither. And as he was coming, the demon dashed him down in convulsions. And Jesus rebuked the unclean spirit, and having cured 43 the child, delivered him to his father. And they were all amazed at the great power of God.

While all were admiring every thing which Je-44 sus did, he said to his disciples, Mark diligently 46 And there arose a debate among them, which of them should be the greatest. But Jesus, who perceived the thought of their heart, took a child, and placing him near himself, said to them, Whosoever shall receive this child for my sake, receiveth me; and whosoever shall receive me, receiveth him who sent me: for he who is least amongst you all shall be greatest.

Mar. 9; 38.

49 Then John said, Master, we saw one expelling demons in thy name, and we forbade him, because he consorteth not with us. Jesus answered, Forbid not such, for whoever is not against us, is for us.

51 *NO*W as the time of his removal approached, he set out resolutely for Jerusalem, and sent messengers before, who went into a village of the Samaritans to make preparation for him. But they would not admit him, because they perceived he was going to Jerusalem. His disciples, James and John, observing this, said, Master, wilt thou that we call down fire from heaven to consume them, as Elijah did? But he turned and rebuked them, saying, 55 Ye know not what spirit ye are of; for the Son of Man is come, not to destroy men, but to save them. Then they went to another village.

THE CHARACTER OF THE PHARISEES.

- XI. IT happened that Jesus was praying in a certain place ; and when he had done, one of his disciples said to him, Master, teach us to pray, as John al-2 so taught his disciples. He answered, When ye Mat. 6; 9.
 pray, say, 「Our † Father, † who art in heaven, † ‘ thy name be hallowed ; thy reign come ; † thy ‘ will be done upon the earth, as it is in heaven ; † 3 ‘ give us each day our daily bread ; and forgive us 4 ‘ our sins, for even we forgive all who offend us ;
 ‘ and abandon us not to temptation, † but preserve ‘ us from evil.’ † 5 Moreover, he said unto them, Should one of you have a friend, and go to him at midnight, and 6 say, ‘ Friend, lend me three loaves ; for a friend ‘ of mine is come off his road to see me, and I 7 ‘ have nothing to set before him ;’ and he from within should answer, ‘ Do not disturb me ; the ‘ door is now locked ; I and my children are in 8 ‘ bed ; I cannot rise to give thee :’ I tell you, † if the other continue knocking, † though he will not rise and supply him, because he is his friend ; he will, because of his importunity, get up, and give 9 him as many as he wanteth. I likewise tell you, Ask, and ye shall obtain; seek, and ye shall find; 10 knock, and the door shall be opened to you: for whosoever asketh, obtaineth; whosoever seeketh, findeth; and to every one who knocketh, the door 11 is opened. What father amongst you would give his son a stone, when he asketh bread; or when he asketh a fish, would, instead of a fish, give 12 him a serpent; or when he asketh an egg, would 13 give him a scorpion? If ye, therefore, bad as ye are, can give good things to your children; how much more will your Father give from heaven the Holy Spirit to them that ask him?

 whom do your sons expel them? Wherefore they 22 Then he said to his disciples, For this reason I charge you, be not anxious about your life, what ye shall eat; nor about your body, what ye shall wear.

23 Life is a greater gift than food, and the body than 24 raiment. Consider the ravens; they neither sow nor reap; have neither cellar nor barn; but God feedeth them. How much more valuable are ye 25 than the fowls? Besides, which of you can, by 26 his anxiety, prolong his life one hour? If, therefore, ye cannot thus effect even the smallest thing, 27 why are ye anxious about the rest? Consider the lilies. How do they grow? They toil not; they spin not; yet I affirm, that even Solomon, in all 28 these. If, then, God so array the herbage, which to-day is in the field, and to-morrow is cast into 29 the oven; how much more will he array you, O ye distrustful? Ask not ye, therefore, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink; live not in 30 anxious suspense. For all these things the Pagans seek; whereas your Father knoweth that ye need them.
31 But seek ye the kingdom of God, and all these 32 things shall be superadded to you. Fear not, my little flock, for it hath pleased your Father to give 33 you the kingdom. Sell your goods and give alms; provide yourselves purses which wear not out; treasure inexhaustible in heaven, where no thieves approach, where nothing is spoiled by worms.

CH. 12.

- 34 For where your treasure is, your heart will likewise be.
- 35 Let your loins be girt, and your lamps burning ; 1 Pet. 1; 13.
- 36 and yourselves like those who wait their master's return from the wedding ; that when he cometh and knocketh, they may immediately let him in.
- 37 Happy those servants whom their master, at his return, shall find watching. Verily I say unto you, that he will gird himself, and having placed them
- 38 at table, will attend and serve them. And whether he come in the second watch, or in the third ; if
- 39 he find things thus, happy are those servants. Ye Mat. 24; 43; 1 Th. 5. 2. Rev. 3; 3. & 16; 15. are certain, that if the master of the house knew at what hour the thief would come, he would watch,
- 40 and not allow him to break into his house. Be ye then always prepared ; because the Son of Man will come at an hour when ye are not expecting him.
- 41 Then Peter said to him, Master, is this comparison directed to us alone, or to all present ? The Lord said, Who now is the discreet and faithful steward, whom the master will set over his household, to dispense regularly the allowance of corn ?
- 43 Happy that servant, if his master, at his arrival,
- 44 shall find him so employed. I tell you truly, he will entrust him with the management of all his estate.
- 45 But as to the servant who shall say within himself, ' My master delayeth his return,' and shall beat the men-servants and the maids, and shall
- 46 feast and carouse, and be drunken ; the master of that servant will come on a day when he is not expecting him, and at an hour he is not apprized of,

 and having discarded him, will assign him his per-47 tion with the faithless. And that servant who knew his master's will, yet did not make himself ready, nor execute his orders, shall receive many 48 stripes; whereas he who knew it not, but did things deserving chastisement, shall receive few:
 for much will be required of every one to whom much is given; and the more a man is entrusted with, the more will be exacted from him.

49 I came to throw fire upon the earth; and what 50 would I, but that it were kindled? I have an immersion to undergo; and how am I pained till it 51 be accomplished? Do ye imagine that I am come to give peace to the earth? I tell you, No, but di-52 vision. For hereafter five in one family will be di-53 vided; three against two, and two against three;
 father against son, and son against father; mother against daughter, and daughter against mother; mother-in-law against daughter-in-law, and daughter-in-law against mother-in-law.

Mat. 10; 34. 54 He said also to the people, When ye see a cloud 55 rising in the west, ye say, 'It will rain immediately,' and so it happeneth: and when the south wind bloweth, ye say, 'It will be hot,' and it hap-56 peneth accordingly. Hypocrites, ye can judge of what appeareth in the sky, and on the earth; how 57 is it that ye cannot judge of the present time? and why do ye not even of yourselves discern what is just?

THE NATURE OF THE KINGDOM.

XIII. THERE were then present some who informed Jesus of the Galileans, whose blood Pilate had min-2 gled with that of their sacrifices. Jesus answering, said unto them, Think ye that these Galileans were the greatest sinners in all Galilee, because 3 they suffered such usage? I tell you, 'No; but 4 'unless ye reform, ye shall all likewise perish :' or those eighteen whom the tower of Siloam fell upon, and slew; think ye that they were the 5 greatest profligates in all Jerusalem? I tell you, No: but unless ye reform, ye also shall all perish.
 6 He also spake this parable. A man had a fig-tree planted in his vineyard, and came seeking 7 fruit on it, but found none. Then he said to the vine-dresser, 'This is the third year that I have ‘ come seeking fruit on this fig-tree, without find-8 ‘ ing any. Cut it down, why should it cumber

 ‘ the ground?’ He answered, ‘ Sir, let it alone ‘ one year longer, until I dig about it and dung it ; 9 ‘ perhaps it will bear fruit : if not, thou mayest ‘ afterwards cut it down.’

10 ONE sabbath, as he was teaching in a syna- 11 gogue, a woman was present who had for eighteen years had a spirit of infirmity, whereby she was so bowed down, that she could not so much as look up.
 12 Jesus, perceiving her, called her to him, and laying his hands on her, said, Woman, thou art delivered from thine infirmity. Immediately she stood up-14 right, and glorified God. But the director of the synagogue, moved with indignation because Jesus had performed a cure on the Sabbath, said to the people, There are six days for working ; come, therefore, on those days, and be healed, and not 15 on the Sabbath-day. To which the Lord replied, Hypocrites, who is there amongst you, that doth not on the Sabbath loose his ox or his ass from the 16 stall, and lead him away to watering ? And must not this woman, a daughter of Abraham, whom Satan hath kept bound, lo, these eighteen years, 17 be released from this bond on the Sabbath-day ?
On his saying this, all his opposers were ashamed ;
but the whole multitude was delighted with all the glorious actions performed by him.

Mat. 13; 31· 18 He said, moreover, What doth the kingdom of resembleth a grain of mustard seed, which a man threw into his garden ; and it grew and became a great tree, and the birds of the air took shelter in its branches.

- 20 Again he said, Whereunto shall I compare the Mat. 13; 33.
 21 kingdom of God ? It resembleth leaven which a woman mingled in three measures of meal, until the whole was leavened.
- 22 AND he took a journey to Jerusalem, teaching Mat. 9; 35.
 23 as he passed through cities and villages ; and one asked him, Master, are there but few who shall

- 25 If once the master of the house shall have arisen Mat. 25; 10.
 and locked the door, and ye standing without and knocking, say, ‘ Master, master, open unto us,’ he will answer, ‘ I know not whence ye are.’
 26 Then ye will say, ‘ We have eaten and drunk ‘ with thee, and thou hast taught in our streets.’ 27 But he will answer, ‘ I tell you, I know not Mat. 7; 25. & 25; 41.
 ‘ whence ye are : remove hence, all ye workers of ‘ unrighteousness.’ Then will ensue weeping and 28 gnashing of teeth, when ye shall see Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets, received into the kingdom of God, and yourselves excluded : nay, people will come from the east, from the west, from the north, and from the south, and will place themselves at table in the kingdom of 29 God. And behold they are last who shall be first, Mat. 19; 30. Mar. 10; 31.
 30 and they are first who shall be last.

31 The same day certain Pharisees came to him, and said, Get away ; depart hence, for Herod intend-32 eth to kill thee. He answered, Go tell that fox;
To-day and to-morrow I expel demons and per-33 formed cures, and the third day my course will be completed. Nevertheless I must walk about to-day and to-morrow, and the day following; for it cannot be that a prophet should be cut off any where Mat. 23; 37 34 but at Jerusalem. O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, that killest the prophets, and stonest them whom God sendeth to thee; how often would I have gathered thy children together, as a hen gathereth her brood 35 under her wings, but ye would not. Quickly shall your habitation be transformed into a desert; for verily I say unto you, ye shall not again see me, until the time when ye shall say, "Blessed be
 "he who cometh in the name of the Lord ⁴⁶."

XIV. It happened on a Sabbath, when he was gone to eat at the house of one of the rulers who was a Pharisee, that, while the Pharisees were observing him, a man who had a dropsy stood before him.
 2 Then Jesus, addressing himself to the lawyers and Pharisees, said, Is it lawful to cure on the Sab-4 bath? They being silent, he took hold of the man, 5 healed and dismissed him. Then resuming his dis- course, he said to them, Who amongst you, if his ass or his ox fall into a pit on the Sabbath-day,

6 will not immediately pull him out? And to this they were not able to make him a reply.

7 Observing how eager the guests were to possess the higher places at table, he gave them this injunction, When thou art invited to a wedding, do not occupy the highest place at table, lest one more 8 considerable than thou be bidden, and he who invited you both come and say to thee, Give place to this man, and thou shouldst then rise with confusion to take the lowest place. But, when thou 9 art invited, go to the lowest place, that when he who bade thee cometh, he may say to thee, 'Friend, 'go up higher;' for that will do thee honour before the company. For whoever exalteth himself, shall be humbled; and whoever humbleth himself, shall be exalted.

Prov. 25; 7.

ch. 18; 14.
Mat. 23; 12.

12 He said also to him who had invited him, When thou givest a dinner or a supper, do not invite thy rich friends, brothers, cousins, or neighbours, lest they also invite thee in their turn, and thou be 13 recompensed. But when thou givest an entertainment, invite the poor, the maimed, the lame, the 14 blind; and thou shalt be happy: for as they have not wherewith to requite thee, thou shalt be requited at the resurrection of the righteous.

15 One of the guests hearing this said to him, Happy he who shall feast in the reign of God. Jesus said to him, A certain man made a great supper and 16 invited many. And at supper-time he sent his servants to tell those who had been bidden to come 17 presently; for that all was ready. But they all, without exception, made excuses. One said, 'I ' have purchased a field, which I must go and see ; 19 ' I pray thee have me excused.' Another said, ' I ' have bought five yoke of oxen, which I am go-20 ' ing to prove ; I pray thee, have me excused.' A 21 third said, ' I have married a wife, and therefore I ' cannot go.' The servant, being returned, related all to his master. Then the master of the house was angry, and said to his servants, ' Go forth' with into the streets and lanes of the city, and

 ' bring in hither the poor, the maimed, the lame, 22 ' and the blind.' Afterwards the servant said,
 ' Sir, thy orders are executed, and still there is 23 ' room.' The master answered, ' Go out into the ' highways, and along the hedges, and compel
 ' people to come, that my house may be filled : 24 ' for I declare to you, that none of those who were ' invited shall taste of my supper.'

 Mar. 8; 34.

25 AS great multitudes travelled along with him, 26 he turned to them and said, If any man come to me and hate not his father and mother, and wife and children, and brothers and sisters ; nay, and him-27 self too, he cannot be my disciple. And whosoever doth not follow me carrying his cross, cannot 28 be my disciple. For, which of you intending to build a tower, doth not first by himself compute the expense, to know whether he have wherewith 29 to complete it ; lest, having laid the foundation, and being unable to finish, he become the derision 30 of all who see it, who will say, ' This man began king going to engage another king with whom he is at war, doth not first consult by himself, whether he can with ten thousand men, encounter him who cometh against him with twenty thousand ; 32 that, if he cannot, he may, while the other is at a 33 distance, send an embassy to sue for peace. So then, whosoever he be of you, who doth not renounce all that he hath, he cannot be my disciple.

SECTION X.

PARABLES.

XV. NOW all the publicans and the sinners resorted 2 to Jesus to hear him. But the Pharisees and the scribes murmured, saying, This man admitteth sinners, and eateth with them.

3 Then he addressed this similitude to them : Mat. 18; 12.

4 What man amongst you, who hath a hundred sheep, if he lose one of them, doth not leave the ninety-nine in the desert, to go after that which is 5 lost, until he find it ? And having found it, doth 6 he not joyfully lay it on his shoulders, and, when

- he is come home, convene his friends and neighbours, saying to them, ‘ Rejoice with me, for I 7 ‘ have found my sheep which was lost?’ Thus, I assure you, there is greater joy in heaven for one sinner who reformeth, than for ninety-nine righteous persons who need no reformation.
- 8 Or what woman, who hath ten drachmas ⁴⁷, if she lose one, doth not light a lamp, and sweep the 9 house, and search carefully, until she find it? And having found it, doth she not assemble her female friends and neighbours, saying, ‘ Rejoice with ‘ me, for I have found the drachma which I had 10 ‘ lost.’ Such joy, I assure you, have the angels of God, when any one sinner reformeth.
- 11 He said also, A certain man had two sons.
12 And the younger of them said to his father, ‘ Father, give me my portion of the estate.’ And 13 he allotted to them their shares. Soon after, the youngerson gathered all together, and travelled into a distant country, and there wasted his substance 14 in riot. When all was spent, a great famine came upon that land, and he began to be in want.
15 Then he applied to one of the inhabitants of that country, who sent him into his fields to keep swine.
16 And he was fain to fill his belly with the husks on which the swine were feeding; for nobody gave 17 him aught. At length, coming to himself, he said, ‘ How many hirelings hath my father, who have all ‘ more bread than sufficeth them, while I perish

CH. 15.

18 ' with hunger ! I will arise and go to my father, and ' will say unto him, Father, I have sinned against 19 ' heaven and thee, and am no longer worthy to be ' called thy son ; make me as one of thy hire-20 ' lings.' And he arose and went to his father.
When he was yet afar off, his father saw him, and had compassion, and ran, and threw himself upon 21 his neck, and kissed him. And the son said,
' Father, I have sinned against heaven and thee,
' and am no longer worthy to be called thy son.' 22 But the father said to his servants, ' Bring hither
' the principal robe and put it on him, and put a 23 ' ring on his finger, and shoes on his feet : bring ' also the fatted calf and kill it, and let us eat and 24 ' be merry ; for this my son was dead, and is alive ' again ; he was lost, and is found.' So they began to be merry.

25 Now his elder son was in the field walking home. And as he drew near the house, he heard 26 music and dancing. He, therefore, called one of 27 the servants, and asked the reason of this. He answered, ' Thy brother is returned, and thy fa' ther hath killed the fatted calf, because he hath 28 ' received him in health.' And he was angry, and would not go in ; therefore his father came out 29 and entreated him. He answering, said to his father, ' These many years I have served thee, with' out disobeying thy command in any thing ; yet
' thou never gavest me a kid that I might entertain 30 ' my friends ; but no sooner did this thy son re' turn, who hath squandered thy living on pros‘titutes, than thou killedst for him the fatted calf.’ 31 ‘Son,’ replied the father, ‘thou art always with ‘me, and all that I have is thine : it was but rea-32 ‘sonable that we should rejoice and be merry ; be‘cause this thy brother was dead, and is alive ‘again ; he was lost, and is found.’

XVI. HE said likewise to his disciples, A certain rich man had a steward, who was accused to him of 2 wasting his estate. Having, therefore, called him, he said, ‘What is this that I hear of thee ? ‘Ren‘der an account of thy management, for thou 3 ‘shalt be steward no longer.’ And the steward said within himself, ‘What shall I do ? My mas‘ter taketh from me the stewardship ; I cannot 4 ‘dig, and am ashamed to beg. I am resolved ‘what to do, that when I am discarded, there ‘may be some who will receive me into their 5 ‘houses.’ Having therefore sent severally for all his master’s debtors, he asked one, ‘How much 6 ‘owest thou to my master ?’ He answered, ‘A ‘hundred baths of oil⁴⁸.’ ‘Take back thy bill,’ said the steward, ‘sit down directly, and write one 7 ‘for fifty.’ Then he asked another, ‘How much ‘owest thou ?’ He answered, ‘A hundred ho-8 ‘mers⁴⁹ of wheat.’ ‘Take back thy bill,’ said he,
 ‘and write one for eighty.’ The master commended the prudence of the unjust steward ; for 14 When the Pharisees, who loved money, heard all

15 these things, they ridiculed him. But he said unto them, As for you, ye make yourselves pass upon men for righteous, but God knoweth your hearts ; for that which is admired by men, is abhorred of God.

SECT. X.

19 There was a certain rich man, that wore purple and fine linen, and feasted splendidly every day.

20 There was also a poor man named Lazarus, cover-21 ed with sores, that was laid at his gate; and was fain to feed on the crumbs which fell from the rich man's table: yea, even the dogs came and 22 licked his sores. It happened that the poor man died, and was conveyed by angels to Abraham's 23 bosom: the rich man also died, and was buried.
And in hades, being in torments, he looked up, and saw Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his 24 bosom, and cried, saying, 'Have pity on me,
' father Abraham, and send Lazarus to dip the tip
' of his finger in water, and cool my tongue, for 25 ' I am tortured in this flame.' Abraham answered, ' Son, remember that thou, in thy life-time,
' receivedst good things, and Lazarus received evil
' things; but now, he is in joy, and thou art in 26 ' torments. Besides, there lieth a huge gulph be' twixt us and you, so that they who would pass
' hence to you, cannot; neither can they pass to 27 ' us who would come thence.' The other replied,
' I entreat thee, then, father, to send him to my 28 ' father's house; for I have five brothers, that he ' may admonish them, lest they also come into this 29 ' place of torment.' Abraham answered, ' They ' have Moses and the Prophets, let them hear them.' 30 ' Nay,' said he, ' father Abraham, but if one ' went to them from the dead, they would reform.' 31 Abraham replied, ' If they hear not Moses and ' the Prophets; neither will they be persuaded.
' though one should arise from the dead.'

- 7 Would any of you, who hath a servant plow-

11 NOIW, in travelling to Jerusalem, he passed 12 through the confines of Samaria and Galilee, and being about to enter a certain village, there met him

 14 Jesus, Master, take pity upon us. When he saw in an instant from one extremity of the sky to the 27 the Son of Man. They ate, they drank, they married, they were given in marriage, until the day that Noah entered the ark, when the deluge they bought, they sold, they planted, they built ;

 he refused: but afterwards he argued thus with 5 himself, ‘Although I neither fear God, nor regard ‘man; yet because this widow importuneth me, ‘I will judge her cause, lest she come perpetual-6 ‘ly and plague me.’ Mark, said the Lord, what 7 the unjust judge determined. And will not God avenge his elect, who cry to him day and night?
 8 Will he linger in their cause? I assure you, he will suddenly avenge them. Nevertheless, when the Son of Man cometh, will he find this belief in the land?

9 Then addressing some who were conceited of themselves as being righteous, and despised others, 10 he proposed this example: Two men went up to the temple to pray; one a Pharisee, the other a 11 publican. The Pharisee standing by himself, prayed thus: ‘O God, I thank thee that I am not as ‘other men, extortioners, unjust, adulterers, or 12 ‘even as this publican. I fast twice a week. I 13 ‘give tithes of all that I possess.’ But the publican standing at a distance, and not daring so much as to lift up his eyes to heaven, smote upon his breast, and cried, ‘God be merciful to me a sin-14 ner.’ I assure you that this man returned home, more approved than the other: for whoever exaltthey understood none of these things: this discourse when he was nigh, he asked him, saying, What Master, to give me my sight. And Jesus said to him, Receive thy sight; thy faith hath cured thee.

43 Instantly he received his sight, and followed him, glorifying God; and all the people saw it, and praised God.

 6 for to-day I must abide at thy house. And he made haste, and came down, and received him joyfully.
 7 When the multitude perceived this, they said, murmuring, He is gone to be entertained by a sinner.
 8 But Zaccheus presenting himself before Jesus, said, Master, the half of my goods I will give to the poor; and if in aught I have wronged any man, I went, the people spread their mantles in the way disciples began to praise God in loud acclamations, for all the miracles which they had seen, saying,

38 ‘ Blessed be the King who cometh in the name ‘ of the Lord ; peace in heaven, and glory in the 39 ‘ highest heaven.’ Upon this some Pharisees in the crowd said to him, Rabbi, rebuke thy disci-40 ples. He answered, I tell you that, if these were silent, the stones would cry out.

41 When he came near and beheld the city, he 42 wept over it, saying, O that thou hadst considered, at least in this thy day, the things which concern thy peace ! But now they are hidden from 43 thine eyes ; for the days are coming upon thee when thine enemies will surround thee with a every side, and will level thee with the ground, thee and thy children, and will not leave thee one stone upon another, because thou didst not consider the time when thou wast visited.

15 Then he spake to the people this parable: A man Mat. 21; 33-

 20 beat him, and sent him back empty. Afterwards, 21 he sent another servant, whom they, having beaten 22 and used him shamefully, also sent away empty.
 23 He, afterwards, dispatched a third to them. Him 24 likewise they wounded and drove away. Then 25 the proprietor of the vineyard said, 'What shall I 26 'do? I will send my beloved son; they will surely 27 'reverence him, when they see him.' But when 28 the husbandmen saw him, they reasoned thus 29 among themselves, 'This is the heir, come, let us 30 'kill him, that the inheritance may be our own.' 31 And having thrust him out of the vineyard, they 32 killed him. What, therefore, will the proprietor of 16 the vineyard do to them? He will come and destroy those husbandmen, and give the vineyard to 17 others. And some of his hearers said, God forbid.

Jesus, looking on them, said, What then meaneth that expression of Scripture, "A stone which " the builders rejected is made the head of the 18 " corner. Whosoever shall fall upon that stone, " shall be bruised; but on whomsoever it shall 19 " fall, it will crush him to pieces." At that time the chief priests and the scribes, knowing that he had spoken this parable against them, would have laid hands on him, but feared the people.

And they watched him, and set spies upon him, instructing them to personate conscientious men, and surprise him in his words, that they might consign him to the power and authority of the pro-21 curator. These accosted him with this question, Rabbi, we know that thou speakest and teachest uprightly, and that, without respect of persons, 22 thou faithfully recommendest the way of God. Is 23 it lawful for us to pay taxes to Cesar or not? He perceiving their subtlety, answered, Why would 24 ye inveigle me? Show me a denarius. Whose image and inscription hath it? They answered, 25 Cesar's. He replied, Render, therefore, to Cesar that which is Cesar's, and to God that which is 26 God's. Thus they could not surprise him in his discourses before the people; wherefore, admiring his answer, they kept silence.

*Afterwards some of the Sadducees, who deny a bi, Moses hath enjoined in his writings, that a man whose brother dieth childless outlived by his wife, shall marry the widow, and raise issue to his brother. Now there were seven brothers, the first of whom having taken a wife, died childless ; the second married the widow, and also died childless ; the third too married her, as did likewise the rest ; and all the seven died leaving no children. Last of all the woman also died. To which of them, therefore, will she be wife at the resurrection ; for she hath been married to all the seven ? Jesus answering, said unto them, The people of this world marry and are given in marriage ; but among them who shall be honoured to share in the resurrection and the other world, there will be neither marrying nor giving in marriage : For they cannot die any more ; because angel-like they are children of God, being children of the resurrection. But that the dead are raised, even Moses hath suggested, calling the Lord who appeared in the bush, the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. Now he is not a God of the dead, but of the living ; for they are all, [though dead to us,] alive to him. Then some of the scribes said to him, Rabbi, thou hast spoken well. After that they did not venture to ask him any more questions.

 coming upon the world ; for the powers of heaven and he who was called Judas, one of the twelve, walked before them, and came up to Jesus to kiss 48 him. Jesus said to him,* Judas, betrayest thou the 49 Son of Man with a kiss? Now those who were with him, foreseeing what would happen, said to 50 him, Master, shall we strike with the sword? And one of them struck the servant of the high priest, 51 and cut off his right ear. Jesus said, Let this suf-52 fice; and touching his ear, he healed him. Then Jesus said to the chief priests, and the officers of the temple-guard, and the elders who were come to apprehend him, Do ye come with swords and 53 clubs, as in pursuit of a robber? While I was daily with you in the temple, ye did not attempt to arrest me. But this is your hour, and the power of darkness.

THE CRUCIFIXION.

54 THEN they seized him, and led him away to the 55 high priest's house. And Peter followed at a distance. When they had kindled a fire in the middle of the court, and were sitting round it, Peter sat 56 down among them. And a maid-servant having observed him sitting by the fire, and viewed him at-57 tentively, said, This man also was with him. But he disowned him, saying, Woman, I know him not.
 58 A little while after, another seeing him, said, Thou also art one of them. Peter answered, Man, I am 59 not. About an hour after, another averred the same thing, saying, This man was surely with him, 60 for he is a Galilean. Peter answered, Man, I know nothing of this matter. And just as he spake 61 the word, the cock crew. Then the Lord turning, looked upon Peter, and Peter called to mind the word which the Lord had said unto him, "Before abusive things they said against him.

with the chief priests and scribes, were assembled, who having caused him to be brought into their coun-believe: and if I put a question, ye will neither 69 answer me, nor acquit me. Hereafter the Son of Man shall be seated at the right hand of Almighty 70 God. They all replied, Thou art then the Son 71 of God? He answered, Ye say the truth. Then they cried, What further need have we of evidence?

We have heard enough ourselves from his own mouth.

was a senator named Joseph, a good and just man, who had not concurred in the resolutions and proceedings of the rest, and who himself also expected 52 the reign of God. This man went to Pilate, and 53 begged the body of Jesus. And having taken it down, he wrapped it in linen, and laid it in a tomb cut in stone, wherein no man had ever been de-54 posited. Now that day was the preparation⁵¹, who had accompanied Jesus from Galilee, followed Joseph, and observed the monument, and how the spices and ointments, and then rested the Sabbath⁵³,

JOHN'S GOSPEL.

THAT the Apostle John, a fisherman of Bethsaida in Galilee, the beloved disciple, the younger brother of James called the greater or elder (there being two Apostles of the name) and son of Zebedee by Salome¹ his wife, one of the three most favoured Apostles, and who, with his brother James, on account of their zeal in their Master's service, were honoured with the title Boanerges, or Sons of Thunder, was, in the order of time, the last of the Evangelists, is manifest from the uniform voice of Christian antiquity. There are evident references to this Gospel, though without naming the author, in some Epistles of Ignatius, the authenticity of which is strenuously maintained by Bishop Pearson, and other critics of name.

§ 2. THE precise time when this Gospel was written has not been ascertained. The most probable opinion seems to be, that it was after John's return from exile in the isle of Patmos, whither, as we learn from himself, he had been banished *for the word of God and testimony of Jesus*². This probably happened in the persecution under the emperor Domitian. It was in that island where God made those revelations to him, which were collected by him into a book, thence called the Apocalypse or Revelation. The last of his works is thought to have been his Gospel, which the entreaties of the Christian people, and pastors of Ephesus, and of other parts of Asia Minor, where he had his residence in the latter part of his life, prevailed on him to undertake. If so, it must have been towards the close of the first century when this Gospel first appeared in the church, and it was in the beginning of the second, when the above-mentioned Ignatius wrote his Epistles. There are also in Justin Martyr, both references to this Gospel, and quotations from it, though without naming the author. Tatian took notice of this Evangelist by name, and used his Gospel along with the rest in composing his Diatessaron. I need scarcely mention the notice that is taken of it in the Epistle of the churches of Vienne and Lyons, or by Irenæus, who names all the Evangelists, specifying something peculiar to every one of them whereby he may be distinguished from the rest. I might add Athenagoras, Theophilus of Antioch, Clement of Alexandria, Tertullian, and the whole current of succeeding ecclesiastical writers.

§ 3. THE account which Irenæus gives of the occasion of writing this Gospel is as follows³: “John, “desirous to extirpate the errors sown in the minds “of men by Cerinthus, and sometime before by “those called Nicolaitans, published his Gospel, “wherein he acquaints us that there is one God who “made all things by his word; and not, as they “say, one who is the Creator of the world, and “another who is the Father of the Lord; one the “Son of the Creator, and another the Christ from “the supercelestial abodes, who descended upon “Jesus, the Son of the Creator, but remained impassible, and afterwards flew back into his own “pleroma or fulness.”—Again, “This disciple, “therefore, willing at once to cut off these errors, “and establish a rule of truth in the church, declares that there is one God Almighty who, by “his word, made all things visible and invisible; “and that by the same word, by which God finished the work of creation, he bestowed salvation upon “men who inhabit the creation. With this doctrine he ushers in his Gospel, In the beginning “was the word,” &c. This testimony is of great antiquity, having been given in less than a century after the publication of the Gospel. As Irenæus, however, names no authority, and quotes no preceding writer in support of what he has advanced in relation to the design of the Evangelist, it can only be considered by us as on the footing of ancient tradition.

§ 4. CLEMENT of Alexandria, who wrote not long after Irenæus, has, as we learn from Eusebius ⁴, added some particulars, as what, in his opinion, together with the entreaties of the Asiatic churches, contributed, not a little, to induce John to compose his Gospel. The first he mentions is, that the Evangelists who had preceded him, had taken little notice of our Lord's teaching and actions soon after the commencement of his ministry, and before the imprisonment of John the Baptist. One consideration therefore, which induced him, though late, to publish a Gospel, was to supply what seemed to have been omitted by those who had gone before him. For this reason he avoided, as much as possible, recurring to those passages of our Lord's history of which the preceding Evangelists had given an account. There was no occasion, therefore, for him to give the genealogy of our Saviour's flesh, as the historian expresses it ⁵, which had been done by Matthew and Luke before him. The same Eusebius says in another place ⁶, quoting Clement, “ John, “ who is the last of the Evangelists, having seen “ that in the three former Gospels corporeal things “ had been explained, and being urged by his ac- “ quaintance, and inspired of God, composed a “ spiritual Gospel.” Thus it appears to have been a very early tradition in the church, that this Gospel was composed not only to supply what had not been fully communicated in the former Gospels, but also to serve for refuting the errors of Cerinthus and the Gnostics.

§ 5. YET in the time of Epiphanius, about the middle of the fourth century, an opinion, much the reverse of the former, was maintained by a few sectaries whom he calls Alogians ⁷, because they rejected the Logos, that is, the word. Their opinion was, that Cerinthus himself was the author of this Gospel, an opinion, as Epiphanius clearly shows, quite improbable in itself, and unsupported by evidence; improbable in itself, because the words employed by the Evangelist, so far from confirming, contradict the sentiments of the Heresiarch, unsupported by evidence, because there is nothing to counterbalance the contrary evidence above mentioned, the ancient tradition and uniform testimony, both of the friends and of the foes of Christianity, who had all concurred in affirming that this Gospel was written by John. In all the controversies maintained with Celsus, with Porphyry, and with the emperor Julian, who strained every nerve to undermine the authority of the Gospels, they never thought of controverting that they were written by those whose names they bear. So clear was this point accounted, for ages, even by the most acute adversaries of the Christian name.

§ 6. It deserves our particular attention, that this Gospel carries in its bosom strong internal evidences of the truth of some of those accounts which have been transmitted to us from the primitive ages. At the same time that it bears marks more signal than any of them, that it is the work of an illiterate Jew ; the whole strain of the writing shows that it must have been published at a time, and in a country the people whereof in general knew very little of the Jewish rites and manners. Thus, those who in the other Gospels are called simply the people or the multitude, are here denominated the Jews, a method which would not be natural in their own land, or even in the neighbourhood, where the nation itself, and its peculiarities, were perfectly well known. As it was customary in the East, both with Jews and others, to use proper names independently significant, which, when they went abroad, were translated into the language of the country, this author, that there might be no mistake of the persons meant, was careful, when the Greek name had any currency, to mention both names, Syriac and Greek. Thus Cephas, which denoteth the same as Peter ⁸; Thomas, that is Didymus ⁹. The same may be said of some titles in current use, rabbi, which signifieth doctor ¹⁰, messiah, a term equivalent to Christ ¹¹. In like manner when there is occasion to mention any of the religious ceremonies used in Judea, as their purifications or their festivals, it is almost invariably signified that the ceremony or custom spoken of is Jewish. Thus the water-pots are said to be placed for the Jewish rites of cleansing ¹², κατα τον καθαρισμον των Ισδαιων. The passover is once and again ¹³ denominated the Jewish passover, η πασχα των Ισδαιων, a phrase used only by this Evangelist; and even any other religious feast is called ¹⁴ by him εορτη των Ισδαιων, a Jewish festival. This style runs through the whole. The writer every where speaks as to people who knew little or nothing about the Jews. Thus, in the conversation between our Lord and the woman of Samaria, the historian interrupts his narrative by inserting a clause to account to the Asiatic Gentile readers for that strange question put by the woman ¹⁵, How is it that thou, who art a Jew, askest drink of me who am a Samaritan? The clause in-

served for explanation is, (for the Jews have no friendly intercourse with the Samaritans.) Again, for the information of the same readers, after acquainting us that the Galileans had seen our Lord's miracles at Jerusalem during the festival, he adds¹⁶, for they likewise attended the festival. Neither of these explanatory clauses would ever have been thought of in Palestine, or perhaps even in Syria, where the enmity betwixt the Jews and the Samaritans, and the connection of Galilee with Judea, were better known.

§ 7. IT may be objected against the use I make of this observation, that as Mark and Luke are thought not to have published their Gospels in Palestine, it might have been expected that they also should have adopted the same manner. This in part I admit. I have accordingly pointed out¹⁷ a few examples of a similar nature in the Gospel by Mark. And as to the Evangelist Luke, if his Gospel was, as I have supposed¹⁸, published at Antioch, or in any part of Syria, there was not the same occasion. But, in answer to the objection, it may be further observed, that those published soon after our Lord's ascension, in whatever part of the world it was, were mostly for the use of converts from Judaism, with whom the church, in the beginning, chiefly abounded. But towards the end of the first century, the reception of this doctrine, particularly in Greece, Asia Minor, and those places which had been most favoured with the teaching of Paul, became much more general among the Gentiles, who knew little or nothing of Jewish ceremonies. That the writer of this Gospel had such disciples chiefly in view, is very plain to every reader of discernment.

§ 8. THOUGH simplicity of manner is common to all our Lord's historians, there are evident differences in the simplicity of one compared with that of another. One thing very remarkable in John's style, is an attempt to impress important truths more strongly on the minds of the readers, by employing, in the expression of them, both an affirmative proposition, and a negative. Thus ¹⁹: All things were made by it (the word), and without it not a single creature was made. He acknowledged and denied not, but acknowledged ²⁰. Pleonasms are very frequent in this Gospel ²¹: This man came as a witness to testify concerning the light: tautologies also, and repetitions. Thus it follows ²²: He was not the light, but came to testify concerning the light. Again ²³: In the beginning was the word, and the word was with God, and the word was God. This was in the beginning with God. See also the verses marked in the margin ²⁴.

§ 9. HEBRAISMS are to be found in all the Evangelists; though it may be remarked, that some abound more with one sort of Hebraism, and others with another. A Hebrew idiom, very frequent with this writer, is the repetition or introduction of the personal pronoun in cases wherein it is perfectly redundant. Thus ²⁵: Ἐφ' ὅν αν ιδης το πνευμα καταβαινον και μενον επ' αυτον, literally, On whomsoever thou shalt see the Spirit descending, and remaining upon him. And ²⁶, Ὅν εγω εκ εμι αξιος ινα λυσω αυτε τον ιμαντα τε υποδηματος. Here both the pronouns ὅν and αυτου are employed in relation to the same person, an idiom which it is hardly possible to express intelligibly in a modern language. As to other particularities in this writer, I shall only observe, that the conjunction και is not so frequently used by John for coupling sentences, as by the rest. The introduction of any incident with the phrase και εγενετο, generally rendered in the common translation, and it came to pass; in which the verb is used impersonally, though common in the other Gospels, never occurs in this.

§ 10. THE introduction of either facts or observations, by the adverb ιδε, behold, is much rarer in this Gospel than in the rest. But in the change (or, as rhetoricians term it, enallage) of the tenses, so frequent with the Hebrews, John abounds more than any other of our Lord's biographers. He is peculiar in the application of some names; as of ὁ λογος, the word, and ὁ μονογενης, the only-begotten, to the

Lord Jesus Christ, and of ὁ παρακλητης, the monitor, or, as some render it, the advocate, and others, the comforter, to the Holy Spirit. He is peculiar also in some modes of expression, which, though inconsiderable in themselves, it may not be improper to suggest in passing. Such is his reduplication of the affirmative adverb Αμην; for he always says, Αμην αμην λεγω υμιν, Verily verily I say unto you. It is never used but singly by the rest. Upon the whole, John's style is thought to be more idiomatical, and less conformable to the syntactic order, than that of any other writer in the New Testament. There is none whose manner more bespeaks an author destitute of the advantages which result from letters and education.

§ 11. IT is manifestly not without design that he commonly passes over those passages of our Lord's history and teaching, which had been treated at large by the other Evangelists, or, if he touches them at all, he touches them but slightly, whilst he records many miracles which had been overlooked by the rest, and expatiates on the sublime doctrines of the pre-existence, the divinity, and the incarnation of the Word, the great ends of his mission, and the blessings of his purchase. One of the most remarkable passages of our Lord's history, related by all the evangelists except John, is the celebrated prophecy of the destruction of Jerusalem, the Jewish temple, and state, about forty years before it happened. The three other historians published it before the accomplishment, when their narratives could answer two purposes of the utmost importance, one was, to prove in due time, to impartial inquirers, an irrefragable evidence of our Lord's mission; the other, to serve to his disciples not only for the confirmation of their faith, but as a warning how to conduct themselves when the signs of an immediate completion should appear. Now neither of these purposes could be answered by the account of a prediction not written till after its accomplishment, when it might be speciously objected, if conformable, that the terms of the prediction were adjusted to the events; and as a warning, every body must see that it was too late to warn when the danger was past. Providence has disposed matters infinitely better, producing Christians who had the best opportunity to know what their master predicted, to attest the prophecy, many years before there was the remotest appearance of its completion, and a Jewish witness not a friend but an enemy to christianity to attest its fulfilment. Such was the historian Josephus, who probably knew nothing of the prediction; but had the very best opportunity of knowing circumstantially what was accomplished by the Romans, and who, by his faithful and accurate narrative of the facts, has unintentionally rendered an eminent service to the Christian cause. He has shown the exact conformity of those then recent and terrible transactions which he had witnessed, to what our Lord had foretold, and his evangelists recorded at a time when there was not the shadow of any revolution, much less of such a total overthrow of the country. For an example, on the contrary, of a fact related by John, but omitted by all the rest, the most striking by far is the resurrection of Lazarus, than which none of our Lord's miracles was greater in itself, or more signalized by the attendant circumstances. At first it appears astonishing that an action so illustrious as the resuscitation of a man who had been four days dead and buried, the most public too, in what may be called a suburb of the capital, in open day, the spectators numerous, as the paschal solemnity approached, which always drew an immense concourse to Jerusalem, and (which made it still more remarkable) a little before Christ's crucifixion; circumstances so impressive as to render it morally impossible that a fact so memorable should have escaped any christian historian of the time. But how happily does the circumstance remarked by Grotius, as suggested in the sequel of this evangelist's narrative, remove every appearance of negligence in the sacred penmen, and account in the most rational manner for the profound silence they had observed on this article! A great number of the Jews, says John²⁷, knowing that Jesus was in Bethany, in the house of Lazarus, flocked thither, not on account of Jesus only, but likewise to see Lazarus whom he had raised from the dead. The chief priests, therefore, determined to kill Lazarus also; because he proved the occasion that many Jews forsook them, and believed on Jesus. Consequently to publish this miracle whilst Lazarus and his sisters lived in the vicinity of Jerusalem, was to set up that worthy family as marks to the malice, not of the chief priests only, but of all the enemies of the Christian name. If we may credit tradition, Lazarus lived after this resurrection, 30 years. Within less than 20, Matthew, Mark and Luke published their gospels. But it was 32 years at least, and consequently after the death of Lazarus, that John wrote his gospel. I subjoin an observation on the suppression of a small circumstance in another passage, which is similarly accounted for, and deserves notice, because the similarity itself is a presumption of the justness of the account in the solution of both. It has been observed that all the four mention, that in the slight attempt to resist, when Jesus was apprehended, the high priest's servant had an ear cut off, but John alone acquaints us that the disciple who did this was Simon Peter. The fact must have been well known to them all: but the other gospels were written in Peter's lifetime; this alone after his death, when the mention of that circumstance could nowise hurt him. The uniformity of this caution in the sacred writers appearing in different instances, renders the justness of the reasons assigned the more probable. I may add, that, from circumstances which to a superficial view seem to add improbability to a narrative, there arises sometimes, when nearly inspected, additional presumptive evidence of its truth. There is also in these hints what may serve to confirm the traditions and early accounts we have both of the writers of the gospels, and of the time of their composition. This gospel may be truly said to interfere less with the rest than these do with one another: in consequence of which, if its testimony cannot often be pleaded in confirmation of theirs, neither is it liable to be urged in contradiction. It is remarkable also, that though this Evangelist appears, more than any of them, to excel in that artless simplicity, which is scarcely compatible with the subtlety of disputation, we have, in his work, a fuller display of the evidences of our religion, on the footing on which it then stood, than in all the rest put together.

§ 12. HERE we have also the true sources of Christian consolation under persecution, and the strongest motives to faith, patience, constancy, and mutual love, in every situation wherein Providence may place us. From the incidents here related, we may learn many excellent lessons of modesty, humanity, humility, and kind attention to the concerns of others. Nor does any one of those incidents appear to be more fraught with instruction, than the charge of his mother, which our blessed Lord, at that critical time when he hung in agony upon the cross, consigned to his beloved disciple²⁸. Though the passage is very brief and destitute of all artful colouring, nothing can impress more strongly, on the feeling heart, his respectful tenderness for a worthy parent, and his unalterable affection for a faithful friend. Upon the whole, the language employed in conveying the sentiments, is no more than the repository, the case. Let not its homeliness discourage any one from examining its invaluable contents. The treasure itself is heavenly, even the unsearchable riches of Christ, which the Apostle observes²⁹, to be committed to earthen vessels, that the excellency of the power may, to the conviction of all the sober-minded, be of God, and not of men.

§ 13. THE Apostle John, by the concurrent testimony of all Christian antiquity, after suffering persecution for the cause of Christ, lived to a very great age, and having survived all the other Apostles, died a natural death at Ephesus in Asia Minor, in the reign of the emperor Trajan.

10 He was in the world, and the world was made to his own home, and his own family did not re-when he cried, " This is he of whom I said, He 25 they who were sent were of the Pharisees. And they questioned him further, Why then dost thou baptize, if thou be not the Messiah, nor Elijah, 26 nor the Prophet? John answered, I baptize in water, but there is one amongst you whom ye 27 know not. It is he who cometh after me, and was before me, whose shoe-latchet I am not worthy to loose. This happened at Bethany, upon the Jordan, where John was baptizing.

- 29 On the morrow John seeth Jesus coming to him, and saith, Behold the Lamb of God which taketh 30 away the sin of the world. This is he concerning whom I said, “After me cometh a man who 31 “is preferred to me; for he was before me.” As for me, I knew him not; but to the end that he may be discovered to Israel, I am come baptizing 32 in water. John testified further, saying, I saw the Spirit descending from heaven like a dove, 33 and remaining upon him. For my part, I should not have known him, had not he who sent me to baptize in water told me, ‘Upon whomsoever ‘thou shalt see the Spirit descending and remaining, the same is he who baptizeth in the Holy

THE ENTRANCE ON THE MINISTRY.

II. THREE days after, there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee, and the mother of Jesus was

 3 the marriage. The wine falling short, the mother 4 of Jesus said to him, They have no wine. Jesus answered, Woman, what hast thou to do with me?

 8 pots with water. And they filled them to the brim.
 8 Then he said, Draw now, and carry to the direc-9 tor of the feast. And they did so. When the director of the feast had tasted the wine made of water, not knowing whence it was (but the ser-10 vants who drew the water knew), he said, addressing the bridegroom, Every body presenteth the best wine first, and worse wine afterwards, when the guests have drunk largely; but thou hast re-11 served the best until now. This first miracle Jesus wrought in Cana of Galilee, displaying his glory: and his disciples believed on him.
 12 Afterwards he went to Capernaum, he and his mother, and his brothers, and his disciples; but they stayed not there many days.

13 AND the Jewish passover being nigh, Jesus 14 went to Jerusalem; and finding changers sitting in the temple, and people who sold cattle, and 15 sheep, and doves; he made a whip of cords, and drove them all out of the temple, with the sheep and the cattle, scattering the coin of the changers, and 16 oversetting their tables; and said to them who sold doves, Take these things hence. Make not my 17 Father's house a house of traffic. Then his disciples remembered these words of Scripture, "My "zeal for thy house consumeth me."

Jews replied, Forty and six years was this temple in building; and thou wouldst rear it in three 21 days? But by the temple he meant his body.
22 When therefore he was risen from the dead, his disciples remembered that he had said this, and they understood the Scripture, and the word which Jesus had spoken.

23 While he was at Jerusalem, during the feast of the passover, many believed on him, when they saw 24 the miracles which he performed. But Jesus did not trust himself to them, because he knew them 25 all. He needed not to receive from others a character of any man, for he knew what was in man.

III. NOW there was a Pharisee, called Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews, who came to Jesus by night, and said to him, Rabbi, we know that thou art a teacher come from God; for no man can do these miracles which thou dost, unless God be 3 with him. Jesus answering, said unto him, Verily verily I say unto thee, unless a man be born 4 again, he cannot discern the reign of God. Nicodemus replied, How can a grown man be born? Can he enter his mother's womb anew, and be 5 born? Jesus answered, Verily verily I say unto thee, unless a man be born of water and Spirit, 6 he cannot enter the kingdom of God. That which is born of the flesh is flesh; that which is born of 7 the Spirit is spirit. Wonder not, then, that I said

8 to thee, Ye must be born again. The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but knowest not whence it cometh, or whither it goeth; so it is with every one who is 9 born of the Spirit. Nicodemus answered, How can 10 these things be? Jesus replied, Art thou the teacher of Israel, and knowest not these things? Verily 11 verily I say unto thee, we speak what we know, and testify what we have seen; yet ye receive not 12 our testimony. If ye understood not when I told you earthly things; how will ye understand, when 13 I tell you heavenly things? For none ascendeth into heaven, but he who descended from heaven;

 the well is deep : whence then hast thou the living 12 water ? Art thou greater than our father Jacob, who gave us the well, and drank thereof himself, 13 and his sons, and his cattle ? Jesus replied, Whoso 14 drinketh of this water, will thirst again ; but whoever shall drink of the water which I shall give him, shall never thirst more ; but the water which I shall give, shall be in him a fountain springing 15 up to everlasting life. The woman answered, Sir, give me this water, that I may never be thirsty, 16 nor come hither to draw. Jesus said to her, Go, 17 call thy husband, and come back. She answered, 18 I have no husband. Jesus replied, Thou sayest well, ‘I have no husband ;’ for thou hast had five husbands ; and he whom thou now hast, is not thy 19 husband ; in this thou hast spoken truth. The wo- man said, Sir, I perceive that thou art a prophet.
 20 Our fathers worshipped on this mountain ; and ye Deut. 12; 5. say that in Jerusalem is the place where men ought 21 to worship. Jesus answered, Woman, believe me, the time approacheth, when ye shall neither come to this mountain, nor go to Jerusalem, to worship 22 the Father. Ye worship what ye know not; we worship what we know: for salvation is from the 23 Jews. But the time cometh, or rather is come, when the true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and truth: for such are the worship-

24 pers whom the Father requireth. God is a spirit, and they that worship him, must worship him in 25 spirit and truth. The woman replied, I know that the Messiah ³⁹ cometh (that is, the Christ ⁴⁰); 26 when he is come, he will teach us all things. Jesus said unto her, I who speak unto thee am he.

27 Upon this his disciples came and wondered that he talked with a woman; yet none of them said, ‘What seekest thou? or why talkest thou with her?’
 28 Then the woman left her pitcher, and having gone 29 into the city, said to the people, Come, see a man 30 who hath told me all that ever I did. Is this the Messiah? They accordingly went out of the city and came to him.

31 Meanwhile the disciples entreating him, said, 32 Rabbi, eat. He answered, I have meat to eat 33 which ye know not of. Then said his disciples one 34 to another, Hath any man brought him food?
Jesus answered, My food is to do the will of him 35 who sent me, and to finish his work. Say ye not, ‘After four months cometh harvest?’ But I say, Lift up your eyes, and survey the fields; for they 36 are already white enough for harvest. The reaper receiveth wages, and gathereth the fruits for eternal life, that both the sower and the reaper may 37 rejoice together. For herein the proverb is veri-38 fied, ' One soweth, and another reapeth.' I send you to reap that whereon ye have bestowed no labour: others laboured; and ye get possession of their labours.

39 Now many Samaritans of that city believed in him on the testimony of the woman who said, ' He 40 ' told me all that ever I did.' When, therefore, they came to him, they besought him to stay with 41 them, and he stayed there two days. And many

 42 himself; and they said to the woman, It is not now believe; for we have heard him ourselves, and know that this is truly the Saviour of the world, the Messiah.

43 After the two days Jesus departed and went to believed the word which Jesus had spoken, and went him, and acquainted him that his boy was well.

 52 He then inquired of them the hour when he began to mend. They answered, Yesterday, at the se-knew that it was the same hour at which Jesus said to him, ‘ Thy son is well ;’ and he and all his fa-

THE CURE AT BETHESDA.

V. AFTERWARDS there was a Jewish festival,
 Lev. 23; 2. 2 and Jesus went to Jerusalem. Now there is at Jerusalem, nigh the sheep-gate, a bath, called in Hebrew Bethesda ⁴¹, which hath five covered 3 walks. In these lay a great number of sick, blind, lame, and palsied people waiting for the moving of 4 the water. For an angel at times descended into ⁴¹ House of mercy.

the bath, and agitated the water; and the first that stepped in, after the agitation of the water, was cured of whatever disease he had.

5 Now there was one there who had been diseased 6 eight and thirty years. Jesus, who saw him lying, and knew that he had been long ill, said to him, 7 Dost thou desire to be healed? The diseased man answered, Sir, I have nobody to put me into the bath, when the water is agitated; but while I am 8 going, another getteth down before me. Jesus said to him, Arise, take up thy couch, and walk.
 9 Instantly the man was healed, and took up his couch, and walked.

10 Now that day was the Sabbath. The Jews Neh. 13; 19.

therefore said to him that was cured, This is the Sabbath. It is not lawful for thee to carry the 11 couch. He answered, He who healed me, said to 12 me, 'Take up thy couch and walk.' They ask- ed him then, Who is the man that said to thee, 13 'Take up thy couch and walk?' But he that had been healed, knew not who it was: for Jesus had slipt away, there being a crowd in the place.

14 Jesus afterwards finding him in the temple, said to him, Behold thou art cured; sin no more, lest 15 something worse befall thee. The man went and told the Jews that it was Jesus who had cured him.
 16 Therefore the Jews persecuted Jesus, and sought to kill him, because he had done this on the Sabbath.

17 But Jesus answered them, As my Father hitherto 18 worketh, I work. For this reason the Jews were the more intent to kill him, because he had not only broken the Sabbath, but by calling God peculiarly 19 his Father, had equalled himself with God. Then Jesus addressed them, saying, Verily verily I say unto you, the Son can do nothing of himself, but as he seeth the Father do: for what things soever 20 he doth, such doth the Son likewise. For the Father loveth the Son, and showeth him all that he himself doth: nay, and will show him greater works 21 than these, works which will astonish you. For as the Father raiseth and quickeneth the dead, the 22 Son also quickeneth whom he will: for the Father judgeth no person, having committed the power of 23 judging entirely to the Son, that all might honour the Son, as they honour the Father. He that honour-eth not the Son, honoureth not the Father who sent 24 him. Verily verily I say unto you, He who heareth my doctrine, and believeth him who sent me, hath eternal life, and shall not incur condemnation, hav- 25 ing passed from death to life. Verily verily I say unto you, the time cometh, or rather is come, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of 26 God, and hearing they shall live. For as the Father hath life in himself, so hath he given to the 27 Son to have life in himself; and hath given him even the judicial authority, because he is the Son 28 of Man. Wonder not at this; for the time cometh when all that are in their graves shall hear his voice,

 Mat. 25; 46. 29 and shall come forth. They that have done good, shall arise to enjoy life; they that have done evil, 30 shall arise to suffer punishment. I can do nothing of myself; as I hear I judge; and my judgment is just, because I seek not to please myself, but to please the Father who sent me.

31 If I [alone] testify concerning myself, my tes-32 timony is not to be regarded: there is another who testifieth concerning me; and I know that 33 his testimony of me ought to be regarded. Ye ch. 1; 7, 15.

 yourselves sent to John, and he bore witness to 34 the truth. As for me, I need no human testimo-35 ny; I only urge this for your salvation. He was the lighted and shining lamp; and for a while ye were glad to enjoy his light.

36 But I have greater testimony than John's; for the works which the Father hath empowered me to perform, the works themselves which I do, testify for me, that the Father hath sent me.

37 Nay, the Father who sent me, hath himself at- Mat. 3; 16.

 tested me. Did ye never hear his voice; or see 38 his form? Or have ye forgotten his declaration, that ye believe not him whom he hath commissioned?

39 Ye search the Scriptures, because ye think to 40 obtain, by them, eternal life. Now these also are witnesses for me; yet ye will not come unto me 41 that ye may obtain life. I desire not honour from 42 men; but I know you, that ye are strangers to the 43 love of God. I am come in my Father's name, and ye do not receive me; if another come in his 44 own name, ye will receive him. How can ye be. ch. 12; 41.
 lieve, while ye court honour one from another, regardless of the honour which cometh from God

45 alone? Do not think that I am he who will accuse you to the Father. Your accuser is Moses, 46 in whom ye confide. For if ye believed Moses, ye would believe me, for he wrote concerning Deu. 18; 15. 47 me. But if ye believe not his writings, how shall ye believe my words?

THE PEOPLE FED IN THE DESERT.

VI. AFTERWARDS Jesus crossed the sea of Ga-2 lilee [also called] of Tiberias: and a great multitude followed him, because they had seen the mi-3 raculous cures which he performed. And Jesus went up upon a mountain; where he sat down 4 with his disciples. Now the passover, the Jewish festival, was near.

25 Having found him on the opposite shore, they 26 said to him, Rabbi, when camest thou hither? Je- sus answered, Verily verily I say unto you, Ye 27 seek me, not because ye saw miracles, but because ye ate of the loaves, and were satisfied. Work not for the food which perisheth, but for the food which endureth through eternal life, which the Son of Man will give you: for to him the Father, that therefore, to him, Master, give us always this 35 bread. Jesus answered, I am the bread of life.

 He who cometh to me shall never hunger, and he who believeth on me shall never thirst.

36 But as I told you, though ye have seen me, 37 ye do not believe. Whatever the Father giveth me, will come to me; and him who cometh to me 38 I will not reject. For I descended from heaven to do, not mine own will, but the will of him who 39 sent me. Now this is the will of him who sent me, that I should lose nothing of what he hath given me, but raise the whole again at the last day.
 40 This is the will of him who sent me, that whoever recognizeth the Son and believeth on him, should obtain eternal life, and that I should raise him again at the last day.

41 The Jews then murmured against him, because he said, "I am the bread which descended from How then doth he say, "I descended from hea-

46 learnt from the Father, cometh unto me. Not Mat. 11; 27 that any man, except him who is from God, hath seen the Father. He indeed hath seen the Father.

47 Verily verily I say unto you, He who believeth on 48 me hath eternal life. I am the bread of life.

49 Your fathers ate the manna in the desert, and 50 died. Behold the bread which descended from 51 heaven, that whoso eateth thereof may not die. I am the living bread which descended from heaven. Whoso eateth of this bread shall live for ever; and the bread that I will give is my flesh, which I give for the life of the world.

52 The Jews, then, debated among themselves, say- ing, How can this man give us his flesh to eat?
53 Jesus, therefore, said to them, Verily verily I say unto you, Unless ye eat the flesh of the Son of Man, and drink his blood, ye have not life in 54 you. He that eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, hath eternal life; and I will raise him 55 again at the last day: for my flesh is truly meat, 56 and my blood is truly drink. He who eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, abideth in me, and I 57 abide in him. As the Father liveth who sent me, and I live by the Father; even so he who feedeth 58 on me, shall live by me. This is the bread which descended from heaven. It is not like the manna which your fathers ate, for they died: he that 59 eateth this bread shall live for ever. This discourse he spake in a synagogue, teaching in Capernaum.
60 Many of his disciples having heard it, said, 61 This is hard doctrine, who can understand it? Je- sus knowing in himself that his disciples murmured at it, said to them, Doth this scandalize you?

(For Jesus knew from the beginning who they were that did not believe, and who he was that would betray him.) He added, Therefore I said to you, that no man can come unto me, unless it be given him by my Father.

66 From this time many of his disciples withdrew, and accompanied him no longer. Then said Jesus to the twelve, Will ye also go away ? Simon Peter answered, Master, to whom should we go ?
 69 Thou hast the words of eternal life : and we believe and know that thou art the Messiah, the Son of the living God. Jesus answered them, Have not I chosen you twelve ? yet one of you is a spy.

THE FEAST OF TABERNACLES.

- Lev. 23; 34. 2 NOW the Jewish feast of tabernacles was near.
 3 His brothers, therefore, said to him, Leave this country, and go into Judea, that thy disciples may 4 also see the works which thou dost. For whosoever courteth renown, doth nothing in secret:
 since thou performest such things, show thyself 5 to the world. (For not even his brothers believed 6 on him.) Jesus answered, My time is not yet 7 come; any time will suit you. The world cannot hate you; but me it hateth, because I disclose the ch. 8; 20. 8 wickedness of its actions. Go ye to this festival.
 I go not yet thither, because it is not my time.
 9 Having said this, he remained in Galilee.
 10 But when his brothers were gone, he also went to the festival, not publicly, but rather privately.
 11 At the festival, the Jews inquired after him, and 12 said, Where is he? And there was much whispering among the people concerning him. Some said, He is a good man. Others, No; he seduceth the that thou hast a demon : Abraham is dead, and the prophets ; yet thou sayest, 'Whoever keepeth 53 'my word, shall never taste death.' Art thou greater than our father Abraham, who is dead ?

 The prophets also are dead, whom thinkest thou 54 thyself ? Jesus answered, If I commend myself, my commendation is nothing : it is my Father whom 55 ye call your God who commendeth me. Nevertheless ye know him not ; but I know him ; and if I should say, I know him not, I should speak falsely like you : but I know him, and keep his word.

THE CURE OF THE MAN BORN BLIND.

IX. AS Jesus passed along, he saw a man who had 2 been born blind. And his disciples asked him, say- 3 ing, Rabbi, who sinned; this man or his parents, 4 that he was born blind? Jesus answered, Neither 5 this man nor his parents sinned. It was only that 6 the works of God might be displayed upon him.
 7 I must do the work of him who sent me, while it 8 is day; night cometh when no man can work.
 9 While I am in the world, I am the light of the 10 world. Having said this, he spat upon the ground, 11 and with the clay which he made with the spittle, 12 anointed the blind man's eyes, and said to him, 13 Go wash thine eyes in the pool of Siloam (which 14 signifieth Sent ⁴⁶). He went therefore and washed 15 them, and returned seeing.

ch. 1; 9.

⁴⁶ In the Old Testament Shiloah and Siloah.

8 Then the neighbours, and they who had before seen him blind, said, Is not this he who sat and 9 begged? Some said, It is he; others, He is like 10 him. He said, I am he. They asked him then, 11 How didst thou receive thy sight? He answered, A man called Jesus, made clay and anointed mine eyes, and said to me, 'Go to the pool of Siloam, ' and wash thine eyes.' I went accordingly, and 12 washed them, and saw. Then they asked him, Where is he? He answered, I know not.

13 Then they brought him who had been blind to 14 the Pharisees: (now it was on a Sabbath that Je-15 sus made the clay and gave him his sight.) The Pharisees likewise, therefore, asked him, how he had received his sight. He answered, He put clay on mine eyes, and I washed them, and now see.

16 *Upon this some of the Pharisees said, This man is not from God, for he observeth not the Sabbath.
Others said, How can one that is a sinner perform 17 such miracles? And they were divided among themselves. Again they asked the man who had been blind, What sayest thou of him for giving thee sight? He answered, He is a Prophet.*

18 But the Jews believed not that the man had been blind, and had received his sight, until they called 19 his parents and asked them, Do ye say that this is your son who was born blind? How then doth he 20 now see? His parents answered, We know that this is our son, and that he was born blind; but 21 how he now seeth we know not. He is of age, 22 ask him; he will answer for himself. His parents

- spoke thus, because they feared the Jews : for the Jews had already determined that whosoever acknowledged Jesus to be the Messiah should be expelled the synagogue. For this reason his parents said, " He is of age, ask him."*
- 24 A second time, therefore, they called the man who had been born blind, and said to him, Give glory to God ; we know that this man is a sinner.
- 25 He replied, Whether he be a sinner, I know not : one thing I know, that I was blind, and now see.
- 26 They said to him again, What did he to thee ? How did he make thee see ? He answered, I told
- 27 you before, did ye not hear ? Why would ye hear
- 28 it repeated ? Will ye also be his disciples ? Then they reviled him and said, Thou art his disciple.
- 29 As for us, we are disciples of Moses. We know that God spake to Moses ; as for this man, we
- 30 know not whence he is. The man replied, This is surprising, that ye know not whence he is, al-
- Ps. 66; 18. 31 though he hath given me sight. We know that God heareth not sinners ; but if any man worship
- 32 God, and obey him, that man he heareth. Never was it heard before, that any man gave sight to one
- 33 born blind. If this man were not from God, he
- 34 could do nothing. They replied, Thou wast altogether born in sins, and dost thou teach us ? And they cast him out.
- 35 Jesus heard that they had cast him out, and having met him, said to him, Dost thou believe on only hast thou seen him ; but it is he who talketh 38 with thee. And he cried, Master, I believe, and 39 threw himself prostrate before him. And Jesus said, For judgment am I come into this world, that they who see not, may see ; and they who 40 see, may become blind. Some Pharisees, who were present, hearing this, said to him, Are we also 41 blind ? Jesus answered, If ye were blind, ye would not have sin ; but ye say, ‘ We see,’ therefore your sin remaineth.

X. Verily verily I say unto you, he who entereth not by the door into the sheep-fold, but climbeth 2 over the fence, is a thief and a robber. The shep-3 herd always entereth by the door. To him the door-keeper openeth, and the sheep obey his voice.
 His own sheep he calleth by name and leadeth out.
 4 And having put out his sheep, he walketh before them, and they follow him, because they know 5 his voice. They will not follow a stranger, but flee from him, because they know not the voice of 6 strangers. Jesus addressed this similitude to them, 7 but they did not comprehend what he said. He therefore added, Verily verily I say unto you, I am 8 the door of the fold. All who have entered [in another manner] are thieves and robbers, but the 9 sheep obeyed them not. I am the door : such as enter by me shall be safe : they shall go in and 10 out, and find pasture. The thief cometh only to steal, to slay, and to destroy. I am come that they may have life, and more than life.

 19 Again there was a division among the Jews, oc-

 Father, who gave them me, is greater than all;
 and none can wrest them out of my Father’s hand.
 30 I and the Father are one.

31 Then the Jews again took up stones to stone 32 him. Jesus said to them, Many good works I have shown you from my Father; for which of 33 these works do ye stone me? The Jews answered, For a good work we do not stone thee; but for blasphemy, because thou, being a man, makest 34 thyself God. Jesus replied, Is it not written in 35 your law, “I said, Ye are gods?” If the law styled Ps. 82; 6.

 dressed, and if the language of Scripture is unex-36 ceptionable; do ye charge him with blasphemy, 38 not the works of my Father, believe me not. But if I do, though ye believe not me, believe the works, that ye may know and believe that the Father is in me, and I am in him.

39 Thereupon, they attempted again to seize him; 40 but he escaped out of their hands, and retired again towards the Jordan, and abode in the place where 41 John first baptized. And many resorted to him, who said, John indeed wrought no miracle; but many believed on him there.

SECTION VIII.

LAZARUS RAISED FROM THE DEAD.

ch 12; 3. XI. *NOW one Lazarus of Bethany, the village of 2 Mary and her sister Martha, was sick. (It was that Mary who anointed the Lord with balsam, and wiped his feet with her hair, whose brother 3 Lazarus was sick.) The sisters therefore sent to tell Jesus: Master, lo, he whom thou lovest is 4 sick. Jesus hearing it, said, This sickness will not prove fatal, but conduce to the glory of God, that the Son of God may be glorified thereby.
5 Now Jesus loved Martha, and her sister, and La-6 zarus. Having then heard that he was sick, Jesus staid two days in the place where he was.
7 Afterwards he said to the disciples, Let us re-8 turn to Judea. The disciples answered, Rabbi, but very lately the Jews would have stoned thee, 9 and wouldst thou return thither? Jesus replied, Are there not twelve hours in the day? If any man walk in the day, he stumbleth not, because* 13 Jesus spake of his death; but they thought that he

17 When Jesus came, he found that Lazarus had

21 Then Martha said to Jesus, Master, if thou hadst

22 been here, my brother had not died. But I know that even now, whatsoever thou shalt ask of God,

23 God will give thee. Jesus said to her, Thy brother shall rise again. Martha replied, I know that

35 Jesus wept. The Jews therefore said, Mark how

Father, I thank thee that thou hast heard me.

but I speak for the people's sake who surround me, that they may believe that thou hast sent me.

43 After these words, raising his voice, he cried, Laza- 44 rus, come forth. And he who had been dead came forth, bound hand and foot with fillets, and his face wrapped in a handkerchief. Jesus said to them, 45 Unbind him, and let him go. Many therefore of the Jews who had come to Mary, and seen what 46 Jesus did, believed on him. But some of them re- paired to the pharisees, and told them what Jesus had done.

47 Whereupon the chief priests and the pharisees assembled the sanhedrim, and said, What are we 48 doing? for this man worketh many miracles. If we let him go on thus, every body will believe on him, and the Romans will come and destroy both 49 our place and nation. One of them named Caiaphas, ch. 18; 14 50 who was high priest that year, said to them, Ye are utterly at a loss, and do not consider, that it is better for us that one man die for the people, than 51 that the whole nation should be ruined. This he spake, not of himself, but being high priest that year, he prophesied that Jesus should die for the 52 nation ; and not for that nation only, but that he should assemble into one body, the dispersed children 53 of God. From that day, therefore, they concerted 54 how they might destroy him. For this reason Jesus appeared no longer publicly among the Jews, but retired to the country, near the desert, to a city called Ephraim, and continued there with his disciples.

- 55 Meantime the Jewish passover approached, and many went to Jerusalem from the country, before 56 the passover, to purify themselves. These inquired after Jesus, and said one to another, as they stood in the temple, What think ye? Will he not come 57 to the festival? Now the chief priests and the pharisees had issued an order that whosoever knew where he was, should discover it, that they might apprehend him.

Then he poured water into the bason, and began to wash the feet of the disciples, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded.

When he came to Simon Peter, Peter said to him, Master, wouldst thou wash my feet? Jesus answered, At present thou dost not comprehend what I am doing; but thou shalt know hereafter. SECT. IX.

Judas had taken the morsel, he immediately went out: and it was night.

31 When he was gone, Jesus said, The Son of Man is now glorified, and God is glorified by him.

32 If God be glorified by him, God also will glorify

35 you, ye also love one another. By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another.

36 Simon Peter said to him, Master, whither art thou going? Jesus answered, Whither I am going thou canst not follow me now, but afterwards thou

CONSOLATION TO THE DISCIPLES

XIV. LET not your heart be troubled ; believe on 2 God and believe on me. In my Father's house are many mansions. If it were otherwise, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you : 3 and after I shall have gone and prepared a place for you, I will return and take you with me, that 4 where I am, there ye also may be. And whither I am going ye know, and the way ye know.
5 Thomas said to him, Master, we know not whither thou art going. How, then, can we know the 6 way? Jesus answered, I am the way, and the truth, and the life : no man cometh unto the Fa-7 ther, but by me. Had ye known me, ye would have known my Father also ; and henceforth ye know him, and have seen him.
8 Philip said unto him, Master, show us the Fa-9 ther, and it sufficeth us. Jesus replied, Have I been with you so long, and dost thou not yet know me, Philip ? He that hath seen me, hath seen the Father. How sayest thou then, " Show us the Fa-10 " ther ? " Dost thou not believe that I am in the Father, and the Father is in me ? The words which I speak to you, proceed not from myself: as to the works, it is the Father dwelling in me who 11 doth them. Believe that I am in the Father, and the Father is in me; if not on my testimony, be 12 convinced by the works themselves. Verily verily I say unto you, He who believeth on me, shall himself do such works as I do; nay even 13 greater than these he shall do; because I go to my Father, and will do whatsoever ye shall ask in my 14 name. That the Father may be glorified in the Mat. 7; 7-& 21; 22.

Mar. 11; 23-
ch. 16; 23
 Son, whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, I will do.
 15 If ye love me, keep my commandments; and I will entreat the Father, and he will give you another Monitor to continue with you for ever, even 17 the Spirit of Truth, whom the world cannot receive, because it neither seeth him, nor knoweth him; but ye shall know him, because he will 18 abide with you, and be in you. I will not leave 19 you orphans; I will return unto you. Yet a little while, and the world shall see me no more; but ye shall see me; because I shall live, ye also shall 20 live. On that day ye shall know that I am in my 21 Father, and ye are in me, and I am in you. He that hath my commandments and keepeth them, he it is who loveth me; and he who loveth me will be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and dis-22 cover myself unto him. Judas (not Iscariot) said to him, Master, wherefore wilt thou discover thy-23 self to us, and not unto the world? Jesus answer- ing, said unto him, If a man love me, he will observe my word; and my Father will love him;

- and we will come to him, and dwell with him.
- 24 He who loveth me not, disregardeth my words ; yet the word which ye hear is not mine, but the Father's who sent me.
- 25 I tell you these things while I remain with you.
- 26 But the Monitor, the Holy Spirit, whom the Father will send in my name ; he will teach you all things, and remind you of all that I have told you.
- 27 Peace I leave you, my peace I give you ; not as the world giveth, do I give unto you. Be not dis-
- 28 heartened ; be not intimidated. Ye have heard me say, ' I go away and will return to you.' If ye loved me, ye would rejoice that I go to the
- 29 Father ; because my Father is greater than I. This I tell you now before it happen, that when it hap-
- 30 peneth, ye may believe. I shall not henceforth have much conversation with you ; for the prince of the world is coming, though he will find nothing
- 31 in me ; but this must be, that the world may know that I love the Father, and do whatsoever he commandeth me. Arise, let us go hence.

- XV. I AM the true vine, and my Father is the vine-
- 2 dresser. Every barren branch in me he loppeth off : every fruitful branch he cleaneth by pruning, to
- 3 render it more fruitful. As for you, ye are already clean through the instructions I have given you.
- 4 Abide in me, and I will abide in you : as the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, unless it adhere to the
- 5 vine ; no more can ye, unless ye adhere to me. I am the vine ; ye are the branches. He who abideth in me, and in whom I abide, produceth much 6 fruit : for severed from me ye can do nothing. If any man adhere not to me, he is cast forth like the withered branches which are gathered for few-7 el, and burnt. If ye abide by me, and my words abide in you, ye may ask what ye will, and it shall be granted you.

8 Herein is my Father glorified, that ye produce 9 much fruit ; so shall ye be my disciples. As the Father loveth me, so love I you : continue in my 10 love. If ye keep my commandments, ye shall continue in my love ; as I have kept my Father's com-11 mandments, and continue in his love. I give you these admonitions, that I may continue to have joy 12 in you, and that your joy may be complete : this is ch. 13; 34, my commandment, that ye love one another, as I Eph. 5; 2.
 13 love you. Greater love hath not any man than 1 Th. 4; 9.
 14 this, to lay down his life for his friends. Ye are my friends, if ye do whatever I command you.
 15 Henceforth I call not you servants ; for the servant knoweth not what his master will do ; but I name you friends : for whatever I have learnt from my 16 Father, I impart unto you. It is not you who have Mar. 3; 13; chosen me ; but it is I who have chosen you, and Lu. 6; 13.
 ordained you to go and bear fruit, fruit which will prove permanent, that the Father may give you whatsoever ye shall ask him in my name.

17 This I command you, that ye love one another. 1 Jo. 3; 11; 18 If the world hate you, consider that it hated me & 4; 7.
 19 before it hated you. If ye were of the world, the world would love its own. But because ye are not of the world, I having selected you from the world; 20 the world hateth you. Remember what I said to you, 'The servant is not greater than his master.'

 If they have persecuted me, they will also perse-21 cute you; if they have observed my word, they will also observe yours. But all this treatment they will give you, on my account, because they know 22 not him who sent me. If I had not come and spoken unto them, they had not had sin; but now 23 they have no excuse for their sin. He that hateth 24 me, hateth my Father also. If I had not done among them such works as none other ever did, they had not had sin; but now they have seen 25 them, and yet hated both me and my Father. Thus they verify that passage in their law, "They hated 26 "me without cause." But when the Monitor is come, whom I will send you from the Father, the Spirit of Truth who proceedeth from the Father, 27 he will testify concerning me. And ye also will testify, because ye have been with me from the beginning.

Ps. 35; 19.
Lu. 24; 49.

XVI. These things I tell you, that ye may not be ensnared. They will expel you the synagogue; nay, the time is coming, when whosoever killeth you, 3 will think he offereth sacrifice to God. And these things they will do because they know not the Fa-4 ther nor me. These things I now warn you of, that when the time shall come, ye may remember that I mentioned them to you. I did not indeed mention them at the beginning, because I was with 5 you myself. And now that I go to him who sent

6 me, none of you asketh me, 'Whither goest thou?'

But because of those things which I have foretold you, ye are overwhelmed with grief.

7 Nevertheless I tell you the truth ; it is for your good that I depart ; for if I do not depart, the Monitor will not come to you ; but if I go away, I

8 will send him to you. And when he is come, he will convince the world concerning sin, and concerning righteousness, and concerning judgment :

9 concerning sin, because they believe not on me ;

10 concerning righteousness, because I go to my Fa-

11 ther, and ye see me no longer ; concerning judgment, because the prince of this world is judged.

12 I have many things still to tell you, but ye can-13 not yet bear them. But when the Spirit of Truth is come, he will conduct you into all the truth : for his words will not proceed from himself : but whatsoever he shall have heard, he will speak, and 14 show you things to come. He will glorify me : for he will receive of mine what he shall communicate

15 to you. Whatsoever is the Father's is mine ; therefore I say that he will receive of mine to communicate to you.

16 Within a little while ye shall not see me ; a little while after ye shall see me ; because I go to the 17 Father. Some of his disciples said among themselves,

What meaneth he by this, " Within a little while " ye shall not see me ; a little while after ye shall 18 " see me : because I go to the Father ? " What meaneth this little while of which he speaketh ? We 19 do not comprehend it. Jesus perceiving that they were desirous to ask him, said to them, Do ye inquire amongst yourselves about this that I said, “ Within a little while ye shall not see me; a little 20 “ while after ye shall see me ?” Verily verily I say unto you, ye will weep and lament, but the world will rejoice: ye will be sorrowful; but your 21 sorrow shall be turned into joy. A woman in travail hath sorrow, because her hour is come. But when her son is born, she remembereth her anguish no longer, for joy that she hath brought a 22 man into the world. So ye at present are in grief; but I will visit you again, and your hearts shall be 23 joyful, and none shall rob you of your joy. On that day ye will put no questions to me. Verily verily I say unto you, whatsoever ye shall ask the 24 Father in my name, he will give you. Hitherto ye have asked nothing in my name; ask and ye shall receive, that your joy may be complete.

 25 These things I have spoken to you in figures:
 the time approacheth when I shall no more discourse to you in figures, but instruct you plainly 26 concerning the Father. Then ye will ask in my name, and I say not that I will entreat the Fa-27 ther for you: for the Father himself loveth you, because ye love me, and believe that I came from 28 God. From the presence of the Father I came into the world. Again I leave the world, and return 29 to the Father. His disciples replied, Now indeed thou speakest plainly, and without a figure. Now we are convinced that thou knowest all things, and needest not that any should put questions to thee. By this we believe that thou camest forth 31 from God. Jesus answered them, Do ye now be- Mat. 26; 31.

 when ye shall disperse, every one to his own, and shall leave me alone; yet I am not alone, because 33 the Father is with me. These things I have spoken unto you, that in me ye may have peace. In the world ye shall have tribulation. But take courage!
 I have overcome the world.

XVII. WHEN Jesus had ended this discourse, he said, lifting up his eyes to heaven, Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son, that thy Son also may thority over all men, he may bestow eternal life on all 3 those whom thou hast given him. Now this is the life eternal, to know thee the only true God, and 4 Jesus the Messiah thy apostle. I have glorified thee upon the earth; I have finished the work which 5 thou gavest me to do. And now, Father, glorify thou me in thine own presence with that glory which I enjoyed with thee before the world was.

 6 I have made known thy name to the men whom thou hast given me out of the world. They were thine; and thou gavest them me; and they have 7 kept thy word. Whatsoever thou hast given me, 8 they now know to have come from thee; and that thou hast imparted unto me the doctrine which I have imparted unto them. They have received it ch. 16; 27 [as such], knowing for certain, that I came forth for them that I pray. I pray not for the world, but for those whom thou hast given me, because 10 they are thine. And all mine are thine, and thine 11 mine, and I am glorified in them. I continue no longer in the world; but these continue in the world, and I come to thee. Holy Father, preserve them in thy name which thou hast given me, that 12 they may be one as we are. While I was with them in the world, I kept them in thy name;

 those whom thou hast given me I have preserved.
 ch. 18; 9. None of them is lost, except the son of perdition, 13 as the Scripture foretold. But now that I am coming to thee, I speak these things in the world, that 14 their joy in me may be complete. I have delivered thy word to them, and the world hateth them, because they are not of the world, even as I am not 15 of the world. I do not pray thee to remove them out of the world, but to preserve them from evil.
 16 Of the world they are not, as I am not of the 17 world. Consecrate them by the truth; thy word 18 is the truth. As thou hast made me thy apostle to the world, I have made them my apostles to the 19 world. And I consecrate myself for them, that they may be consecrated through the truth.
 20 Nor do I pray for these alone, but for those also who shall believe on me through their teach-21 ing; that all may be one; that as thou Father art in me, and I am in thee, they also may be one in us, that the world may believe that thou hast sent 22 me; and that thou gavest me the glory which I have given them; that they may be one as we are 23 one ; I in them, and thou in me, that their union may be perfected, and that the world may know that thou hast sent me, and that thou lovest them 24 as thou lovest me. Father, I would that where I ch. 12. 26 shall be, those whom thou hast given me may be with me, that they may behold my glory which thou gavest me, because thou lovedst me before 25 the formation of the world. Righteous Father, though the world knoweth not thee, I know thee ; 26 and these know that I have thy commission. And to them I have communicated, and will communicate, thy name, that I being in them, they may share in the love wherewith thou lovest me.

THE CRUCIFIXION.

XVIII. WHEN Jesus had spoken these words, he passed with his disciples over the brook Kidron, where was a garden, into which he entered and his 2 disciples. Now Judas who betrayed him knew the place, because Jesus often resorted thither with his

- 13 *Pilate, on hearing these words, ordered Jesus to be brought forth, and sat down on the tribunal in a place named the pavement, in Hebrew Gabbatha*⁵⁷. (*Now it was the preparation*⁵⁸ *of the paschal Sabbath, about the sixth hour*⁵⁹.) And he

31 *The Jews, therefore, lest the bodies should remain on the cross on the Sabbath, for it was the preparation*⁶² (and that Sabbath was a great day), besought Pilate that their legs might be 32 broken, and the bodies might be removed. Accordingly the soldiers came and broke the legs of the first, and of the other who were crucified with 33 him. But when they came to Jesus, and found that he was already dead, they did not break his 34 legs. But one of the soldiers with a spear pierced his side, whence blood and water immediately 35 issued. He was an eye-witness who attesteth this, and his testimony deserveth credit: nay, he is conscious that he speaketh truth, that ye may be- away the body of Jesus; which Pilate having granted, he went and took the body of Jesus.

 39 Nicodemus also, who had formerly repaired to Jesus by night, came and brought a mixture of myrrh 40 and aloes, weighing about a hundred pounds. These men took the body of Jesus, and wound it in linen rollers with the spices, which is the Jewish man-41 ner of embalming. Now in the place where he was crucified there was a garden, and in the garden a new monument wherein no one had ever yet been 42 laid. There they deposited Jesus on account of the Jewish preparation⁶³, the monument being near.

XX. The first day of the week⁶⁴ Mary Magdalene Mat. 28; 1.

Lu. 24; 1. went early to the monument, while it was yet dark, and saw that the stone had been removed from the 2 entrance. Then she came running to Simon Peter, and to that other disciple whom Jesus loved, and said to them, They have taken the Master out of the monument, and we know not where they have 3 laid him. Immediately Peter went out, and the 4 other disciple, to go to the monument. And both ran together, but the other disciple out-ran Peter, 5 and came first to the monument; and stooping down, he saw the linen rollers lying, but went not 6 in. Then came Simon Peter, who followed him.
 7 and went into the monument, where he observed the rollers lying, and the handkerchief which had been wrapped about his head, not laid beside them, but 8 folded up in a place by itself. Then the other dis*ciple, who came first to the monument, entered 9 also; and he saw and believed [the report]. For as yet they did not understand from the Scriptures 10 that he was to rise from the dead. Then the disciples returned to their companions.*

11 But Mary stood without near the monument weeping. As she wept, stooping down to look into 12 the monument, she saw two angels in white, sitting where the body of Jesus had lain, one at the head, 13 the other at the feet. And they said to her, Woman, why weepest thou? She answered, Because they have taken away my Master, and I know not where Mar. 16; 9. 14 they have laid him. Having said this, she turned about and saw Jesus standing, but knew not that 15 it was Jesus. Jesus said to her, Woman, why weepest thou? whom seekest thou? She supposing him to be the gardener, answered, Sir, if thou have conveyed him hence, tell me where thou hast laid 16 him, and I will take him away. Jesus said to her, Mary. She turning said to him, Rabboni, that is, 17 Doctor. Jesus said to her, Lay not hands on me, for I have not yet ascended to my Father; but go to my brethren, and say unto them, 'I ascend to ' my Father, and your Father, my God and your 18 God.' Mary Magdalene went and informed the disciples that she had seen the Master, and that he had spoken these things to her.

week⁶⁵, Jesus came where the disciples were con-*

- vened (the doors having been shut for fear of the Jews), and stood in the midst, and said to them, 20 Peace be unto you. Having said this, he showed them his hands and his side. The disciples, therefore, rejoiced when they saw it was their Master.
 21 Jesus said again to them, Peace be unto you. As 22 the Father hath sent me, so send I you. After these words he breathed on them, and said unto 23 them, Receive the Holy Ghost. Whose sins so- Mat. 18; 18.
ever ye remit, are remitted to them; and whose sins soever ye retain, are retained.
 24 *Now Thomas*⁶⁶*, that is Didymus*⁶⁶*, one of the* 25 twelve, was not with them when Jesus came. The other disciples, therefore, said to him, We have seen the Master. But he answered, Unless I see in his hands the print of the nails, and put my finger to the print of the nails, and my hand to his 26 side, I will not believe. Eight days after, the disciples being again in the house, and Thomas with them, Jesus came, the doors having been shut, and stood in the midst, and said, Peace be unto you.
 27 Then turning to Thomas, Reach hither thy finger, he said, and look at my hands; reach also thy hand and feel my side, and be not incredulous, 28 but believe. And Thomas answered, and said unto 29 him, My Lord and my God. Jesus replied, Because thou seest me, Thomas, thou believest: happy they who, having never seen, shall nevertheless believe.

ch. 21; 5.

30 Many other miracles Jesus likewise performed in the presence of his disciples, which are not re-31 corded in this book. But these are recorded that ye may believe, that Jesus is the Messiah the Son of God, and that believing ye may have life through his name.

XXI. AFTERWARDS Jesus again appeared to the disciples at the sea of Tiberias, and in this manner 2 he appeared. Simon Peter and Thomas⁶⁷, that is, Didymus⁶⁷, Nathanael of Cana in Galilee, the 3 sons of Zebedee, and two other disciples of Jesus being together, Simon Peter said, I go a-fishing.
 They answered, We will go with thee. Immediately they went, and got aboard a bark, but that 4 night caught nothing. In the morning Jesus stood on the shore; the disciples, however, knew not that 5 it was Jesus. Jesus said to them, My lads, have ye 6 any victuals? They answered, No. Cast the net, cried he, on the right side of the bark, and ye will find. They did so, but were not able to draw it, 7 by reason of the multitude of fishes. Then that disciple whom Jesus loved, said to Peter, It is the Master. Simon Peter hearing that it was the Master, girt on his upper garment (which he had laid 8 aside) and threw himself into the sea. But the other disciples came in the boat (for they were not farther from land than about two hundred cubits), 9 dragging the net with the fishes. When they came ashore they saw a fire burning and fish laid thereon

10 and bread. Jesus said to them, Bring of the 11 fishes which ye have now taken. Simon Peter went back and drew the net to land, full of large fishes, a hundred and fifty three; and the net was 12 not rent, notwithstanding the number. Jesus said to them, Come and dine. Meantime none of the disciples ventured to ask him, Who art thou?
 13 knowing that it was the Master. Jesus then drew near, and taking bread and fish, distributed 14 among them. This is the third time that Jesus appeared to his disciples after his resurrection.

15 When they had dined, Jesus said to Simon Pe- ter, Simon son of Jonas, lovest thou me more than these? He answered, Yes, Lord, thou know-est that I love thee. Jesus replied, Feed my 16 lambs. A second time he said, Simon son of Jo- nas, lovest thou me? He answered, Yes, Lord, thou knowest that I love thee. Jesus replied, 17 Tend my sheep, A third time he said, Simon son of Jonas, lovest thou me? Peter grieved at his asking this question a third time, answered, Lord, thou knowest all things, thou knowest that 18 I love thee. Jesus replied, Feed my sheep. Ve- 2 Pet. 1; 14.
rily verily I say unto thee, in thy youth thou girt-est thyself, and wentest whither thou wouldst; but in thine old age, thou shalt stretch out thy hands;
and another will gird thee, and carry thee whither 19 thou wouldst not. This he spake, signifying by what death he should glorify God. After these words he said to him, Follow me.

20 *And Peter turning about saw the disciple whom Jesus loved following (the same who leaning on his breast at the supper, had asked who it was 21 that would betray him.) Peter seeing him, said to Jesus, And what, Lord, shall become of this 22 man? Jesus answered, If I will, that he wait my return, what is that to thee, follow thou me.
23 Hence arose the rumour among the brethren, that that disciple should not die; nevertheless Jesus said not that he should not die, but "If I will,
" that he wait my return, what is that to thee?"*

ch. 20; 30.

24 It is this disciple who attesteth these things, and wrote this account; and we know that his testi-25 mony deserveth credit. There were many other things also performed by Jesus, which, were they to be severally related, I imagine the world itself could not contain the volumes that would be written. Amen.
